NEW YORK, July 19. — Women seeking equality with men, Mme. Marcelle Kraemer-Bach of Paris declares, harm the feminist cause when they cease to be charming. Mme. Kraemer-Bach, an attractive attorney, is on her way to Chicago for the International Congress of the National Council of Women. "Men have always been very considerate to women in France," she said. "Now we want them to go on being nice to us in those ways, and to give us equality besides. "That is why the most influential feminists in France are womanly and charming and why we think it is a great pity when suffragists try to behave like men."

Mr. Gullison is a very entertaining and gifted speaker with a most pleasing personality only surpassed by that of his wife. They are now on a tour of the Eastern end of the Island, and next week look to visit the western portion. Everybody should endeavor to hear them as medical missions are much the same among all denominations. After visiting Nova Scotia they expect to return to their hospital in India in October. They are making many warm personal friends, who will be pleased to see them go, but will be pleased to follow them in their work for the master, which is given without money and without price.

Minard's Liniment cuts grease. ASCOT ROYAL ENCLOSURE VIOLATED BY "RAFFLES" WHO OBTAIN RICH LOOT

LONDON, England, July 19.—The sanctity of the Royal Enclosure at Ascot, which for years past has been kept clear of all suspicious and undesirable characters, has been violated.

During two days of the meeting a pickpocket managed to obtain entry to the Crown circle, and stole about £200 in notes. He wore a grey top hat tilted at a becoming angle. His clothes were the latest product of Saville Row. In the lapel of his coat was the coveted badge of entry.

A member of a distinguished family who was standing near him felt a sudden jerk on his coat, and putting his hand in his inside pocket discovered that his wallet containing about $50 had vanished. So also had the stranger.

"KLONDYKE KATE" WEDS — VANCOUVER, July 19.—"Klondyke Kate" (Mrs. Kate Rockwell), was married this evening to John Matson. The romance started in Dawson, Y.T., on Christmas Eve, 1900, when Kate was a dazzling dance hall girl. "The skylit of the Yukon," Rev. George Pringle, performed the ceremony at his home here.

Tonight the honeymooners took boat for Skagway, Alaska, whence they will journey to Dawson and 20 miles back of that to Matson's Creek, where the groom operates a placer mine. The wedding ring was made from a nugget which came out of it.

The Trail Back Home

(H. L. Paugh)

Long, long ago I stood upon the deck of the old Empress, as she steamed out of Summerside harbor, watching the town as it grew fainter in the distance. Through my mind ran the refrain: this is my own, my native land. For years my thoughts and interests have centered in other places far from my native isle, but fate has turned my footsteps homeward from wandering on a foreign strand.

More than twenty years ago the call of the West lured me into the wilds of central Alberta, where a handful of new settlers were trying to carve out for themselves a home upon the lone prairie. I joined the band and became a pioneer in the days when the West was young.

Our community has no history but the story of our own lives, no achievements but the work of our hands. Our hope lies in our own ability. Our future is in the hands of our children.

Shortly before the time set for our departure to Eastern Canada, by car, we were urgently requested to attend a special meeting of the United Farmers and Farm Women of Alberta. Immediately upon our arrival we were greeted by the crowd singing, They're Jolly Good Fellows. We were then ushered to a table tastefully decorated and bountifully laden with the choicest viands, and seated as guest of honor, the crowd singing: How dear to my heart are the scenes of my childhood. After the banquet speeches followed expressing their good wishes and hopes for a safe return. We were then presented with a very appropriate gift. The evening ended in songs suited to the occasion. The banquet was a complete surprise.

With the memory of this pleasant event still in my mind, we set out one bright sunny morning in May, on our long trip across Canada, leaving two stalwart sons behind to run the ranch. Before leaving we had obtained a road map on which the most suitable route was clearly defined as far as North Bay, Ontario. Therefore we had no anxiety about the road.

Our first day was uneventful. The prairie roads were fairly good. We crossed into Saskatchewan at Al-sask. Here a sign showed us that we had left our own province behind. We looked in vain for our old route number. It had changed at the boundary. We passed through the beautiful little town of Kindersley with its lovely shade trees. It is a credit to its citizens whose untiring efforts to beautify their surroundings have made their town such a charming spot.

The first night we spent at Dare, a typical little prairie town. Next day we continued east as far as Rosetown. Then south along a well gravelled road till we came to the Saskatchewan river, which we crossed by ferry. This is a government ferry operated by cable. Going south the current is strong enough to carry the scow across. The return trip is operated by windless. We met three cars crossing, two of which were tourists. One had a large trailer piled high with household goods, presumably new settlers for the North country. The country around the river is bushy, as are all the river banks of both Saskatchewan and Alberta. The road south of the river winds through the hills for some distance but the curves are well marked by signs and the route is easy to follow. The scenery is wild and rugged but magnificent, a delight to the prairie dweller. We soon emerged into the open spaces again, as all the southern part of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba are prairie except the river banks. No where did we find the crops more advanced than in Alberta, in the afternoon we passed through Swift Current, an important centre of Southern Saskatchewan, beautifully situated and picturesquely surrounded. From here we travelled east to Moose Jaw. This completed our second day's journey without mishap, only a slight delay caused by tire trouble.

We had a few slight showers during the afternoon but when we reached Moose Jaw the streets were flooded. The back streets were almost impassable. During the night there was a heavy thunder squall and the rain fell in torrents. I shall always remember our stay in Moose Jaw by the kindness of a friendly woman, whose life was not too busy to scatter a ray of sunshine, on a cloudy morning.

matter referred back to the M. M. committee. The Secretary reported the following indications: A. R. Wallis into the pastoral charge of Bradalbane; S. J. Boyce into the pastoral charge of Mr. Stewart, and Thos. Palethorpe into the pastoral charge of Winsloe.

In the absence of the chairman of the committee on Students, the secretary moved that a special committee be appointed to consider the application of a candidate for the ministry. Rev. W. E. Aitken, camp director of the joint M. R. E. C. and Y. M. C. A. camp held at Canoe Cove, reported one of the best camps ever held, with 72 boys and 14 leaders in attendance. The cup for the best senior camper was awarded to Buddy Sweet, Antigonish, the medal for best junior camper to Harold Stewart, Charlottetown, and the medal for the best athlete to Kenneth Archibald, Bedouque. A motion in appreciation of Mr. Aitken's excellent work as director, was made by Rev. L. P. Archibald and seconded by Garland Brooks and enthusiastically carried. All leaders associated with Mr. Aitken were also tendered a vote of appreciation.

Rev. C. N. Brown gave a vivid account of the Y. P. Conference in Saokville where about 125 of the young people of the United Church in the Maritimes gathered for nine days under the leadership of Rev. C. E. Crowell, Rev. J. W. A. Nicholson, Rev. Dr. Cook, and others. There were fifteen delegates from P.E.I. At twelve noon, a devotional hour was conducted by the Chairman, Rev. C. U. MacNevin spoke on Mark 4:38.

The afternoon session convened at 2.30. The committee on Christian Education was asked by Presbytery to prepare a programme for a special meeting of Presbytery to be held on August 29th, and the committee on Rural Life was made responsible for a meeting on September 26th. Gordon Darrach, Charlottetown, was received as a suitable candidate for the ministry and recommended by Presbytery to continue his studies.

Dr. Trueman's report on the progress of the following students was read and all were recommended to continue their studies at Ms. Allison: Elmer Ashley, Wilfred Boothroyd, Garland Brooks, Austin Jardine, Lewis Murray, W. A. Seaman, and Jack Sheen.

Rev. F. E. Boothroyd reported for the Committee to strike standing committees. The conveners are as follows: Missionary and Maintenance, Rev. A. S. Weir; Home Missions, Rev. F. E. Boothroyd; Foreign Missions, Rev. L. B. Campbell, Christian Education, Rev. D. M. Sinclair; Evangelism and Social Service, Rev. J. L. Lund; Pensions, Rev. Geo. Ayers; Property, Rev. D. K. Ross; Students, Rev. G. N. Somers; Publications, Rev. M. M. MacMillan; Rural Life, Rev. J. W. A. Nicholson; Historical, Dr. E. H. Ramsay; Statistics, Rev. T. R. Goudge; Pastoral Relations, Rev. L. P. Archibald; Boundaries, Rev. C. N. Brown.

The M. and M. Committees brought in a resolution that the allocations made in May be adhered to. The Cent-A-Meal plan was most heartily supported by Presbytery and commended to all Pastoral Charges. The Committee on Christian Education presented the Bruce Barton

IN MEMORIAM

MR. SILAS J. WHITLOCK

A well known and highly respected citizen, Mr. Silas J. Whitlock, aged 75, passed away at his home on School Street early Tuesday morning.

Mr. Whitlock was born in New Glasgow, P. E. I., but has been a resident of Charlottetown for more than fifty years.

For about thirteen years he was employed as can maker by the late John A. Mathieson and the late Walter Mathieson who conducted an extensive lobster packing business.

Later Mr. Whitlock began business for himself as a tinsmith and carried it on for about 30 years. He passed away after he had been blind for two months.

Mr. Whitlock was a man of splendid personal character and in every way an excellent citizen. He was a prominent member of the Sons of England for thirty years and was awarded the Past Presbytery's jewel.

He leaves to mourn a widow, two sons, Silas J. in Joliette, P. Q., and Gordon of the Maritime Telegraph and Telephone Company, Halifax, also one daughter, Mrs. Roy Huestis, Charlottetown.

Three brothers survive, John and Nelson in Charlottetown, Wallace of the C. N. R., Montreal, also one sister, Mrs. Albert Williams of Charlottetown.

Members of the Sons of England and of the Orange order to which the deceased belonged attended in a body. The pall bearers were Angus MacInnis, Roland Meikle, Herbert King and Herman Feayour, (representing the Sons of England), Alexander Howatt and George Pancher.

RARE DISTINCTION FOR MR. KIPLING

LONDON, Eng., July 19. — Mr. Rudyard Kipling was recently in Paris unanimously elected a Foreign Associate Member of the Academie des Sciences et des Lettres, in conferring this rare distinction on Mr. Kipling — it is shared only by the King of the Belgians and Cardinal Mercier — the Institute has given evidence of the widespread appreciation in France of his literary achievements and his contributions to the cause of Franco-British friendship.

DESTROYS ROSES

The Rose Curculio, or as it is often called, the black-snouted rose beetle, is an important pest of roses in many sections of Canada. This beetle is about one-quarter of an inch in length, bright red above and black beneath; the snout, as the name implies, also being black. It injures roses by puncturing the young buds, frequently eating numerous holes in the same bud, with the result that the blooms fall to develop. The control of the insect may be secured by hand picking or shaking the beetles into some receptacle, such as an umbrella, and then destroying them. When the beetles are numerous, spraying with arsenate of lime (powder), used at the rate of five teaspoons to a gallon of water, is very effective.

KEEPS PARSLEY GREEN

Seeding parsley to be held for winter use may still be done in some sheltered part of the garden that is free of the sun for part of the day. Treatment of parsley that will keep it green all winter is supplied by an English gardener as follows: Wash the sprigs and tie them up in bags of muslin. To a gallon of boiling water add one teaspoonful of salt and the same amount of carbonate of soda (baking soda). Drop the bag of parsley into the hot water, leaving it one and a half minutes. Drain dry the parsley on a cloth, and then spread on a layer of paper. Place in a cool oven where parsley will dry slowly. When dry place in brown paper bags, that are closely tied up to prevent the entry of dust. Glass sealers that can be tightly sealed up might be used, but they should be set away in a dark, cool, dry place. If soaked in cold water for a short time parsley treated in this way will be almost as green as though freshly gathered.

Gardeners who for any reason cannot keep pots of parsley growing in the kitchen window through the winter may, by this method, insure a full supply of the dainty green that has so many uses in flavoring dishes or tempting appetite with its decorative touches.

Members of the Sons of England and of the Orange order to which the deceased belonged attended in a body. The pall bearers were Angus MacInnis, Roland Meikle, Herbert King and Herman Feayour, (representing the Sons of England), Alexander Howatt and George Pancher.
