Selwood Of Sleepy Cat

She had caught his bandaged hand in her thin, knotted fingers and covered it with her forehead. He stood irresolute, wanting to pull it away and ashamed to—uneasily listening and thinking. A long time he stood.

Then, suddenly, his face darkened. He jerked himself angrily up. "What do you want me to do?" He threw the words at her with a rude savageness that would have frightened another. But Margaret knew what his words meant. She scrambled to her feet and caught his hand again in her hands, and broke into a flood of tears. "Oh, I don't know. I don't know," she sobbed; then she lifted her streaming face with the tender confidence of a child. "You will know, John."

"Sit down," he snapped. She shrank away. From her chair she only looked her hope and her gratitude and watched anxiously the play of his features. Selwood with a vacant expression, took up from the table Scott's cigarette, put it between his lips, and slowly felt for a match.

"I'm doing something I don't approve of," he said sulkily. "Nobody else will approve of it, that's a cinch. This buck has tried his blameworthy to kill me—and done worse'n that. Nobody outside a lunatic asylum would turn a hand to help him. If I wasn't a blamed fool, I wouldn't."

She bowed her head. "Ask Bob Scott," he went on, "to bring McAlpin in here—McAlpin is waiting for me down-stairs. But if you want to save your man, don't let Pardloe come in. When Scott and McAlpin come in here, stay outside the door till I send for you."

"Boys," he said to McAlpin and Scott the moment the door of his room closed behind them, "Meg, out there, is the wife of this hound Starbuck. You didn't know it; I didn't—nobody around here knew it. I can't tell you everything she told me tonight—if I stopped, they'd have Starbuck hanged before I got down there. And I can't tell you why I've promised her his life—but I've been just blamed fool enough to do it—that's all. And"—he spoke low and with stubborn intoning—"when I make a promise, I don't allow any man to interfere. To begin with, Starbuck is my own personal prisoner, I want to get him away without hurting some people's feelings—you can understand that. Will you help?"

"Well," he continued, as he listened to their protests of loyalty with an ungrudging assent. "I thought maybe you would. Now call in Meg."

Scott opened the door, and Margaret Hyde, looking questioningly from one to the other, as if to read her fate in their eyes, stepped inside, and the door was closed behind her. Selwood spoke again. "Starbuck and Big Haynes," he said to her, "are tied up and locked in the harness-room at the barn. Lefever's men are guarding them. I'll go down with you all and take care of Lefever. He'll call off his men and leave me to look after my prisoner. Bob, you cut Starbuck loose. McAlpin, you have horses saddled at the back door of the barn, and Bob will ride with Meg and him to the east end of town. Nobody," he spoke now to Margaret Hyde, "will bother you beyond that. Keep out of the way of travel and of our men, but get east as fast as you can. If you can get to Medicine Bend, you'll be all right—nobody there to bother. But between here and there you'll have to look out. Any of our boys or the Vigilantes will shoot him on sight. Leave the horses at Medicine Bend in our barn—Well, I guess that's all."

Under one pretext or another, Lefever, amenable to Selwood's plea for Meg Hyde, who, for Lefever, had never refused to take care of a sick teamster, got rid of the guards. It was more trouble for Lefever to dispose of the remainder of his fighting men, but on the strength of burning rumors, in the invention of which the wagon boss easily excelled, the men were sent on

JUBILEE
 Celebrating 15 Years of Achievement

$10 DOWN

During the Jubilee we will install Frigidaire in your home for only $10 down—and the balance arranged to suit your convenience.

For fifteen years Frigidaire has been responsible for many improvements and refinements that have made electric refrigeration what it is today. And as a fitting celebration of Frigidaire's fifteenth anniversary, we have prepared an unusually interesting program: We are presenting an Anniversary Gift to all adults who visit our showroom during the celebration. And we are making a very generous Special Frigidaire Jubilee Offer to all who purchase now! Be our guest. You will see many interesting things. You will see a dramatic demonstration of the enduring qualities of Frigidaire Lifetime Porcelain. You will see that neither heat nor moisture can harm this lasting, glass-smooth surface—that it withstands hard knocks and scratches—that even the acid juice of lemon cannot harm the porcelain interior.

You will also see how Frigidaire's front-to-back, one-way, steel-rail shelves make it easy to put food in and take it out without danger of slopping or spilling—how the Cold Control makes possible a wide variety of frozen desserts—how the Hydrator makes even wilted vegetables fresh again.

CANADIAN NATIONAL

"The new family next door played a mean trick on me yesterday."
 "How?"
 "They moved in while I was downtown."

He: Haven't you just one little kiss to spare me?
 She: Well, I must admit I'm rather short of them this week. My wife gave a whole lot away already.

THE NOTE OF SADNESS

Once more the breezes whisper soft
 That spring is here to stay;
 Once more the skies are blue aloft
 And flowers are blossoming gay,
 And yet a note of discord drear
 Sweeps through the song sublime
 With fretted ear you seem to hear
 "It's almost moving time."

"Why don't you insist on being the head of the house?"
 "I am the head of the house but my wife says a head is no good without brains."

Weather Cook: Are you going to be the harbinger of spring?
 Bird: What's the use. They have a gasoline bird now.
