Falcons Win From Stars Last Night In Great Game

Last Year's Champs Drop Close Tilt In Second Game For Campbell Trophy — Pitching By Both Heroes A Feature.

Sending fifteen players back to the bench via the knockout route and allowing but one lone hit, Tommy McFarlane pitched the Falcons to a hard earned victory over the Stars, in the second game of the City Baseball League, played at the Abegweit Grounds last evening.

The large number of fans in attendance were treated to a real game last night with the outcome always in doubt. Errors by McFarlane's teammates had him in trouble on several occasions but some nice hurling by Tom averted disaster.

McFarlane's pitching while being the big feature of the tilt was by no means the only one; big Geo. Ayers, southpaw ace of the Stars, let the winners down with only four base hits, fanning seven, and his efforts would have won almost any ball game.

The Falcons won their game in the third frame last night when they scored three runs on 2 hits, an error and a wild pitch. They added another in the seventh on a hit and an error.

The Stars accounted for their two tallies in the fourth session on a walk, their only hit, a double by Saunders scoring Squarebriggs and a wild throw to third letting Saunders home.

If the teams keep giving the fans the same calibre of ball as dished out in last night's set-to it won't be long before the league will be enjoying its former high standing.

SEA GULLS TAKE HARD FIGHT TILT BY A 6-5 SCORE.

We took the league-leading Sea Gulls twelve innings to win their game from the Ravens on the Hillsboro diamond last evening in an Eastern Section Industrial League tilt.

The game was by far the best of the season. The Gulls went into an early lead in the first frame when two timely hits by Coughlin and Lawlor scored two runners. The Ravens pushed a run across in the fifth, but the winners added two more in the sixth to make it 4 to 1.

Fighting all the way, the Ravens went on a batting spurge in the eighth canbo to score three runs and tie it up at four all.

The score remained deadlocked until the twelfth when the Ravens scored again going into the lead. The Gulls, sensing their first defeat rose in their might in their time at bat to tally twice, winning the tilt and keeping their string of league victories unbroken.

Both hurlers were in good form and were going as strong in the twelfth as in the first part of the game.

Challenger Wins Lightweight Title In Savage Battle

Canzoneri Loses Fight To 22-Year-Old Chicagoan — Decision Unpopular With Crowd.

(By Charles Dunkley, Associated Press Sports Writer)

CHICAGO, June 23—Barney Ross, blackhaired, slim waisted Chicagoan, waded through the merciless fists of Tony Canzoneri tonight to snatch the lightweight championship of the world from the New York title holder.

In the sweltering heat of the Chicago Stadium, Ross won the title in a savage, spectacular, close 10-round battle, so close that the officials did not agree on the verdict. Referee Tommy Gilmore, himself a former boxer, and son of an old time featherweight champion, voted in favor of a draw, while three judges Edward Hintz and William A. Batty, cast their ballots in favor of the 22-year-old Chicagoan on the closest of margins.

The crowd of 11,204, at first stunned by the verdict, expressed its disapproval in boos and hisses when Ross' right gloved fist was raised in victory.

Canzoneri, in whose custody the 135-pound title has rested since 1930, was amazed. He stood in his corner with a look of bewilderment on his face for fully two minutes. He had successfully defended his title in four previous bouts.

"The decision was the surprise of my entire boxing career, and I have had many of them," Canzoneri said, as his assistants stood by with lowering heads. "Honestly I thought I was so far ahead of Ross that I coasted in the eighth and ninth and did not extend myself in the 10th."

Sammy Goldman, Canzoneri's manager, characterized the verdict as an outrage.

Packey McFarland, himself a former contender for the world's lightweight championship and now a member of the Illinois State Athletic Commission, declared that Ross had won all the way.

Primo Carnera, who is to fight Sharkey next week, for the world's championship, held his hands above his head after a workout last Wednesday and said "These hands are my fortune." Poor old Primo had lost $200,000 in wildcat investments and is starting out to make another fortune.

Many of the sports writers are not taking the Italian seriously, but we have faith in him and believe that if he loosens up enough to give Sharkey one solid smack it will be good-bye to the Boston Gob.

Tonight Tony Canzoneri will defend his lightweight championship against Barney Ross. Barney was a former amateur but since turning pro has engaged in about fifty bouts and has beaten some of the greatest lightweights during the past year.

Next Friday night Jack Sharkey and Primo Carnera will fight for the world's championship at the Yankee Stadium, New York City. There does not seem to be nearly the enthusiasm generated as was the case when Max Baer and Max Schmeling fought a couple of weeks ago. Probably it needs the magnetic personality of Jack Dempsey to put pep into the match. Sharkey is an eight to five factor in the betting.

At the Ascot races recently completed in England the sum of $1,216,486.67 was bet by the public or the pari-mutual machines for the four days racing. King George had a winner and was heartily congratulated by Queen Mary.

At the same time Thomas Arundel Bourn, dour veteran of many a title fray, methodically pushed Tolley aside by the tight Scotch margin of one up in 20 holes. The two upsets astounded the gallery of 3,000 that swarmed the famous seaside links of the Royal Liverpool Club, expecting anything but the uprising of the old guard.

Scott put on a brilliant display to beat the slender little American who weakened just enough in the afternoon round to see a lead of two holes fade into a four-hole deficit and elimination before the veteran's inspired play.

An eagle three on the long eighth hole where Scott wangled his second shot within eight yards of the cup and sank the putt, brought the Scotsman even after an early two hole disadvantage, shook Dunlap's confidence, and provided the turning point of the match.

A great spoon shot gave Scott a half in the ninth and he quickly applied the finishing thrusts as Dunlap wilted. Scott took the lead with a par three at the 11th where Dunlap was short with his approach, halved the 12th, and then ran out the next three holes when the flustered youngster began missing short putts. A long putt dropped for Scott's birdie four on the 14th. His par on the 15th was good enough to give him his sixth hole in the last nine they played, and the match.

Neither Lucky Lindy nor Heathcote were up to anything approaching their best form at Northam, as is shown by the time made, 2:15, but they were pretty nearly on a par and the unsatisfactory result of the race will mean that the public will look to see them meet again, but preferably with other horses. Match races as a rule are unsatisfactory and often lead to nasty arguments.

Tyndie Semple had no trouble winning the 2:17 trot and pace with Star D. 2:09 1-2. This chap raced real well in 1931 through Ohio and Maine and now that Tyndie has had an opportunity to get him conditioned he should be a difficult horse to head during the present season in his class.

Mac Volo was a real pacer for Harry O'Brien, winning the 2:28 trot and pace in straight heats in easy fashion, best time 2:16 1-2. We always liked this horse and thought he was the makings of a high class pacer, believing all that was needed to fix him up was to either lengthen his toes behind or shorten them, as he was getting to his quarters, causing him to make breaks. Harry has evidently straightened out his shoeing and looks as though he will dominate the slow classes with the son of Roy Volo.

ALL-SCOTCH FINAL IN BRITISH OPEN

Two Favorites Fall Before Uprising of "Old Guard."

(Associated Press)
HOYLAKE, England, June 23—A bewildering twist in the annual battle for the British amateur golf championship brought defeat today to the twin favorites, Cyril Tolley, the massive Englishman, and George T. Dunlap Jr., of New York, leaving in their stead two Scottish country gentlemen to play 36 holes tomorrow in the final round for the historic trophy.

To the complete astonishment of both the gallery and the 24-year-old American youngster, the Hon. Michael Scott, 55-year-old scion of a famous family, bowled Dunlap over 4 and 3 in the semi-final round after the New Yorker had staged a remarkable parade through the early rounds to finally defeat Canada's C. Ross (Sandy) Somerville, United States amateur champion.

At the same time Thomas Arundel Bourn, dour veteran of many a title fray, methodically pushed Tolley aside by the tight Scotch margin of one up in 20 holes. The two upsets astounded the gallery of 3,000 that swarmed the famous seaside links of the Royal Liverpool Club, expecting anything but the uprising of the old guard.

Sport Briefs

Pete Kelly, formerly with the Mount Royals Hockey Team but now with the Abbies, was leading man in the qualifying round of the Golf Championships on Wednesday.

Con Amore, first choice for the Broomstick Purse at Belmont Park last Monday, was found "tampered with" on the morning of the race. Sponges with chloroform or some other stupefying substance had been placed in the nostrils far enough up that they were difficult to remove. The culprits if apprehended will be severely dealt with.

Jumping balloons are one of the latest inventions in sport. They have been tried out in Paris and are being used to some extent in the Bavarian Alps. The first trial was made in Paris at midnight. The bag was inflated and a jumper who undertook to jump over the Eiffel Tower, which by the way is 1000 ft. high, grasped the trapeze and said "Let her go!" Off he flashed through the darkness but did not descend as expected. There was too much gas in the bag and it did not exude enough so there was grave danger of his being landed in the River Seine or on to Havre. Fortunately he thought to stick a pin in the gas bag and down he came not far from his admiring friends who were waiting for him.

Primo Carnera, who is to fight Sharkey next week, for the world's championship, held his hands above his head after a workout last Wednesday and said "These hands are my fortune." Poor old Primo had lost $200,000 in wildcat investments

DOWN THE BACK STRETCH

Bud Axworthy, full brother to Lee Axworthy 1:58 1-4, has been retired from the stud for this year and placed in training at the MacKinnon Stables, Charlottetown.

Owner J. T. Waite of Summerside is anxious that he be given opportunity to demonstrate his speed. Always possessed of a superabundance of that article he has in the hands of various trainers falled through one cause or another to obtain a record, probably because of his over-anxiety when with other horses. His brother, Lee Axworthy, was probably the greatest percentage sire of speed that ever lived.

It is safe to say that the inauguration of racing at Northam under the white lights will cause talk and arguments until July 1st at least.

A good green trotter showed up at Northam in the named race. We refer to Doreen Aubrey by Colonel Aubrey, owned by Lloyd Sharpe of Tyne Valley. She is good gaited and seemed to have no difficulty with her field, winning the first heat in 2:22 3-4.

Neither Lucky Lindy nor Heathcote were up to anything approaching their best form at Northam, as is shown by the time made, 2:15, but they were pretty nearly on a par and the unsatisfactory result of the race will mean that the public will look to see them meet again, but preferably with other horses. Match races as a rule are unsatisfactory and often lead to nasty arguments.

Harry O'Brien is a very successful horseman and almost every year brings out a good performer from the Western end of the Island. Billy Cope 2:10 3-4 and Lucky Lindy 2:12 were both bred by Harry, who owned their dam, Nancy C. He has another good green pacer that turned for the word a couple of times last year and showed rare speed. We refer to Winnie Winkle.

Margaret Gratton 2:15, who has not raced for several years and is in her unlucky year, thirteen, took the thumps after the first heat of the 2:28 class so was drawn. She had not beaten 2:25 in her workouts and the clip was a little too fast. She was driven by her owner, Col. J. P. Hooper, M. C. This was the first time we have seen him in action as far as we can recollect since 1913 when he drove Miss Wrigley at Johnston's River track near Charlottetown.

Mike Jabblee is flourishing the greenbacks and demanding that the other Free-For-Allers put up $200 apiece or otherwise he will no race in the Free-For-All at North Sydney Dominion Day. Charlie Ballard says Yes for Nell Frisco and there is still Calumet Brown to be heard from.

What do you think of this? A man with a talent for getting horses in shape purchased Guy Reaper 2:09 for $10. for fox feed, changed his mind and decided to train him. That was two years ago. Last Saturday he won the first heat and established a new track record at Plainfield, N. J. of 2:12 1-4.

Guy Reaper was once a very prominent contestant in some of the largest stakes on the Grand Circuit, having won upwards of $50,000.

Charlie Gregor of Brackley Beach is having a lovely time with Chestnut Dillon 2:09 3-4, every evening taking him out and giving him road work or else stepping him on the seashore. He is said to be looking big and strong and feeling like running away. Do not be surprised if Charlie shows up at some of our meets and scores a win.
