Island Cadets Make Good

Mr. J. O. Hyndman, the President of the Prince Edward Island Division of the Navy League of Canada, has received the following letter from Cadet R. Buffett, whose home is at Souris, P. E. Island:—
Panama Canal,
October 5th, 1925.

Dear Sir:—
It is nearly eight months now since I left Charlottetown for Halifax to join the "Canadian Scottish" and have since then a great deal of the world since then. I can never thank you for the interest you took in getting me this position and will try and deserve it. I am getting on fine with my studies; we had an examination last trip and I passed with colors flying. We went to England and Scotland last trip and now we are bound for Montreal.
I do not suppose any more Cadets left the Island. They certainly miss something, and I think it is a fine life. We have a new Captain now and he is a fine man and treats us great.
I hope to get home some time in November, and be able to thank you.
Again thanking you for your kindness, I remain,
Yours respectfully,
Cadet R. Buffett,

Ex-Brewery Owner Defying London Slumland

LONDON, Oct. 16.—Protected by a bodyguard of two former gangsters and six amazonian young women, F. N. Charrington, wealthy East End social worker, is defying the threats of tough slumland gangs to stop the defection of their members to his private Salvation Army.
Charrington, now middle aged inherited one of the largest breweries in this beer drinking country. Its signs are to be seen throughout England; its beers may be drunk all over the British Empire.
When a young man, Charrington was passing a public house in a slum district and saw a fearful woman in the doorway begging her drunken husband for enough money to buy food for their children. Without a word, the man struck his wife, knocking her into the gutter and returned to his drinking.
Happening to look up, Charrington saw across the top of the building a sign "Charrington's Ales."
The next day Charrington began selling his brewery interests and he went on the "wagon" at the same time. He has spent time since then in the slums of London, urging temperance and practicing practical Christianity.
Part of Charrington's work is to visit the many public houses in the East End in an effort to better the conditions within them.

Reply to 'An Observer' Of Georgetown

Holy Trinity Church, Georgetown, P. E. I.

Sir,—With reference to your extremely instructive and highly amusing epistle in the Guardian of the 13th, contents of which have been duly noted, I wish to state as an example of a particularly offensive type of vituperation your letter is quite a success but beyond that little can be said for your literary prowess.

It grieves me to think that YOU "Observer" should be forced to adopt such an undignified method of hiding behind an anonymous name, like a cur, in order to slam Georgetown.

It is quite evident you have some further differences of opinion or grievance, (other than you have mentioned) with the town of Georgetown, and a straightforward declaration of same, face to face, with the Town Council and Women's Institute, would have been quite sufficient and would certainly have been better than the rather pitifully vulgar line of action you actually adopted.

Many citizens concur in your sentiments expressed regarding the roaming of cattle over the entire town, but I am given to understand by His Worship, Mayor Smith, that steps are being taken to prohibit a continuance of same.

The remaining paragraph of your letter nevertheless is so absolutely puerile that Georgetown can do nothing but ignore such advice to their well-being, as being the unfortunate result of a rather disagreeable derangement of a nose too stable mind.

Be a MAN "Observer," not a cur. Georgetown requires CONSTRUCTIVE criticism, not destructive criticism. Trusting that when, if ever, you attain a sufficiently lucid mental state, you will realize your regrettable lack of true "CANADIANISM" that of building, not destroying. I am, Sir, etc.

A. E. GRANT CROFTON,

IN MEMORIAM

MRS. KENNETH MATHESON

Surgical Knives Heal As Incision Is Made
NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Surgical knives which heal as they cut and prevent the flow of blood in an operation are among the exhibits at the electrical exposition at Grand Central Palace. The knives are heated by electricity and seal the blood vessels as the incision is made.
S. Davies Warfield, the railroad magnate, was talking in New York about the world's labor troubles. "On both sides," he said, "there are too many leaders whose notions about ending these troubles remind me of the little country visitor. 'She ran out of the spring house and said to the farmer's wife: 'Lady, there's a mouse swimming around in your biggest pan of milk.' 'Gracious!' said the farmer's wife, 'Did you take it out?' 'Nope,' said the visitor. 'I threw the cat in!'"
