

Walter Brown Wins Ice Pacing Tilt

Close Racing Features Opening Day Of Inter-Province Race Meeting

Winning three out of the five events in which Nova Scotia horses competed Island horses yesterday took a slight lead in races won in the inter-province meet which concludes this afternoon and indications point to another great day's racing as was the case yesterday.

But although Island horses topped the classes-won summary Walter Brown, Dartmouth-owned pacer, walked off with the major title of the day winning the Championship Pace from Halifax's Sully and Charlottetown's Bonnie's Boy in straight heats pacing the second quarter of the class in 30 seconds, the fastest time chalked up during the day.

But the winner had to be at the top of his form to pace off with the title. Sully, entering the race as favorite, appeared to be headed for a victory in the first heat only to have Walter come on in the last few yards and just nip Sully at the wire.

In the second heat it was again a battle between the two Nova Scotia horses but again Walter Brown outpaced the Halifax club's entry to win by half a length in another driving finish.

In the third and final heat it was only between the two visitors. Bonnie's Boy having been drawn out of the word, winning by an open length in the feature event of the day's racing that started in the morning and was resumed after the lunch hour but in the other five classes the big crowd of fans that thronged the course all afternoon in every heat, with extra seats before a winner was declared and in each instance it was an Island horse that came through.

Starts At 9 O'clock Today

Starting at 9 o'clock this morning the meet will resume over the course on East River just off the shooting range, and six more classes are lined up, headed by the long awaited championship trot between Charlottetown's Lustric, Dartmouth's Hill-Lee, trotters that have proven their worth by past performances. "Avon" Scott, who won the first Island victory yesterday when he came through in the fourth heat of the first three heats, "Royal Jim" put a different outlook in the outcome when he paced off with extra heat in the first heat to head previous in one of the closest finishes of the day, with "Maudie" winding up third due to a break.

In the second heat it was again between the two visitors, "Royal Jim" was up on even terms but a slight bobble cost him his chance of sealing his victory. Then "Maudie" came through to take the

G-O-L-F

One of the subjects which comes up most often for discussion in the Locker Room these days is whether or not golfers take too much time. Frankly, I think they do.

Tournament golfers have a certain obligation to the spectators, and those fellows who stand on the heads in an effort to look over and line up a shot, "surveyors" we call them, are taking too much time.

As I walk up the fairway I try to make up my mind what kind of a shot it is to the green, and when I reach the green, I am ready to make my shot if I am away. Around the greens I look the putt over and then I putt.

In baseball if a pitcher gets out on the mound and takes too much time the umpire speaks to him about it. If he persists in delaying the game the umpire can declare it forfeited. Maybe the delay is a rule like that in the books, but it is not enough to whip the slow pokes of golf into line.

I don't mean a player should run across the course and rush his shots. But he should realize that the longer he takes on his shots the longer he is making it for himself because he has to concentrate just that much longer. What's more, he's not being fair to the players playing with him and behind him.

What's more, if you are a spectator, you are taking too much time out to figure it, but concentrating on golf shots for three or four hours is mentally exhausting, and the longer you have to wait between shots the longer you have to concentrate.

Looking back through the records you will find slow players who won championships, but they weren't champions for long because eventually their deliberateness affected their game. Young players should learn to step up and concentrate over long periods of time won't affect their game as much as I can remember a time when my own game was slow, but I saw Walter Hagen and Gene Sarazen in an exciting match. I speeded it up, George Duncan, the mer British Open Champion and one of the fastest players in the game, used to say, "If you're going to miss them, miss them quick."

During the 1934 United States Amateur Championship at the U.S. Golf Club, Gene Sarazen called him on the mat and told him he was taking too much time. One hole this particular player's ball was to the right of the green and a poor lie and after changing clubs and walking back and forth to the green for about ten minutes he finally made a very poor shot. John Kieran, then a sports columnist for the New York Times, reports that a little tree grew up out of the hole while the player was delaying the game and gave him a name which was "The Tree of Delays."

Gene Sarazen, to my mind, is one of the fastest players in the game. I met Gene in one of the matches I played on my way to the 1945 PGA Championship. Gene is 44 years old, but he has lost none of his ability to play fast golf and we played the first nine holes in one hour and ten minutes. I still think even today Walter Hagen, Bobby Jones and Gene Sarazen could play 18 holes on any golf course in the country in two and one-half to three hours and turn in very respectable scores.

As an ex-caddy I can remember when we got paid by the hour. 20 cents for the first hour and 15 cents for the second. Some of those blokes used to play so fast to keep down the caddy fees that we had nicknames for them such as "Speed Demon," "Merchant's Limited," "Charley Paddock," etc. Maybe such a system would solve the traffic jams on the public courses today.

My advice to golfers is to speed up your play. I know by experience you will save strokes as well as time.

West Kent Team Garner Three Goal Lead In First Game Of School Finals

Outscoring their opponents 4-1 in the first two periods of play and then holding to a tenacious, West Kent School's hockey team last night captured the first game of the interscholastic finals and will carry their three-goal lead into the second and deciding game for the Hawley Crockett trophy scheduled for tomorrow night.

But the West Kenters had to show their best wares to come through with their victory. Summeride, dangerous every moment, fired the puck into the net for the first goal in the first period and Howard kept the puck in the net for the second goal in the first period and Howard kept the puck in the net for the third goal in the first period.

Fighting right back Summeride knotted the count at 2-2 when R. Gallant slammed in his own rebound and for the next few minutes action raged up and down the ice until Brown made the red light flicker for the winners' second goal, his lone shot from the left boards sagging the twine.

In the final minute of the period McGregor boosted W. E. Bevin's game to score with a waist high drive.

Summeride staged a game fight in the first two periods and were trailing by one goal as the final session opened but their defence was the last frame and Canucks broke through for a three goal spurge. Only brilliant work on the part of Charlie Brown prevented a higher score. In that third period Canucks outshot the blue shirts 12-4.

The Holy Padesmer All Stars announced last night that a challenge issue to the Holy Padesmer team had been accepted by the latter and that the All Stars would go to Souris today for a game to be scheduled to begin at 8 o'clock.

Charlottetown Collegians, the Island's challenge for the Maritime Junior hockey title, tonight will carry them on an airborne invasion of the Garrison City home of the much vaunted St. Mary's team—Nova Scotia Junior Champions.

Zero hour for the local hockey warriors is set for five o'clock when a chartered plane will carry the Maritime Junior hockey team to Halifax. A second plane will carry a number of local hockey enthusiasts to arrive back in the city early Friday morning.

A party of eighteen will make up the team quota on the trip including Coach, Johnny Squarebriggs, President, Father Cass, Manager, Gordon Bennett, and Club Physicist, Dr. E. S. Giddings. The boys will carry with them the best wishes of Island sports followers. Not since the days of the Junior Abbies and Royals has so much interest been manifested in any hockey series locally. It is understood the game will be broadcast from 9 to 10:30.

Coach Johnny Squarebriggs was reticent in his pre-game prediction. From all reports, emanating from the enemy camp, he was of the opinion that the Collegians will have to battle continuously, from both in sports locally is well understood in there to take advantage of any breaks that might come their way.

It might be just such a "break" that will decide the issue. Both teams have an abundance of offensive power as has been borne out well in their drive to the finals. It might be the ability and persistence of the power as has been borne out well in their drive to the finals.
