

Quick relief for acid stomach

Acid indigestion indicates too much acid in the stomach. The resultant misery will vanish readily if you take a little Bisurated Magnesia (Bismuth in Magnesia) after eating, to improve the over-acid condition of the stomach. This is better than relying on habit-forming laxatives. . . . At Drug Stores—in powder form, or in tablets for handy carrying.

Manifestations and meetings have been forbidden. Large factories likewise will be protected by soldiers, especially those in suburban communities, and Gentryville. Seven thousand soldiers — 14 battalions from 21 regiments commanded by General Neger and Benasco — moved into Paris all day to reinforce the normal Paris garrison of 100,000 troops under General Prelet, commander of the Paris region.

PARIS, April 30.—(A.P.)—A policeman was killed and many others and civilians were wounded tonight in the political rioting in Paris. Grave fears were held of possible outbreaks in Paris, where 100,000 troops and 30,000 police guarded the capital as the government prepared to deal sternly with Communist general strike tomorrow.

Fierce fighting broke out at Angers when a Leftist mob gathered outside a hall to protest a meeting of the Communist group sympathetic to the Doumergue Government. Members were injured in hand-to-hand fighting and a policeman died in his injuries soon afterward in hospital.

Ten demonstrators and three police were injured at Nantes in in-moment fighting which lasted until nearly midnight when the mob throwing crowds were dispersed. They broke numerous windows.

Oh, I've got an addition to the family.

OFFERED TO TRADE DRUG FOR COLONIES

MANCHESTER, England, April 30.—A German offer to exchange the formula of a valuable drug for her lost colonies was mentioned by Sir Leonard Rogers, distinguished authority on tropical medicine, in a speech here last night.

He said the Germans had recently discovered a remedy for sleeping sickness, and had offered it to Britain, but before the offer could be seriously considered French doctors had discovered a formula themselves.

The captains of industry are perfectly willing to have the Government assume control of any kind of enterprise, just so long as they aren't paying dividends.

SEARCH LAKE IN VAIN FOR DEAD BODIES

(C.P. by Guardian's Special Wire) KENTVILLE, N. S., April 30.—Lake Torment still held its dead of storm but its now calm waters refused to give up the bodies of three young Kentville athletes drowned on a Sunday fishing trip.

Day-long search for the bodies of Cecil Parks, Garnet Barkhouse and Hoyt at the mouth of the lake. Nothing had come to land except a few articles of water-soaked clothing and the canoe in which the trio set out on the windswept lake Sunday. The little craft drifted ashore near their camp four hours after the accident. The bodies of the three were not seen. Four other members of their party saw it drift in, and watched as the lake water yielded up a cap, a hat and a coat, all identified as worn by the three victims. But that was all. Scores of searchers went after the lake in boats today and more skirted its nine-mile shore for traces of the men. None could be found. Tomorrow, seven more boats will be brought to the little lakeside community of East Kentville from here, and grappling will be resumed.

Friends of the three, saddened by the tragedy, learned tonight how fate had brought the youths to Lake Torment Sunday morning though they had set out on a fishing expedition in the lower St. Lawrence, ten miles beyond the lake.

Ten miles from Lake Torment, their car struck a rut in the road, and the front axle was damaged. Temporary repairs were effected, and the machine limped as far as the lake. The three young men decided to end their journey, and soon they had set out on the boat trip that ended in death.

THE LIBRARY CAMPAIGN

Good progress is reported by the committee in charge of the Library campaign for the purpose of enabling Charlottetown to take advantage of the Carnegie demonstration library. There is still, however, some misunderstanding as to the purpose of the campaign, which is not for the purchase of books, but for the equipment necessary for the installation of the books. When this equipment is obtained, 4,000 books of the Carnegie Library will be placed free of cost in the Charlottetown public library, and patrons will also have the opportunity of access to the whole provincial library.

A SOUND POLICY

"An eye to the Future—An Ear to the Ground" is the arresting slogan which the General Motors Products of Canada has adopted in the advertisements featuring the Company's new cars, one of which appeared prominently on Monday's Guardian. It is not without pride that this automotive organization, the largest of its kind in the Dominion, points to the reputation for quality and satisfaction which has been built up over a period of years, culminating in the present two-fold policy of ascertaining, through thousands of customer questionnaires, what the Canadian public wants, and the checking of these suggestions with the ideas and designs of an expert engineering corps. The result has been the production this year of a line of six outstanding Canadian cars which are designed to meet to an extent hitherto unprecedented the wishes of the purchasing public.

SAYS SPRING FEVER MERE EXUBERANCE

BOSTON, April 30.—All this talk about spring fever is "bunk" says Dr. Frank H. Pratt, professor of physiology at Boston University School of Medicine.

"What is erroneously termed spring fever," he says, "is merely sudden exuberance, a sudden desire to get out of the house and enjoy a delightful change of climate, a welcome change in comparison with the inclement weather of the winter months."

"To fly through the country roads in a powerful car at night is to feel as if you had escaped into another world," says a writer. And perhaps to find in the end, that you actually have.

frightened, he said and both occupants of the sleigh were thrown out. The witness stated Furness had purchased the liquor in Richibucto. He told of chasing the horse, but could not find it and returned to the scene of the accident. He could not find the horse. Let us go to the home of Frank Richard, and after repeated attempts had been admitted into the home about 4.30 o'clock the following morning. He could not vividly recall the happenings of the night but stated that after being admitted to the home he was awakened the next morning and then walked to his home at Richibucto Cape. When he learned that Furness had not arrived, he telephoned to Rexton and Richibucto but could not locate him.

Richard swore that he and Furness had never quarrelled and that he had never written the letter to his wife in Charlottetown, and which was read to the jury when empanelled. The letter was to the effect that Furness had had trouble with the contractor of the lighthouse being built at Richibucto Cape.

George Daigle, contractor for the lighthouse, in his evidence to the coroner's court, swore he had never had any trouble with Furness, who he had always found to be a most agreeable man. He could not account for the letter Furness had written to his wife, stating that he had been run over by a horse and that he had threatened to punch Furness.

Other witnesses who gave evidence today were Pascal Daigle, son of the contractor, who told of meeting Richard at Richibucto on the day of the accident and of having a couple of drinks with them; Herbert LeBlanc, who told of Furness and Richard calling at his hotel in Richibucto where they had one drink, so far as he knew; Mrs. Frank Richard, who told of Richard coming to her home about 10.30 on the night of the accident, but that she did not let him in, at that time, as she was alone in the house with her children and did not know who was at her door. However, she did admit Richard about 4.30 in the morning, she said. To her knowledge Richard was not intoxicated, but was wet and cold, and covered with mud; Edgar Fagan, who told of seeing an object in the falls near the bridge at Peters Mills, and of assisting police and others take the body from the water.

In his remarks to the jury before adjournment, Dr. Forbes declared that from the evidence it would appear that far too much liquor had been consumed and expressed as his opinion the affair was the result of a drinking bout. The evidence submitted, indicated there had been no trouble insofar as Furness and the contractor were concerned and no light was thrown on why Furness should have written to his wife of any trouble.

Sixteen Dead In Rhodes Riot

(C. P. by Guardian's Special Wire) ANKARA, April 30.—Sixteen were reported dead and 30 wounded following a riot in the town of Salakos, in the Island of Rhodes, which occurred today during a municipal election, according to information received here.

Troops were rushed to the town in motorboats, while several Italian cruisers, near at hand at the time, stood by in case of emergency.

As recently as April 17 the town of Salakos figured in the news when 10 men were killed in an election day clash. Italian police were reported to have intervened. Italy denied that police had a hand in the rioting, claiming the deaths had occurred during a fight between two peasant groups.

By the treaty of Sevres, Rhodes came under Italian sovereignty in 1923. The population of the island is 32,000 with the greater majority Greek. Most of the others are of Turkish origin.

COMMUNISTS

Determined to stage a demonstration, 100 men were marching the 70 miles tonight from Amos to Rouyn, Que., after police kept them from making the trip by train. Parades and speech-making were expected to mark the day at Toronto, Montreal and possibly other cities but police were to be mustered for any eventuality.

The day seemed likely to be quiet in Great Britain. But in Paris 10,000 troops, with machine-guns, tanks, and cannon were mobilized to say the industry will be ruined, in order to say 30,000 police preserving order. Communists called a general strike in protest against civil service pay cuts. Military units reinforced police in Havana as a precautionary move. Red signs were put on public monuments and buildings with the legend, "To the street on May 1—Communist party."

In Austria agitators were sent to jail. Police combed sewers in search of suspected bombers. Socialists and Extremists in Madrid called a general strike; Extremists in Barcelona promised the "reddest" May Day in Spain's history.

All demonstrations in Jerusalem were banned by authorities who feared clashes between members of the Zionist Revisionists and the General Federation of Jewish Labor. In Brussels and Malines 10 Communists, among them nine foreigners, were arrested and charged with plotting to raise a revolution against the government. In New York 1,700 special police will be on duty to guard against violence when 200,000 Communists and socialists are expected to participate in parades. Communists in Chicago scheduled marches converging in the heart of the city, and police were warned to prepare to put down any disorder.

burgh, Pa., a union war was planned for explosions of four bombs in theaters, which did $19,000 damage.

CHICAGO, April 30.—The hunt for John Dillinger and his crew centered in Chicago once more tonight after one of three officers disarmed by the marauders in an early morning encounter identified the gang chief as leader in the brief skirmish.

"It was Dillinger, all right," Policeman Harry Wayland said as he rubbed a bump raised on his head by his assailant. "I've studied his photograph enough to recognize him when I see him. He has shaved off his mustache."

Wayland, cruising with Lieut. Joseph Hagneister and Patrolman Gus Nendze, picked up the trail of the fugitives' car as it raced down a road west of the city. Apparently believing they had distanced their pursuers, the four gunmen put in at a filling station. With a cuffed "give us some gas in a hurry," the quartet believed to include George (Baby Face) Nelson, Harry Fox, and either Homer Van Meter or John Hamilton stepped out.

The police car screamed to a halt and the officers jumping out were confronted by the gang leader. A machine gun in his hands, he spat out: "Stick 'em up." The policemen were stripped of their weapons. Then the one identified as Dillinger, without provocation, smashed Wayland over the head with the muzzle of his machine gun. Two bullets whistled harmlessly into the darkness as the officers sprawled on the ground and the nomads swept away.

Meanwhile, ramification of the far-flung effort to eliminate the Dillinger desperado damped in Texas, where a gun dealer who confessed dealings with the Dillinger outfit was arrested.

has not done credit to itself. Certainly there are details, many of them, that must be brought forward and considered. But it is nonsense to say the industry will be ruined, in view of the fact there is scarcely one (mine) that was not in operation before gold rose appreciably."

In Canadian funds, gold was selling for $25 an ounce a year ago and $35 today. Mr. Stevens noted: "Will mining men tell me or anyone else who knows anything about the matter, it will ruin the industry to take a portion of that? The thing is absurd."

NEW WORLD PROBLEMS

A new social and economic order had been evolved since the war, said Mr. Stevens, continuing the budget debate. There were vast international cartels extending into Canada, high trade barriers, countries staggering under war debts and industrial mergers. "Old shilliboths, such as the law of supply and demand, buying that we may sell and tariffs for revenue only, will not extricate our own or any other country from the embarrassing entanglements into which our trade has been drifting because of the operations of these new and potent factors."

New conditions merited new policies. In Canada since the war there had been a tendency to merge financial and industrial organizations, Mr. Stevens noted. The depression had checked that trend but between 1922 and 1929 there were 120 mergers affecting 500 separate companies in the pulp and paper trade, biscuits, dairies, flour milling and bakeries and public utilities.

In international trading today, it was not alone with governments that arrangements had to be made. Canada might be willing to sign a trade treaty but the steel cartel might insist on setting prices which steel could be sold in Canada and no other government had any way to block it.

During the years when the Liberal party was in power and earlier "most favored nation" treaties had been negotiated with some 23 countries. That meant, Mr. Stevens said, that the moment Canada made a trade agreement with one foreign country its concessions immediately and automatically applied to 23 other countries.

"The honorable member who is opposition critic (Mr. Ralston), said all we need do is give a 'quid' for a 'quo'." Mr. Stevens went on: "But there are 23 other countries to chew on that 'quid' in addition to the country we give it to."

Whether it was a good thing or bad to have those treaties, the Minister said, "this doctrine of most favored nation treatment constitutes a distinct impediment to our trade with other countries."

Mr. Stevens had a word to say about trade balances. It was an old declaration, but nevertheless true, he declared, that a debtor country could not be greater than its imports. He decided the opposition financial critic for his remarks on this phase of the budget picture. In a country that was creditor to many of the countries of the world it was natural that imports should exceed exports. Canada was in the other category and could exist with a surplus of imports over exports only so long as her borrowing power lasted.
