Man Devotes Life Raising Flowers for Needy Sick

MUSKOGON, Mich., Oct. 17.—Believing that the greatest service any person can give to his fellow man is that of spreading cheer and happiness, A. H. Allen, the largest producer of gladioli in western Michigan, has consecrated his life to the raising of flowers for free distribution to hospitals, charitable institutions and public buildings in order that he may extend his message of human kindness to all who look upon his offerings.

About 15 years ago Mr. Allen became imbued with the idea of serving humanity. Always a lover of flowers, he decided to use them as his medium for showing his love for others.

The Allen farm has 11 acres devoted to the culture of gladioli. During the flowering season the tract is a riot of every color and color combination conceivable.

"The sight of flowers is the greatest tonic for persons who are ill or discouraged that the world ever has produced," Mr. Allen said. "I have proof that flowers do speak a language of gladness. Every morning when I come into Muskegon with an armful of flowers strangers speak to me on the street. After I have delivered the blossoms and am empty handed no one pays any attention to me. It was the flowers that the strangers spoke to before."

On the Allen farm this year are 120,000 gladioli bulbs in blossom. The grower is at work on several new varieties, several years being required to develop a new species.

"John," whispered his wife. "I'm convinced there's a burglar downstairs."

"Well dear," replied her husband, sleepily, "I hope you don't expect me to have the courage of your convictions."

How to Keep a Child Healthy

A GENERATION ago parents thought that sickness was a part of a child's life, but we know better now. The secret is in the food the mother allows the child to eat, and in watching that elimination occurs regularly two or three times a day.

Geologist Describes New Iron Ore Dug in Minnesota

(United Press.)

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 17.—Minnesota is producing a brand new iron ore, according to Prof. George M. Schwartz, of the department of geology, University of Minnesota. Three hundred tons a day of the new product is going to Detroit for use in the manufacture of a widely known automobile.

Magnetite iron bearing rock has been known to exist for many years in Northern Minnesota. Dr. Schwartz explained, but it has been impossible to call it an ore because it could not be smelted by any simple process. The magnetic concentration process, introduced by an iron company on the Mesabi range in northern Minnesota, however changes the rock into a true ore, capable of being smelted, and it is on this account that it is now considered a new ore.

This magnetite rock is found in huge beds at the east end of the Mesabi range and has limitless possibilities of development, according to geologists and miners at the Minnesota university. The concentrating machinery that is being used was invented some years ago by E. W. Davis, superintendent of the mines experiment station at the University of Minnesota.

"The magnetite ore being used at present," Dr. Schwartz declared, "is found on the part of the Mesabi range which lies east of the town of Mesaba. The pit of the Mesabi Iron Company is near Sulphur Siding, at a new town called Babbitt. This part of the range is usually known as the East Mesabi, and extends from the town of Mesaba to Birch Lake, a distance of 20 miles. It was in this area that the iron formation of Minnesota was first discovered, but on account of the absence of rich ores, it received little attention until recently."

A policeman, noted for missing no chances, said to a prisoner as he was leaving the dock after having just been sentenced to six months: "Excuse me, but do you want to let your house while you're away?"

Black Dinah went up to the booking office clerk and said, "Isc wanna ticket for Florence, sah."

"Where's Florence?" asked the weedy clerk.

"Sittin' over dar on de bench," said Dinah.

A Multitude Of Women Recommend It

The strongest recommendation possible for any medicine to have is the sound testimony borne by the vast multitudes of women who have used it. It has been proved that 98 out of every 100 women once ill with ailments that caused suffering and despair have been restored to the joy of health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. This marvelous record shows its power over the ills of women and the letters of recommendation we are continually publishing in this paper should induce every ailing woman to try it.
