They're Scarce—
So Make the Most of Them

AMONG the foods we've all had to go easy on are Jell-O and Jell-O Puddings. So when your grocer is able to let you have some—s-t-r-e-t-c-h them with one of the many clever Jell-O recipes. Here are two—you'll find others printed on the packages.

JELL-O APPLE BOB
1 cup red cinnamon candies
8 small apples, peeled and cored
1 package JELL-O, any flavor
2 1/2 cups hot water

Dissolve Jell-O in 2 cups hot water. Chill until slightly thickened. Pour over apples in sherbet glasses. Chill until firm.

This recipe makes your Jell-O go twice as far—and remember that you still get all of Jell-O's famous quality and delicious fruity flavor.

Ralston inspected the troops and took the salute at the March Past. Col. Ralston complimented the men on their appearance. Major Robertson and Lt. J. J. McDonald, D.C.M., accompanied Col. MacKenzie, devoted member of Saint Joseph's Sodality, and of the Sodality Choir, where her cheerful presence will be greatly missed. It is, however, in her beloved home, where by her thoughtfulness and devotion she ever radiated joy and happiness, that her passing will be keenly felt. Her beloved Mother, her sister, Marie, and her only brother, Fred, have the sincerest sympathy of all who had the privilege of knowing Hilda.

Her funeral took place from her home on 72 School Street, on Thursday morning, September 24th, to Saint Dunstan's Basilica, where the High Mass of Requiem was sung by the choir. Father Wilfred McCordie, who also conducted the service at the grave. The beautiful hymn "Miserere Mei" was sung by the choir. The pallbearers were: Messrs. James McPherson, Charles Harty, William Well, John Durant, Connie Leclair and Harold Hood.

"To meet in Heaven, how sweet the thought,
When life's short years are past,
No more to weep, no more to part,
To meet in Heaven, around the throne
Of Him who died to save;
To meet in Heaven, with anxious care,
To meet beyond the grave."

Plant These Crops Now in Victory Garden

carefully for fall sowing. It is a good thing to spade or plow the whole garden, turning under any compost or manure which is obtainable, to replenish the supply of humus in the soil. This fall preparation will make spring planting easier and earlier, and will also improve the mechanical condition of the soil next spring. Rains will penetrate deeper, and frost action will help mellow the soil. Spinach should be sown late, but before the ground freezes. It is not intended that the seed shall germinate this fall; but that it shall lie in the ground through the winter and sprout in the first favorable weather of spring.

Spinach is a cool weather crop usually the first to be sown by market growers in the spring. It must be grown and harvested before hot weather arrives, and fall planting often gives it a start of several weeks.

Select the modern heavy-leaved types to sow.

The main requisite for an asparagus bed is deep rich soil and ample root room for each hill, giving plants 3 feet of space each way. Rhubarb roots should be set out now. A dozen plants will be sufficient to provide an ample supply for the average family, and they will last a lifetime with little care. New varieties of rhubarb which are characterized by pronounced red coloring in the stalk, are now popular. They show improvement in tenderness and flavor over the older types.

Whether your Victory garden is made in the south or north, there are some vegetables which can be planted this fall. How long the list is determined by your location. In the cold weather states, where the ground freezes deeply, there are both perennial and annual vegetables which can be sown this fall to advantage.

The perennial vegetables, including asparagus and rhubarb, may be planted now. A crop too seldom grown by amateurs is winter perennial onions grown from sets which if planted now will give green onions for the table before the ground can be spaded for spring planting.

Two of the early spring vegetables can be conveniently planted in the fall. These are leaf lettuce and spinach, waiting until the last minute which the ground can be worked and then covering the rows with a mulch until frost is out of the ground in the spring. While leaf lettuce usually is held over until spring and comes quickly enough sown then, cold-time gardeners used to sow it in the fall and reap early lettuce from these early seedings.

The ground must be
