All members of the cast turned in first-rate performances as they portrayed the adventures of young Barry Hollis, a millionaire "play-boy" whose amorous adventures kept him in "hot water" throughout the play until the happy ending when he finally eluded various "gold-diggers" and found true love in the person of Ann Furber, his butler's sister.

Exceptionally good performances were given by Margaret MacLennan, who had the part of "Linda", and Peter MacDonald in the role of Barry Hollis, with Aletha Saunders who portrayed the young actress "Ann Furber".

Between the acts Mr. J. L. MacAulay kept the audience entertained with his version of Harry Lauder's "Boys of the House". A comedy number "Behind the Parlor Door", and the old favorite "Mother Machree".

IN COMMITTEE - The Legislature spent practically all yesterday afternoon and evening in committee on various bills, including amendments to the Dairyman's Association Act and the Milk Producers' Act.

policy on questions that come before the Legislature, but as the promoter explained, the plan in the House and the Government is going to do, but we wish to place a law on the statute books so that we can appoint a Minister of Reconstruction if it becomes desirable. It might be a full time job and it might not. Besides that, the war plan is to have a Minister of Reconstruction appointed, and as when we formulate plans, we will be pleased to give them to the House.

Cities Liberal Pledge - Mr. McPhee: "This makes the matter worse. It was bad enough when the promoter—who is trying to strike the role of a strong silent man in the House and is becoming just a silent man, takes this uncommunicative attitude. It was worse when the Premier supported him."

Mr. Hughes: "We are securing the legislative authority to do so." Mr. McMillan: "Are you going to establish a Ministry of Reconstruction, or once this legislation is passed?"

Mr. Hughes did not reply. Mr. McMillan: "Do you think a Department of Reconstruction is necessary?"

Mr. Hughes: "I am promoting the measure seeking authority to establish it." Mr. McMillan: "Do you think it is necessary?"

Mr. Hughes: "I believe so." Mr. McMillan: "When you do intend to establish it?"

Mr. Hughes did not reply. Mr. McMillan repeated his question.

Mr. Hughes: "A Government makes their intention known either on the floor of the House or by their action. I think in this case the intention of the Government will be known when it acts."

Only a Gesture - Mr. McMillan: "In other words this is only a gesture. The promoter, speaking for the Government, is establishing a committee at a nominal charge. They can find out what is the reconstruction programme of the Government and they can obtain printed reports of the discussion of this committee at a nominal charge. They can find out what is the reconstruction programme of the Government and they can obtain printed reports of the discussion of this committee at a nominal charge."

Hon. J. A. Campbell: "Did the Dominion Government form a policy of reconstruction?" Mr. McPhee: "Does the hon. member suggest that the Dominion has no policy on the subject?"

Mr. McPhee: "That is the worst answer I can come from the Government yet." Mr. McMillan: "We are passing this Act so that we can make a plan."

Mr. Saville: "You have got to give a Minister before you can give him anything to do." Mr. McPhee: "There would be something for him to do before you appoint a Minister to do it."

Mr. Heath Strong: "How much salary are you going to pay this Minister?" Mr. Saville: "I wouldn't know anything about that. (Laughter)"

Mr. McMillan: "Will the promoter answer this question: Is this department going to become operative during the war?"

Mr. McPhee: "It will be in such a position that if the necessity arises it can be made operative." A Barmecide Feast

Mr. McMillan: "In other words the Government is preparing a Barmecide feast. They are going to put legislation on the statute books that they do not know anything about. I wonder if this promoter has ever spoken at a public meeting about several times the other day in his budget speech. If the Minister of this Department should come over to the other side of the Legislature into their full confidence, if the Government has a policy in reference to this matter, it is its duty to enunciate it."

Entirely Undemocratic - "The attitude taken by the promoter is entirely undemocratic and entirely wrong. It is an attitude that will be disapproved of by every member of this House if they don't disapprove of it, then they have no conception of the meaning and function of democratic institutions. We are certainly entitled to know what the intention of the Government is in respect to any legislation. It is an insult to the members of this Legislature, that the promoter should come here and simply refuse to answer questions which are put to him respecting proposed legislation involving matters of public interest. It is so far from being a large expenditure of public money. We surely have a right to know what the attitude of the Government is, so far as an act of this nature is concerned. It will oppose this bill until we know something about it."

Hon. Mr. McMillan said the member from Gardigan was "making a mountain out of a molehill." A good deal of the discussion he thought, was out of order. It is quite true that the Government should state their

Government "Touchy" On Officials' Efforts To Influence Policies

PREMIER JONES WARNS AGAINST REPETITION OF TACTICS ALLEGEDLY EMPLOYED IN SANATORIUM EXTENSION CAMPAIGN

Complaint that undue pressure through government employees had been exercised in obtaining government sanction to the Sanatorium extension scheme was voiced in the Legislature Wednesday by Premier J. Walter Jones.

Speaking in the budget debate the Premier said government employees were used to "persuade" the government after the Women's Institutes and other bodies had been lined up. "We are a little touchy about that, and if the Government employees don't keep out of government affairs which tend to influence government policies, then they might find themselves out of a job."

Dr. McMillan: "Do you claim that as political?" Premier Jones: "I don't think the public has any right to use government employees for the influence of the government."

Dr. McMillan: "It is right to keep your civil servants out of politics?" Premier Jones: "We do as far as we can. We haven't had any particular complaints about them. I say 'particular' complaints."

Opening Remarks - In his opening remarks the Premier quoted the Opposition leader as complaining that there was "no meat on the Budget"; that it had taken him four and a half hours to deal with it.

He recalled earlier days when he had taught school at $225 a year plus a $10 supplement. He became, as head of a grammar school, he received $300 plus $36 supplement. He contrasted this with the salaries now being paid.

Reference had been made to a newspaper account of his career completed at the time he became Premier, in which it was stated that his family had contributed $5,000 to help win an election in 1927. He said that as to his credit, because I was rather against it," Premier Jones said. "But I didn't have much to say about it."

He expressed the Minister of Public Welfare (Mr. Hughes) for organizing a health committee which sat regularly and had relief claims investigated by old age pensions officials. In all cases where relief money could be spent properly, it was spent, he said.

He referred again to the report of the food and nutrition committee which met at Hot Springs some months ago. He had obtained copies of this report for the members, and he recommended that they study it carefully.

Reference to the shortage of doctors in rural sections, the Premier said this Province is making scores in the field in which we are ahead of other provinces. The Premier in rural sections, the Premier said this Province is making scores in the field in which we are ahead of other provinces.
