Weeping Eczema relieved by "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

For three years I suffered with weeping Eczema on the back of my hands. I consulted our family doctor and other physicians, but all the treatments and salves prescribed gave me no permanent relief.

When baby came, I was afraid that he too would be affected. I had practically considered my case hopeless when I started to use "Fruit-a-tives" and "Sootha-Salva."

This marvelous fruit medicine helps the bowels and kidneys to rid the system of waste, and cleanses the blood stream so that the pure, rich blood soon heals the itching, inflamed skin.

Play Scout Ball

Everybody admires a good sportsman. All of us like to be considered good sportsmen. And we like to believe that Canadians as a whole are all round good sportsmen.

But have we reason to be sure of that? The criticism has been made that we have lost much of the spirit of true sportsmanship through the influence of baseball, particularly the established baseball habit of attempting to "razz" the visiting pitchers, the "razzing" of home players who make errors the baiting of umpires, etc.

What has been your own experience at baseball games? Have you not many times heard the crowd howl mockingly when some player doing his best, tumbled a ball, or at some exciting moment made a misplay? And have you not frequently heard a crowd, when a home pitcher, previously heroized has lost control, yell angrily and derisively, "Take him out! Take him out!"

It is an unfortunate fact, however, that this spirit is seldom shown by baseball crowds. And the attitude seems to have crept into the rest of our sport. At rugby, soccer, and hockey games, decisions which do not favor the home team are frequently booed and hooted.

As to Canadian athletes themselves, their present day standard of sportsmanship is as high as one could find anywhere. While such things as "making" good men, and "putting" them out of business, has not been unknown, this has been greatly diminished during recent years, and today our boys generally play the game straight, accept the rulings of the referee, and take their knocks in good temper.

Here is another example of the same kind. Some fifteen years ago the tennis team representing England against the United States in the world championship Davis Cup tournament included the famous Doherty brothers. In one of the singles matches one of the brothers was given a point for a ball which he saw cut the back line, instead of clearing it. On the next play he deliberately allowed his opponent to score a point. He would not accept an advantage which he did not think he was entitled to, even when the point had been given him by the judge of play.

After these stories let us read the paragraph from a newspaper account of one of the world series baseball games of this year between Washington and Pittsburgh: "Stanley Harris showed a nifty piece of baseball strategy when he ordered Johnson to pass Meadows (the Pittsburgh pitcher) in the third. The he-specified tosser was paraded to first, with one down and was forced to run the paths when Moore hit into a double play. This effort evidently had its effect on Meadows, for he cracked in the fifth, and four singles three of them in a row, netted the world's champions a pair of counters."

Washington won that game as a result, not of the ability of the Washington players, in a straight test of skill, to hit Meadows, but as a result of tiring him by "chasing him around the bases."

Here is another Canadian college story, an incident of the kind you would like to have taken part in. Last year Queens and Varsity were playing the deciding game of the rugby championship at Toronto. Queens was two points in the lead. Varsity apparently had a chance of scoring Batstone of Queens one of the most brilliant rugby players of recent years, had the sole tort from his shoe. According to the rules this did not stop the game; Batstone would go off, and a substitute be sent in immediately, however, Captain Snider of Varsity ordered the game halted, and waited until Batstone could replace the torn shoe and return to the line-up. And Queens won the game and the championship.

The test of sportsmanship at games is not always confined to those out on the field. Some eight years ago during the Maritimes intercollegiate rugby final between the University of New Brunswick and Mount Allison, the deciding play was an apparent victory for N. B. came with a run and touch-down during the last few minutes of play. There was a question, however, whether the runner had not stepped over the side line. The linesman, Greg Peeney, of N. B., was appealed to—and declared that the runner had stepped over. This meant the nullifying of the score, "down" nullified the point of running out. In the tension of the moment, the N. B. team and its supporters gathered excitedly about the linesman. "He stepped over. What else could I say?" Peeney insisted. The ball was brought back, and N. B. lost the game by a narrow margin. But that fact and the score of the game, will be forgotten long before Greg Peeney's example of courageous good sportsmanship in a trying situation.

This is the kind of good sportsmanship that is expected of Scouts. Let me make sure that we always play the game that way—and even if the fellows we are up against don't "play the game." Mount Allison University has earned a fine name for good sportsmanship among the Canadian Maritimes colleges. A few year back their rugby team was playing against another team not at any noted in the event. As the game began going against them, the other team began using unsportsmanlike methods. At once from the Mount Allison supporters came the cry, "Play Mount A. ball boys! Mount A. ball!" That is, "Play square and allow no matter what the other fellows play."

Let us in our sports make a point of always playing "Scout ball." And let us set that kind of examples of good sportsmanship when we are among the onlookers. Of course you will want to see your school or home team win—that is perfectly natural—but never allow yourself to wish to see it win except on its merits, and when playing the game fair and square. That is Scouting in sport. Let's always play "Scout ball."

Singer Wants Free Schools of Music for Poor Children

LILLIAN MORTON

Pal of my cradle days, I've needed you, all ways, Lillian Morton Hopes Some Day to Endow Such Institutions New York City.—A plea for more and better free musical education for children with talent is voiced by Lillian Morton, well-known singer in vaudeville.

On behalf of the Central Royalty School Fair, I wish to extend a hearty welcome to the parents and children as well as to all visitors who are assembled here today.

When we think of the opportunity of making you an appointing me to the honorable position.

On the strength of it, she got her vaudeville job and kept it, winning notice almost at once.

They teach domestic science and typing at vocational and technical schools for girls but do not usually bother with musical courses," says Miss Morton.

ITCHY ECZEMA ALL OVER FACE

In Pimples and Blisters. Healed by Cuticura.

"Eczema broke out in pimples and blisters and spread all over my face. It itched and burned causing me to scratch which made it worse. I could not sleep on account of the irritation, and could hardly talk because the sore eruptions were all around my mouth. The trouble lasted several months.

"I tried everything I could get but nothing helped me begin using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and got relief. I continued the treatment and in about eight weeks I was completely healed." (Signed) Wm. J. Romanchuk, Samburg, Ontario.

POLITENESS

Someone has quaintly remarked that politeness is like an air-cushion, there is nothing in it, but it eases the joints wonderfully. There is a great deal of truth in the remark, and it should make each of us endeavor to cultivate the excellent trait or virtue of politeness.

When we are prone to forget the "little courtesies that go to form true politeness, let us remember about the air-cushion and proceed to attend to them, for if not we may go a little further and add that if politeness is like the air-cushion, then kindness (which Drummund quotes as love in action) may be likened to an air bed, or pneumatic tire, which makes the cars roll smoothly over the rough roads.

Many of us remember a rhyme—written in childhood: "Little deeds of kindness, little acts of love, Make this world an Eden, like the Heaven above."

ECONOMY

WITH coal at present prices, it is certainly folly to burn it in wasteful stoves or poor, inefficient furnaces. The New Gilson "Magic" Tungsten Plate Furnace gets more heat units out of a ton of coal than any other heating system ever devised.

A new type of grate burns the fuel around the outer edges where it is transferred to the air quickest. A new patented Air Blast burns the gases and smoke and soot before they escape to the chimney. This new furnace, in fact, brings fuel economy to startling heights. It saves the last half of your coal bill! Costs less to buy, less to install. Gives quicker, cleaner heat. Made in Pipeless and Pipe styles in sizes to suit any home, store, church or school.

GILSON "MAGIC"

The ONE PIECE Furnace Built of Tungsten Plate. No need to delay. I can put a Gilson "Magic" in your home for a small sum and give you twelve months to pay the balance. Before the cold weather comes—get this economical, efficient heating system installed.
