INVESTMENT IN FOXES

animals which a company owns and as to having an experienced keeper of proven integrity. Not every fox on Prince Edward Island which a company can buy is of the strain from which one single skin sold in London in 1910 as high as $490 and another as high as $540. Moreover, real knowledge of

THE ART OF BREEDING

is still comparatively rare, and not more than two or three dozen men are very skillful at the business. Given due regard to these facts, and it is not difficult to figure a profit for investors unless the bottom shall drop out of the fur business altogether. That such an occurrence is highly unlikely, everyone agrees.

A bank of high standing on the island states that there is reasonable ground for believing that it will be a long time before enough high-grade silver pelts are placed in the market to materially affect pelt prices. The great fur merchants of London, Lampton & Company, are creditably informed, believe also there is no prospect of the market being affected in the slightest degree from this source, and J. Walter Jones, whom the Government regards as an authority declares that they are not over 10,000 silver foxes in captivity in the world, and that probably not more than half of these are of really good quality. Thus the possibilities of over-production are, for years at least, remote. The opinion of good judges is that even when the market for furs does become more discriminating, the best stock of foxes will command even better than present prices.

For the present, there is opportunity for better profits from fur raising than even the high value of the pelts affords. The demand for is so keen, and the supply of it so relatively meager, that foxes sell for from four to eight times their fur value. For the last year or two, few of the Prince Edward Island pelts have been shipped abroad, only the sick or aged animals being slaughtered. All others have been saved for breeding. There seems to be every prospect that all of the young of 1914 will also be sold, as breeders and many of the 1915 brood as well. The change back to pelt values will come eventually, but those well informed expect it to come gradually, not suddenly. Even then, it will come probably only for inferior stock and not for the best strain of blood.

Let it not be forgotten by prospective investors that underneath the whole business lies one great fundamental fact. The world's demand for furs must steadily increase, while the wilds where hunters and trappers can obtain furs must yield steadily less and less. During the past twenty years, the production of all the more valuable furs has fallen by fifty per cent. The effect of this diminishing supply, in the face of a growing demand, is seen in a general advance in values, during recent years, from 200 to 300 per cent. That the world must turn from the pelts of the wilds to furs raised in captivity is a perfectly obvious fact.

The prime requisites for success in the fox industry are really valuable foxes, a reasonable capitalization per pair, a capable and experienced caretaker and honest management. Given these, and the investment is a promising one. The history of the industry, up to the present time, as a conservative banker writes, has given a large percentage of profit.

SPORTING NEWS

INDOOR BASEBALL

Two more games in the indoor baseball league being conducted by the Fourth Regiment were played at the Armouries last night, in the presence of a large number of spectators. In the first game the Signallers went down to a decided defeat by the Gunners of No. 4, who, though playing only five men, beat their opponents to the tune of 21 runs to 20. Stanley "starred" for the winners with the fine score of 9 runs. Altogether too much of the reprehensible practice of questioning the umpire's decision was indulged in during this game, and it is high time the players take note of the fact that besides being unsportsmanlike, to question the umpire's decision smirks of squealing.

The score by innings:—
Gunners No. 4 3 4 4 2 7 8—31 runs
Signallers 1 2 3 1 5—20 runs
Another signal defeat was scored in the second game, the Officers being properly trimmed by the N. C. O.'s of No. 3, who played a rattling good game. Trainor, of the N. C. O.'s, made two splendid catches at left out-field, while Howatt pitched excellently for them holding the officers right down. The fielding of the Officers was extremely poor; they need a great deal of practice. Stanley went in to pitch in the fifth innings and after the N. C. O.'s had made ten runs off him, retired to the wood pile, where his holocaust some disappointed adherent of the Officers suggested should have taken place.

The score by innings:—
N. C. O.'s No. 3 9 0 0 3 10 9—81 runs
Officers 0 2 1 0 3 1 2—9 runs

BASKET BALL.

The first game of basket ball of the Intermediate Church League, which was played at the Y. M. C. A. last night, was a fine specimen of clean, fast and good wholesome sport, and was enjoyed by a fair number of basketball enthusiasts. The friendly rivalry was as follows: (for the Anglicans) Chas. Carbonell, Fred Lane, Reg Lane, Robert Acorn; (for the Methodists) J. Johnson, Bruce New. The game resulted in a victory for the Anglican boys, the score being 9 to 3. The Methodist boys are more beginners, but made a good showing throughout the game, and took their defeat like men, according to their victors three hearty cheers at the conclusion of the game. L. W. MacMillan, P.D., handled the game to the satisfaction of both teams.

The next game will take place on Thursday evening, when there will be a "double header", Grace v Baptist, St. James v Zion.

BOWLING TOURNAMENT.

In connection with the Church Athletic League being conducted under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., another interesting competition has been arranged—a bowling tournament for seniors. The rules and fixtures of this tournament are as follows:—

Each church will enter five men to compose its team. There may also be one "spare man" to each team who must be named but need not be entered, he to take the place of regular players when they are unavoidably absent.

The team whose scores total the highest in the entire tournament will be the winning team and each member will be awarded a prize.

The individual whose scores total the highest will be awarded a prize as the best bowler.

The individual who makes the highest score in a game during the tournament will be awarded a prize.

Members and contributors of the Y. M. C. A. will pay 75 cents to enter and those who are not members or contributors will pay $1.50 for the tournament. This will pay for:

- a. The games.
- b. The prizes.
- c. A supper which will be served when the prizes are awarded.

Games start at 7.45 o'clock every if but one man is present. Absentees will be credited 100 points, or if they start in the game late they will be credited 10 points to the frame up to the time they start in, when their actual score will be counted.

Two games may be rolled in each contest if time permits.
