Enormous Crowd Witness Lord Mayor's Show

LONDON, Nov. 10.—Educational progress throughout the ages was the feature of today's brilliant pageant in the annual Lord Mayor's show given by Sir Kynaston Studd, London's new chief executive.

In strong contrast to the sombre weather when King George opened parliament on Tuesday, Sir Kynaston had a flood of brilliant sunshine when he made the age-old progress through the streets from the Mansion House to the law courts to be presented to the Lord Mayor.

The Chief Justice, who had brought enormous crowds from the suburbs to witness the great pageant.

Gog and Magog, giant figures, closely connected with legends of the ancient City of London, today made their appearance for more than 250 years in the pageant of the Lord Mayor's show.

Modelled by students of the Polytechnic Institute, London's great popular educational centre of which Sir Kynaston is president, the figures were copies of the statues in the Guildhall. Each is fifteen feet high and ten Polytechnic students acted as legs for each image. When the figures left the Polytechnic Institute in Regent Street they were too large to pass through the doors and had to be lowered from the roof by a crane.

Designed as the chief feature of a mile-long procession of pomp and splendour, Gog and Magog of the Lord Mayor's parade were destroyed in the great fire of London in 1666, after which new effigies were made and placed in the Guildhall.

A score of bands, symbolical floats, tableaux, the ancient livery company, marching territorial, of military guard.

Deaf Hear Again Through New Aid

Earpiece No Bigger Than Dime Wins Enthusiastic Following Ten-Day Free Trial Offer

After twenty-five years devoted exclusively to the manufacture of scientific hearing-aids, the Canadian Acoustical Co., Toronto, Ont., has just perfected a new model of hearing aid that represents the greatest advance yet made in the re-creation of hearing for the deaf. This latest Acousticon is featured by a tiny earpiece no bigger than a dime.

Through this device, sounds are clearly and distinctly transmitted to subnormal ears with benefit to hearing and health alike. The aid is a completely free trial for 10 days to any person who may be interested, and a letter will bring one of these remarkable aids to your home for a thorough and convincing test. Send them your name and address today!

CHRISTIANITY'S RIVAL FOUND IN SECULARISM

New Archbishop of York Reviews Findings of Jerusalem Conference. Statesmen Must Heed

(By Dr. William Temple, Bishop of Manchester, Archbishop-Designate of York)

People who allow themselves to be frightened out of reading the Report of the Jerusalem Meeting of the International Missionary Council, held earlier this year, because it occupied a very big mistake. No doubt some of these eight volumes are of more general interest than others, but every one of them are contributions to the study of their subjects, so vital that statesmen as much as missionaries will have to attend to them.

The statesmen of the spread of Industrialism, given in the South America, given in the beginning of the volume on that subject, brings together more material bearing on that subject than will be found anywhere else. In the same volume, Mr. R. H. Tawney gives an admirable exposition of Christian principles in this regard, and Mr. Grimshaw of the Native Labour Office at Geneva, describes the way in which modern industry overturns the ordered life of primitive people.

In the same way, the volume on the race conflict is indispensable to a real understanding of the present phase of the greatest problem of the near future, except that readers must remember that the statesmen of the Coloured Peoples would not be so temperate and free from bitterness as they were made by men yet not to Christianity.

The volume on education provides another instance of the way in which the deepest spiritual truth carries with it other kinds of truth; it shows how the latest recommendations of modern educationalists, based on the recent development of psychology, are anticipated in the actual practice of our Lord. This volume is full of wisdom for teachers of other subjects as well as of religion.

REUNION OF VETERANS IN LONDON

Four Hundred Canadians Who Fought in C.E.F. Dine Together at Armistice Day Reunion.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—Four hundred Canadians who served with the Canadian expeditionary force during the Great War, gathered at an armistice day reunion dinner here last night.

Sir Arthur Currie, who was commander in chief of the Canadian forces in France, looking much better after his recent illness, contracted while in London, had a specially warm welcome. Others who attended were Field Marshal Plumer, Major General J. F. B. Seely and Major General Victor Williams, Commissioner of the Ontario provincial police.

A telegram was received from His Majesty the King thanking the gathering for its loyal message despatched previously and wishing those in attendance a pleasant evening.

Viscount Peel, who recently toured Canada with the delegation from the Empire Parliamentary Association, spoke of the trip in a humorous vein. Members of the delegation, he said, were all pretty good hands at extolling the merits of their own country. He gave the Australians the palm for this, but said the South Africans ran them a close second and the New Zealanders were severe competitors of both.

"I have never before been in a country where the people were more accustomed to their own statistics than Canada," Viscount Peel continued. "I gave the palm to the mayors of the cities who met us with figures of street mileage, length of drains and who told us to a dollar the cost of the city hall."

Field Marshal Plumer told his impression of Canadians gathered from those who fought under him during the war.

"They inspired me with a confidence which lasted the whole of the campaign," he said. "The real cause of the success of our operations was the spirit of co-operation which permeated all ranks and units."

Viscount Byng, at one time commander of the Canadian troops in France, and former Governor General of Canada, who is in his second day as "common man" and had to attend the Lord Mayor's banquet, found time to look in late and receive a very hearty greeting.

WINTER CARE OF SUMMER BULBS

Bulbs of gladioli and tubers of dahlias ought to be dug and put in storage as soon as the frost blackens the foliage of the plants, not to do them no good to remain in the ground for further freezing. The gladioli gives no trouble in the way of winter storage as it needs only to be stored in a dry, frost-proof place. Dahlias, however, are a different matter.

When they are dug the stalks should be cut off close to the cluster of roots and they should be placed roots upward in the sun to permit the sap to drain from the hollow stalks. Do not allow them to stand outdoors over night, as the frost will injure them. Take them under cover as soon as the stems are drained.

Many experts store the roots upside down in order to be certain that no supply of moisture remains in the stem root, upward. They may be stored in sand, dry earth or peat moss, which is much preferred for the purpose. The most practical method for the average gardener is to store them in boxes or hollyhock with soil. It is a good idea to store them roots upward for a time until they are thoroughly dry, after which they may be reversed, when it comes time to plant them, the sprouts will be found to have made a complete turn toward the light and it is well worth the trouble. It is seldom altogether safe to plant them out in the North and Central states before the middle of May. But if sprouted no time is lost.

The roots may be divided about April 1 or a little later and planted in pots or boxes and started into growth to be set out as soon as the weather is safe. This will start the dahlias in late July or early August and give a long enough season to make them worth planting.

Many gardeners have given up growing dahlias because their season of bloom is so short. This is because of late planting in spring and early frosts in fall. Sprouting in the house will give a substantial season of bloom and is well worth the trouble. It is seldom altogether safe to plant them out in the North and Central states before the middle of May. But if sprouted no time is lost.

FIND CHRISTIANITY UNIQUE

Perhaps the most valuable volume for the general reader is the first or all, which deals with the Christian life and Message in relation to the non-Christian religions in reasonable comparison. The presentation of the values found in other religions and systems, so that we may relate Christianity to them at their best. It is perhaps rather new that an official missionary gathering should in this way seek to set forth the non-Christian religions in their points of excellence. Whether it is new or not, it is a manifestation of the true Christian spirit; and in this volume there is an opportunity of understanding the hold which these systems have upon their adherents, such as will not be easily attained through any other means. But there is no weakening of the central Christian conviction; rather it is true to say that the sincere attempt to appreciate the other religions only emphasizes the supremacy, uniqueness and universality of the Gospel.

TRAGEDY ON ALTA. FARM

(Canadian Press)

EDMONTON, Alta., Nov. 11.—Mrs Annie Kerpachyn, 23, her son, Mike and one half and infant child, KATIE, were burned to death on their farm in the McRae district near St. Paul on Thursday evening according to a report which reached the Alberta provincial police headquarters.

AIRMAN ON SOUTHERN EXPEDITION

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Nov. 11.—Sir George Hubert Wilkins is sailing south from this port on the Hektor for a new conquest of polar regions by airplane. The Australian airman and explorer, who last summer started the world by flying across North Polar regions from Alaska to Spitzbergen, is headed for Deception Island. There he will establish a base for expedition by air of large spaces of the Antarctic.

While these present plans were uppermost in his mind he had under consideration the feasibility of future exploration in the region by submarine. He thought that trips under ice-fields and icebergs would not necessarily be dangerous and pointed out that during the world war submarines were frequently navigated under ice in Scandinavian and Finnish waters.

Such an underwater exploration would not be undertaken for a long time, he said, when he hoped the British Government would come to his aid. He expected to return from the present expedition in March and then during the following season return to establish weather stations in South Polar regions.

While it is possible for a man to achieve happiness, few are fortunate enough to do so.

Loosen Up That Cold With Musterole

Have Musterole handy when a cold starts. It has all the advantages of grandmother's mustard plaster without the burn. You feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief.

Made of pure oil of mustard and other simple ingredients, Musterole is recommended by many nurses and doctors. Try Musterole for bronchitis, sore throat, stiff neck, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, croup, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pains and aches of the back or joints, sore muscles, sprains, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest. It may prevent pneumonia and "flu."

Stamped from a single sheet of metal, a base for old or rotted poles has been patented by an Okla. homa man.

It has been estimated that 500,000,000 colds are contracted each year.

Life looks rosy for him

Health worth more than fortune

THE baby to be envied is the one who is born with an inheritance of perfect health, to begin with. And who's lucky enough to have a mother who knows how to build up this fortune.

"Perhaps I'm old-fashioned," she'll say to the doctor who pronounces her child physically 100% at a baby show, "but this health certificate means more to me than all the stock certificates in the world. If my baby grows up strong and well, I'm willing to leave it to him to make a career and fortune for himself."

"Already I'm teaching him the value of regular habits. Regular sleep, regular meals, regular functions. He's never once been off schedule, not even when he was cutting teeth or traveling to the country. I make sure of that by giving him Nujol regularly."

Nujol works so easily and naturally that it won't upset a baby under any conditions. It keeps everything functioning properly. It not only prevents any excess of body poisons (we all have them) from forming but aids in their removal. It is safe and sure. Nujol was perfected by the Nujol Laboratories, 26 Broadway, New York.

Just try Nujol for your baby. Give it to him regularly for the next few months. See if it doesn't make things much easier for both of you. Certainly it could do no harm—for Nujol contains no drugs or medicine. Your druggist carries it. Be sure you get the genuine. Sold only in sealed packages.

The Fate of Burns' Victim

Dr. Hornbrook

Readers of Burns will be interested to learn that a couple of letters written by the poet and only recently made public throw some light on the satire "Death and Dr. Hornbrook" says the Toronto Mail and Empire. It was composed in the spring of 1785, when Burns lived at Mossiel. The poem satirized was a brother Freemason at the St. James' Lodge in Tarbolton, one John Wilson, the parish schoolmaster or dominie, who besides keeping a general store, had some smattering of medical knowledge, of which he was very vain. Burns perceived here material for mirth and Wilson became Dr. Hornbrook, from the hornboud books then in use. In the satire Death is shown striped of all his powers by the dominie. Death in fact became far less deadly than his rival and lament.

"Where I killed ane a fair strae death
"E' loss o' blood or want o' breath
"This night I'm free to take my aith
"That Hornbrook's skill
"Has clad a score i' their last claieth
"By drap and pill."

Beyond the identity of Hornbrook with Wilson little has been heard of the schoolmaster. A correspondent of The Times writes that two letters sent by the poet to his victim disclose the full effect of the satire. These letters have remained for more than a century in the possession of Wilson and his heirs and have never been exhibited to any outsider. They show that "Death man as his choice for the premier and Dr. Hornbrook" ruined the place in Canadian poetry.

MEMORIAL PROPOSED TO CANADIAN POET

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 10.—Arthur Stringer, novelist and poet, whose literary career commenced in newspaper work in London, speaking to the Canadian Club here today, proposed the erection of a memorial to Archibald Lampman, one of Canada's greatest poets, at Lampman's birthplace, Morpeth, in Kent County. Dr. Charles G. D. Roberts, who had been an adviser to Lampman, heartily endorsed the proposal, and he presented Bliss Carter, who was his choice for the premier and Dr. Hornbrook" ruined the place in Canadian poetry.

In Memoriam

One year ago today, the children of Mrs. Joseph C. Manderson, of Hamilton, were called upon to mourn the passing of their beloved mother. In the fullness of time, God called her home.

Angelo, saintly, loving, forbearing, forgiving, compassionate; it was seeing that the holy should come on Sunday, God's will day.

The keynote of her life was love. She gave to us not the material things that wealth can buy, but had gone before. She taught us to see the beauty in common things, to see Heaven in a flower, God in a weary drop of dew. We learned from her that every thing worth while is a gift from the beneficent God. Her banner over us was love.

She has left us a rich heritage—her beautiful philosophy of life, her optimism, her faith, her joyousness, her ability to see good in, and to help the most miserable of God's creatures. Every life that touched hers was enriched by the contact. She was a one who walked with God.

Mother, dearest heart of love, we miss you, we love you and we expect to keep you.

For life is ever Lord of death, and love shall never lose its own."

1912-11-11.

MRS. JOHN T. POOLE

The subject of this obituary was born in New Perth, P. E. I., on May 24th, 1859 and was therefore in her 70th year at the time of her decease at Salisbury, N. B., on October 18th, 1928.

Mrs. Poole's maiden name was Jane Thomas. In 1879 she married John Thomas Poole of Roseneath. Soon after marriage Mr. and Mrs. Poole purchased the well-known mills at Woodville, Kings County in this Province. There they resided, attended by marked prosperity, till 1909, when, retiring from active work, they removed to Lower Montague, and a year or two later to Hazelbrook, Cardigan where he secured the comfortable home previously owned by Mrs. (Rev.) Gunn. In this home Mr. and Mrs. Poole enjoyed the fruits of a life of toil and good management, till about six years ago when the husband passed away suddenly, much esteemed and deeply lamented by a wide circle of relatives and friends. From that time till her death Mrs. Poole lived with her daughter Mrs. (Rev.) Ernest S. Weeks except for one winter spent in Victoria, B. C., with her son.

Five children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Poole of whom only two are now living, Ernest E., President of "The Poole Construction Co., Ltd., Regina, Sask., and Mary E., wife of Rev. Ernest S. Weeks, pastor of the United Church of Canada, Salisbury, N. B. One sister, Esther, wife of J. F. Jenkins, Millview, P. E. I., also survive.

During the early Autumn, Mrs. Poole who had not been in the best of health for some time, accompanied her son to Regina in the hope that the change might be beneficial. It was not to be however and two weeks after her return to Salisbury she passed peacefully away. On Monday, October 22nd at 4 p.m. a funeral service was held in the United Church of Canada, conducted by Rev. Ernest S. Weeks, N. B., and Rev. John W. O'Brien, St. John, Institute connections of the family, assisted by Rev. I. E. Vanwart, Baptist pastor of Salisbury.

The remains were accompanied by Rev. Ernest S. Weeks to Cardigan on Monday night, and were placed in St. Andrew's Church, at which the "Poole family" worshipped for many years. On Tuesday afternoon

LAWRENCE THE MYSTERIOUS

(From the New York Evening Post)

Lawrence of Arabia is one of the most glamorous and certainly the most mysterious figure which the war produced. It was entirely in keeping with his quixotic character that he should refuse all reward for his services to the allied cause. His mysterious cause, the record of his experiences in Arabia, the obscurity of the British Army in India. He followed no law but that of his own eccentricity in his obscurity doubly sure by being a man who has made a deep impression upon a romantic world inevitably becomes a legend. If we are not permitted, at least for a time, to follow the course of his life, Lawrence could not hope to disappear without a mysterious cause for countless tales of his appearance in the most remote and obscure of the one he once filled. We have learned that he was the agent of the British Government in its negotiations with the Sultan, the king of the fanatical Arab mission in the Punjab. Now the story is that in the guise of a Moslem saint he is spying upon the Bolshevik agents of Northern India. The most recent tale is probably no more true than the two previous reports reported to be. But so long as Lawrence of Arabia, Shaw, is known to be alive he will be constantly reappearing in this mysterious way.
