MOTHER-IN-LAW TO GIVE EVIDENCE

(Canadian Press)
 PLYMOUTH, Mass., Oct. 17.—Mrs. Virginia Harrison was called by the prosecution today to tell about conditions in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Jessie May Eaton, charged with the murder of her husband, Rear Admiral Eaton, by giving him poison. Mrs. Harrison said her daughter manifested hysterical tendencies at times towards her husband. The witness had spent much time in her daughter's house and said she considered her son-in-law always a gentleman. Her daughter believed the admiral dabbled in drugs and was insane. Mrs. Harrison could see no signs of these things. She had seen the admiral intoxicated but never detected signs of drug habit. She first noticed the admiral's final illness on March 6, before he touched the roast pork which Mrs. Eaton claimed was the cause of the attack.

RESPIRE FOR YOUNG MURDERER

QUINCY, ILL., Oct. 17.—Assured that there is no possibility of his mounting the scaffold tomorrow, which is the day fixed by the court for his execution, Ray Pfanschmidt, the youthful murderer confined in the Quincy jail, was in unusually good spirits today. The appeal of his case to the higher court acts as a stay of the death sentence and it will probably be six months or more before a final decision is reached. Pfanschmidt's crime was one of the worst of its kind ever committed in Illinois. On September 27, 1911, he murdered his father, mother, sister and a young school teacher residing at his house. The next night he burned the house to conceal his crime. A desire to inherit an estate was the motive ascribed for the quadruple killing.

26 LIVES LOST IN AIRSHIP ACCIDENT

(Canadian Press)
 BERLIN, Oct. 18.—A disaster in the air involving the destruction of another Zeppelin dirigible and the loss of twenty-six lives out of twenty-seven on board occurred this morning near the Johannisthal Aerodrome when the new dirigible "L-11" was making her trial trip before acceptance into the main unit of the aerial fleet, attached to the German navy. Many causes are advanced for the explosion. One is that an old gasoline was carried or that a spark of atmospheric electricity developed friction by the balloon nets rubbing together.

TWO MEN DROWNED FROM CUNARD LINER SERIOUSLY HURT BY RIFLE BULLET

(Canadian Press)
 NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Two members of the crew of the Cunard Line steamer Ivernia were drowned today, as the ship was entering port from the Mediterranean. One man jumped overboard, the other was lost when the rescue boat fell from the Davits.

THEFT OF TICKETS FROM P. E. I. R. Young Man Convicted.

The case of Chester Stanhope, who was charged with the theft on Monday of three tickets for Winnipeg from the office at Charlottetown, of the P. E. I. Railway was concluded at the City Magistrate's Court yesterday morning. His Honor Stipendiary Martin convicted the defendant and, giving full value to the plea of drunkenness urged on the defendant's behalf, imposed on him a fine $50 with the option of three months' imprisonment.

MORE EVIDENCE

On the case being resumed, in the presence of a large number of interested people, further evidence was led for the defence.
 Mr. Harry McKay, ticket agent at the Summerside railway station, stated in reply to defendant's counsel, Mr. A. A. McLean, that he knew the defendant by sight. The defendant was to provide him with a photograph he had taken of the trolleys at the station; witness was to be shown the proof on the defendant's return from Charlottetown.

In reply to Mr. A. McDonald, who appeared for the prosecution, he said that the photograph was taken about ten days ago. There was another man with the defendant at the time, and he thought that it was the other man who took the photograph. He had been five years in the employ of the railway.
 Is it the practice to have people go into your ticket office?—No.
 Do you allow them into the ticket department?—Well, not as a rule. In some cases I may.

Is there any rule or order about it?—You are not supposed to do it.
 The defendant was recalled. He was examined by his counsel as follows:
 You were instructed by me to search your pockets for the missing ticket, were you not?—Yes.
 Did you find it?—Yes.
 Where was it?—In the torn lining of this overcoat I have on now.
 Have you got it there?—Yes.
 His Honor:—When did you find it?—Last night.
 The defendant produced the missing ticket, No. 533.

Mr. McLean:—Did you search your pockets in the Court here?—I tried all the clothes I had on, but I did not have on this overcoat. I searched in Summerside two or three times but I did not search this coat; I did not have a chance until last night.
 Mr. McDonald:—Is that the coat you had on at the station at Charlottetown?—Yes.
 Is that the one you had on when you went to Summerside?—Yes.
 The ticket-agent, McKay, was recalled and was asked by Mr. McLean:

Did you see the prisoner search for this ticket in Summerside?—I asked him to search and he went through his pockets looking for the tickets. He told me that as far as he knew he did not know anything about No. 533 at all.
 Did he seem anxious to get the ticket?—Yes, as far as I know, he appeared to be anxious.
 Would you say he made an honest effort in searching?—I would say that he meant what he was doing as far as I know.
 His Honor:—You would say he was searching in earnest, would you?—As far as I know I would say that.

Prisoner's counsel then obtained permission to recall his client, who desired, he said, to make a little statement on the witness stand.
 Mr. McLean:—Were you ever under arrest or in jail before?
 Witness:—No, sir.
 Were you ever charged with any crime?—No, sir.
 And you are willing that your record should be investigated?—Yes, sir.
 You have got a clean calendar, then?—Yes, sir; a clean sheet. I never was in jail before.
 This closed the case so far as the evidence was concerned.

ADDRESS FOR THE DEFENCE
 Prisoner's counsel then addressed the Court. He said that he must admit that the defendant had committed an indiscretion; was guilty of an indiscretion. But with regard to whether there was any criminal intent, he thought there was ample evidence to show that no crime was intended. The evidence of the defendant and two witnesses who had been examined went to show that the defendant had been drinking for two or three days, two days at least, before the taking of the tickets. It was true that drunkenness was no justification under ordinary circumstances for the commission of an offence, but to a certain extent it would go to ameliorate the sentence if the man were found guilty of a criminal act. Mr. McLean quoted from an authority on criminal law as follows: The rule is that if drunkenness be contracted voluntarily it should not relieve a person of the responsibility of a criminal offence committed by him in a drunken condition. Still if the act be one which must, in order to render it a criminal offence, be done with some particular intent of evil, that it has been done when the offender is in a state of intoxication should be taken into account in deciding whether he had such intent or not. Counsel further submitted that in a case of that kind they must look at the intent with which the defendant took those tickets, and the question must be asked: Did he take them with any criminal intent? Counsel presumed that the man knew as well as any one else that those tickets were of no value unless they were stamped and punched; the evidence was that they had not been so punched and dated on the backs, so that they had really no commercial value when they were taken. He contended that the defendant's subsequent actions showed that he was not guilty of criminal intent. The man showed the tickets to Bowser and others, and he had told the Court that the next day after he had discovered the tickets he went down to the railway station with the intention of giving them back, but the policeman was there and he finked. It was a well-established general principle that the absence of a criminal offence was the evil or wrongful intent with which it was done. That applied to theft as well as to any thing else. He did not think that there was anything in that case, except the taking of the tickets itself, to show that the defendant was guilty of evil intent. When they found the man delivering up the tickets as soon as he was asked for them, and searching for the missing one which had got into the lining of his coat, finding it and also giving it up, he thought that that dispelled sufficiently any evidence of evil intent, and showed that he was not really technically guilty of any criminal act. Defendant was a young man, twenty-five years of age, and counsel supposed he had done wrong in taking all the liquor he had taken; it was the cause of disgrace falling on him, because he had been disgraced by reason of his being arrested; his friends had suffered through that indiscreet act of his. But that he was guilty of any criminal intent in taking those tickets counsel did not think the Court could and (Continued on Page three)

ONLY THEN REMEMBER

There will be some excuse for not insuring, only. When the wife no longer becomes a widow. When the orphan ceases to cry for bread. When poverty and want are unheard of conditions. When the mortgage on the home is never foreclosed. When old age and a competence are lifelong companions. When debt shall cease to be a burden and sheriffs are unknown.

Until these conditions get control of human affairs there will be no excuse especially while the CANADA LIFE stands ready to take care of these conditions.

Mr. and Mrs. John McEachern, Water Street, were at home on Wednesday last to a very large number of friends, the occasion being their golden wedding anniversary. Congratulations were showered upon Mr. and Mrs. McEachern and every good wish extended for their continued health and prosperity. Those assisting at the tea hour were: Mrs. Crosskill, Mrs. Newbery, the Misses Newbery and the Misses Crosskill.

Mrs. Frost, Haviland Street, has issued invitations for a Bridge party for Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Rogers, Government House, has had as her guest during the past week Mrs. Thompson of Picton. U. with Mrs. Rogers as President, Miss Bird McNutt, First Vice-President; Miss Ethel Stewart, 2nd, Vice-President; Miss Mary Irving, Secretary; Miss Edith Rogers, Treasurer; and Miss Pearl Stewart and Miss Winnifred Cairns as a musical committee.
