"GOOD BUSINESS PRACTICE is the basic essential of GOOD PUBLIC RELATIONS"

No business can have permanent success if it does not pay its way in service to the community.

No business can be of genuine service to the community unless it is understood by the community.

At the recent annual meeting of the Bank of Montreal, the president, B. C. Gardner, said:

"I hold no brief for any concern that, in this day and age, operates without regard to the public interest. Good business practice is the basic essential of good public relations.

... at a time when opponents of private enterprise are vigorously spreading the idea that a well-run successful concern must ipso facto be a social menace, business must tell its story more completely, and in terms more readily understood by the man in the street, than it has done in the past."
