Three Of Welsh Quadruplets Dies

BRIDGEND, Wales, Jan. 7.—(CP)—Three of the quadruplet children born here today to Mrs. Peggy Thomas died tonight.

The only one still alive was the first born, a girl.

Mrs. Thomas, who five times previously had become a mother, walked into hospital before dawn today expecting to give birth prematurely to a single child.

Two hours later the news spread like fire through the factories and farm valleys of Glamorganshire, that the one-in-a-million chance had occurred—little Mrs. Thomas, 29, had given birth to quadruplets, two boys and two girls.

Tonight the story was told how two 28-year-old nurses, Nora and Nesta Thomas delivered the babies themselves because there was no doctor about.

The quadruplets, Iddal, visiting his wife—the "Merch Fach" they call her in Welsh, meaning the tiny woman—and had a peek at the babies, who were being fed glucose-water through a pipette. Then he hurried home to tell his older children, two girls and a boy, all about it.

Another child, a girl was killed three years ago in a traffic accident. The fifth died in infancy.

Hospital authorities gave the quadruplets a slight chance to survive.

Annual Pelt Show Dinner Last Night

The annual banquet of the P.E.I. Fox Breeders and Exhibitors' Association was held last evening at Leo Coyle's Olympia Tea Rooms.

Mr. Douglas Bell, Judge of the show thanked the Association for the honor of being appointed judge for the third consecutive year and expressed his opinion that the pelts on display this year were of a higher quality than last year.

Mr. George A. Callbeck chief inspector of the Canadian National Silver Fox Breeders' Association dwelt on the present condition of the fur industry and reminded the foxmen present that every dollar of Canadian money that goes into the industry stays in Canada and it is therefore a very important industry to Canada.

Mr. J.W. MacNaught, K.C., M.P., said he realized that the fox industry was going through a critical stage at the present time and pointed out that all industries are at one time or another subject to conditions such as these.

Mr. Walter R. Shaw, Deputy Minister of Agriculture reminded the foxmen present of their responsibility to solve their own problems. He pointed out that the foxmen look too much to the Government of the country to solve their problems and not enough to themselves.

Other prominent foxmen who gave valuable advice to members of the industry were: Mr. L.W. Hancock and Mr. B. Graham Rogers, who pointed out the fact that the industry had survived many depressions in the past and expressed faith that it would do so in the future.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Oatway and little son Bobbie of Kingston, Ontario, are visiting here with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Oatway.

C. S. Woolworth's Rags-To-Riches Career Ends At 90

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 7.—(AP)—Charles S. Woolworth, whose rags-to-riches success story carried him from a $6-a-week job as office boy to a millions of dollars enterprise in the five-and-ten-cent store business, died today at the age of 90.

While it was his brother, Frank, who conceived the idea of a store dealing only in nickel and dime merchandise—"nothing over 10 cents"—was their early slogan—it was largely Charles' persevering success both of the five-and-ten-cent store concept and the far-flung F.W. Woolworth Company empire.

Taking in the late Fred M. Kirby of Wilkes-Barre Pa., as partner, the Woolworths founded the F.W. Woolworth Company in 1912. Frank served as board chairman until his death in 1919 when Charles took over the post from which he retired in 1944.

The Woolworth Company today reported its sales for 1946 totalled $522,355,364.

Charles' Summer Woolworth was born Aug. 1, 1856 on a farm at Rodman, N.Y., the son of John and Fannie McBrier Woolworth. He began his long career in the merchandising business at a dry goods store at Watertown, N.Y., where he swept floors.

Eventually, he was promoted to manager of a branch store at Copanah, N.Y., where he and Frank met Kirby.

Woolworth received only a public school education and spent his boyhood assisting his father in farm work in New York's Jefferson County.

He contributed much of his time and money to charitable Scranton enterprises, most notable of which was the $400,000 Prait-Woolworth Young Men's Christian Association building.

ROSE VALLEY MISSION BAND The Rose Valley Star of the East Mission Band met at the home of Mrs. James Dixon, Dec. 14th. The President, Edna Todd, presided.

Meeting opened by singing Jesus Loves the Little Children. Scripture taken from Psalm 121 was read by Roma MacLean. The Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison.

The story "The Beggar" was read by leader, Miss Lulu Champion. Reading by Freda Keating "The Boy Who Helped Jesus, Hymn 51. O Little Town of Bethlehem was sung. Roll call was answered by seven members and 11 visitors.

Minutes of last meeting were accepted as read. Reading by Allan MacLean "Baby Jesus was Born". Reading by Alberta Todd "Carol and Harry". Reading by Shirley MacLean "Gentle Jesus". Reading by Lorna Keating "The Beautiful Garden". This being the annual meeting
