Devotional was led by Alecia Jenkins and closed by singing the hymn "Fling Out the Banner"; Elsie Castrod was in charge of the Study. Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. Roll call was answered by thirteen members. Offering amounted to $86. Mrs. Davison invited the next meeting. Study, Verna Turner. Devotional, Mae Robinson, Lunch, Jean Downe and Verna McInnis. Roll call to be answered by "a verse by Paul." The president suggested that the Guild go to Sunset Lodge for next meeting. Guild closed by repeating the Covenant in unison, after which refreshments were served.

ENJOYABLE VALENTINE PARTY - A very enjoyable evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Prowse, Brackley, on Feb. 14th when about 45 friends and neighbors gathered to enjoy a Valentine party, and a presentation for Mr. and Mrs. Glen Newson. Mrs. Guy Pierce in her very capable manner called the meeting to order, while Glen and June were escorted to the living-room and presented with a well-filled purse in a valentine, to which Glen very fittingly replied. After singing "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows," a lovely cake donated by Mrs. Leslie Prowse, was lotteried off and won by Glen Newson. A guessing contest on a bottle of beans was won by Mrs. George Jackson. Cards and croquette were then enjoyed by all. After prizes were awarded, a delicious lunch was served by the ladies. A nice sum was also realized to help swell their Institute funds. At a late hour all departed for their homes thanking Mr. and Mrs. Prowse for the use of their lovely home. - (Patriot Please copy).

Longevity Candidates

By Uncle Joe MRS. JAMES MACINTYRE

On Saturday, Feb. 12, your correspondent spent a delightful half hour in an interview with Mrs. James MacIntyre, West Royalty, who has reached the ripe old age of 102 years.

Although my arrival was quite unexpected to find this wonderful old lady sitting in her comfortable living-room as spry and span as though she were expecting a person of some importance. With her were her two daughters, Mrs. Hugh MacKinnon and Mrs. William Moore, the sole survivors of a family that once numbered eleven, three boys and eight girls.

I was truly astonished to see a person who has passed the century mark so physically and mentally alert; for outside of being quite deaf and a bit dim of vision the interview got underway with few difficulties.

Replying to my first question Mrs. MacIntyre said she was born at Upper North River and was a daughter of the late John MacLean of North River and Margaret MacGregor of Perth, Scotland.

The arrow of Dan Cupid pierced her heart while visiting in the United States; for it was there that she met MacLean and later married, James MacIntyre. For a time the young couple continued to live in the U. S. A., where her husband worked at the carpenter trade.

However, the bewitching lure of the "Million Acre Farm" soon brought them back to their beloved homeland, where they took up the occupations of farming and home-making. "Those were hectic days," said my informant. "We worked hard and got little enough for our labor, and yet, I wouldn't trade the past for the present, with all its modern conveniences, and dizzy speed. There was sociability and a genuine neighborliness then which I feel is non-existent today."

Mrs. MacIntyre is proud of the fact that she always has been a Presbyterian; but she seemed a little disappointed that I, a Scotchman, could not converse in the language of the Garden of Eden.

Then, to prove the beauty of the ancient tongue, she sang the chorus of two Gaelic songs, sang them in a clear, sweet voice, whose music filled the room with a lyrical melody that simply stole our hearts away.

This longevity candidate had one brother and a sister, both of whom are gone to rest. Besides the two daughters already mentioned, there are living 25 grand-children and 37 great-grand-children.

Mrs. MacIntyre attributes her long life to plenty of fresh air, and of good honest toil. "Yes, do 'What is your hobby?' I queried. "I'm too old for a hobby," she replied. "I used to do a lot of knitting before my eyes went back on me. Now I like to sit around and have people call and chat with me."

"Of course, when the spring comes, I expect to resume my daily walks and pay an occasional visit to the City, a custom I have followed for some years. "Come back again," she invited, when the interview had ended and we were saying farewell. "Yes, do come back some other time, won't you?"

I gave my solemn word that I would, and God willing, I hope to meet this remarkable old lady in the not too distant future.

Ellen's Diary (Continued from Page 2) won't believe it, but just this afternoon we settled that," she told me, almost whispering the words, as though spoken aloud the spell would be broken, and the rare happiness that had come, vanish. And in time they were married—in the West, when she went to him there. And that country then only yours, has been kind to them and theirs. We hear of them occasionally now, by way of their air folk, but many a time when a Summer heat sits above the hilltop, and a breath of wind from the valley, I remember that once upon a time on a Sunday in the past, Cupid with his bow and quiver walked there.

And the wagger? It would be a careless woman indeed that would try to collect a Sabbath bet, though for a period and after in rounds about ways I'm afraid I was not too content to let the matter lie. The thought of it returned to me yesterday morning, when James mentioned Pete's name in connection with our past wood-sawings.

Today the scene of it changed to Alderlea, and all afternoon the sound of it rang out and was echoed along the valley, and tonight the first of our sawing, in a sizable heap of blocks, may be seen as it is bathed in the moonlight.

"I reckon it'll take another spell or so yet to finish it," James said at supper. Dividing the help, Rob was my share, coming in with his father at the edge of dusk. It was fortunate that only this morning I had baked a pan of his favorite rolls and a pie of apples and raisins. "And did you have any jam for your supper?" grand-daughter who came for her evening call when I was gathering up the crumbs from the table, inquired. "We did—we had plum-berry!" Melodiously now the moon lights the countryside, and from the window the house on the hill stands revealed as clear as by day—though more mystic, and very quiet and still. And James, in now from last chor-ing remarks: "It's wonderful weather, Ellen—wonderful weather!" Until tomorrow... Diary... Good-night...

MR. THOMAS DOYLE

Seventy-eighth in the longevity candidates list is Thomas Doyle of Lot 7, St. Mark's. The Doyle homestead where this old timer was born on Nov. 14, 1860, has been in the family name for almost 125 years. The information the writer has been able to gather on this old gentleman is very limited, but I understand he is very active and in full possession of all his faculties. No later than Jan. 8th last, Mr. Doyle took his turn at feeding the threshing machine, and those present on that occasion were simply astonished the way he made the sheaves disappear. Freesia chats seems to be his chief hobby; and, when in the company of old friends he still can spin the yarns par excellence. Mr. Doyle's advice on how to live long and happily is, "Never be afraid of hard work, and always be willing and ready to hand to others the milk of human kindness." Pretty good advice, eh?

Hear them Cheer! Watch it Go! New PURITY Apple Queen!

It is a wonderful dessert. You'll make it again and again and, of course with Purity Flour. So scrumptious, such a tangy sweetness, soop a feathery cake... and per se so economical.

PURITY Apple Queen CAKE. 3 tablespoons butter, 1/2 cup brown sugar, 3 or 4 medium sized apples, 8 red or green cherries, 1/2 cup shortening, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract, 1 egg, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 2 cups sifted Purity Flour, 1 cup milk. First—Melt butter in 7 or 8 inch square baking dish, add brown sugar and spread the mixture evenly over the bottom of the dish. Pare and core apples and cut each one in sections lengthwise. Set in rows in the butter-sugar mixture. Place a cherry in each corner and one in the middle. Now—Cream shortening, add vanilla. Gradually add sugar and blend well together. Add well-sifted eggs. Mix Purity Flour, baking powder and salt and sift together 3 or 4 times. Then add alternately with the milk. Pour this batter over the apples in baking dish and bake in a moderate oven (350°F.) for 40-45 minutes. Invert to serve. Remove from the dish as soon as baked. Serve hot as is or with a sweet sauce, or serve cold with whipped cream. Best for all your baking... that's Purity Flour. Women who bake and bake depend on Purity for uniform results. It's the flour that's milled from Canada's fine hard wheat and sold everywhere. YOU NEED ONLY ONE FLOUR. PURITY FLOUR FOR ONE RESULT—PERFECTION.
