Annual Church Vacation School

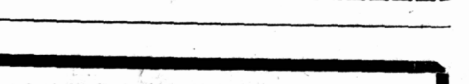

The first annual Church Vacation School for the children of Trinity United Church, Summerside, was held from July 2 to 12 inclusive. Sessions were conducted each morning from 9.30 to 11.30 and were divided into the following periods: 9.30 to 9.45, worship service in the church by the minister, the Rev. K. G. Sullivan, at which the children were taught the ritual of worship; 9.45 to 10.30 daily bible study; 10.30 to 10.45 recreation; 10.45 to 11.15. In this period the girls were divided into two groups for the teaching of knitting and sewing under the direction of Mrs. Thos. Rogers and Mrs. Allison MacLean. The boys were taught drafting and electrical work under the instruction of Mr. J. W. Callbeck and Eric Tanton; 11.15 to 11.30, final period and closing. Each day an offering was taken up, the proceeds of which go to the "Save the Children Fund" in common with the collections taken at similar schools throughout Canada and the United States. On Friday morning the Rev. Mr. Sullivan presented 13 junior certificates and seven intermediate certificates. The junior certificates were presented to: Jean Cairns, Spears, Helen Huestis, Arnold MacLean, David Arnold, Bob Bowness, Bob Huestis, Patsy Daley, Mary Tanton, Joyce Bell and Janet Bell. The intermediate certificates were won by: Frank Lockhart, Nancy Bell, Ruth Huestis, Doris Hebbert, Billy MacLean, Myrtle Grady and Donald Nicholson. The school was under the direction of Mr. D. J. MacLeod and were taught drafting and electrical work under the instruction of DiMaggio hit .347, as the New Yorkers won eight of 12, manufactured five home runs, a triple and two doubles raising his average 17 points to .377. He got two homers in one game, made four hits in five trips, one for the circuit, against Bob Feller in Cleveland. The Tanks were 12 behind the Red Sox on the losing side when they departed, picked up four games in that important department, cut three of the Sox' ten-game lead. "Jones' greatest 18 holes in golf, in my opinion," says Keeler, "was his 66 in qualifying for the British open in 1928. He had 38 putts and 13 other shots—six threes and 12 fours—on a tremendously tough 7,000-yard lay-out. He added a 68 later for 194— which is still the record in England for the Open." Keeler lauds Nelson's recent 259 score for 72 holes as an example of what one of history's greatest linksmen can do on a course designed to lower scores and with improved clubs. "But don't forget Walter Hagen," cautions the golf writer. "He won 11 major championships; the British Open four times, the U. S. PGA five times in six years and the U. S. Open twice. In my opinion, Hagen was the toughest match player of them all."
