ATTEND THE TEA at Queen Hotel Tuesday afternoon given by Ladies' Aid of P. E. I. Hospital from 4 to 6.

LENTEN SERVICE.—There was a large attendance at St. Dunstan's Cathedral last night where a lenten sermon on the Sacrament of Penance was preached by Rev. James Murphy of St. Dunstan's University. The service closed with Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament by Rev. Maurice McDonald.

WAS FORMERLY PASTOR HERE.—Taking advantage of the change in the discipline of the Methodist Church of Canada, Centenary Methodist church unanimously invited Rev. Robert G. Fulton, who completes his first term of four years in 1925, to extend his ministry for four years more after that time expires. Rev. Mr. Fulton accepted, pending formal approval of the N. B. and P. E. I. Conference at its session in June. The committee on ministerial supply was convened by Thomas H. Bullock, who with his committee reported to the joint quarterly and trustee boards, also in session last evening. C. F. Sandford was chairman of the joint boards, acting for the pastor.—St. John Telegraph.

Sorrow

The first thing sorrow has to teach any of us is to face our suffering. We cannot escape it. It is here, and it must have its reason and its meaning. We must accept it, live through it, and come out the braver and stronger for the experience, or we have missed our lesson.

OLD EARTH CELLAR BEST FOR APPLES

(Experimental Farms Note.)

One of the problems of the householder each year is what quantity of apples he can store economically, and another question—"Why did not my apples keep well last winter?" or "Is there any way by which I can keep them better this year?" This does not apply, of course, to those who are fortunate in having the old-fashioned cellar without a furnace which was cool but frost-proof, and moist without being damp. It was and is in such a cellar that apples can be kept to the best advantage and where they will best retain their flavor. The nearer the conditions approach those in the old earth cellar the better the results will be. First, the fruit should be kept as cool as possible without freezing. If the temperature can be kept between 35 degrees and 40 degrees F., this would be best. The higher the temperature the shorter the life of the fruit.

Next in importance is retaining individual specimens are exposed to a very dry atmosphere they will wither, hence the desirability of keeping them in such a way as to retain the moisture as much as possible, even though the air of the storage room be dry. This can be obtained, to some extent, by keeping the fruit in a closed package and, better still, in addition, by wrapping each individual specimen in waxed or oiled paper, which will do much to preserve the moisture in the fruit, and keep disease from spreading from one specimen to another. It is also desirable, if one has nothing else in storage that will be adversely affected, to keep an open vessel with water in it in the room.

W. T. MACOUN,

CONFINED TO HOME.—The many friends of Dr. J. E. Blanchard of this city will regret to learn that he is confined to his home with an attack of pneumonia.

IN AID OF P. E. I. HOSPITAL.—Through the kindness of the management of the Charlottetown Hotel Company the Ladies Aid of the Prince Edward Island Hospital have been given the use of the Queen Hotel for afternoon tea and reception tomorrow afternoon. This occasion will afford Miss Hutchieson, the recently appointed superintendent, an opportunity to meet the friends of the Hospital. Besides the afternoon tea a musical programme will be presented in which Mrs. Frances Holl Trainor, Mrs. E. W. McKinnon, and Miss Earle will take part.

STOCK SHIPMENTS.—Mr. C. A. Archibald, of Truro, N. S., Live Stock Promoter, who has been on the island selecting pure bred high class stock for other parts of the Maritime Provinces, has shipped eight Ayrshire heifers (three of them with their calves) to the Boys' Club at Bridale, C. B., and two bulls to New Brunswick for distribution. The bulls and two heifers were secured from A. McRae & Sons, Charlottetown. Royalty, and one heifer came from Mrs. Ernest Prowse, Brackley Point Road; Athol Roberts, Winsloe; John McLeod, Darlington; P. L. Cairns, Freetown and George Boswell, French Fort. The balance of the car load for Bridale will be made up at Truro. Mr. Archibald says that the quality of the Island Ayrshires surpasses that of Ontario stock on which he took options this winter.

Drink Water if Kidneys Bother

Take a Tablespoonful of Salts if Back Pains or Bladder is Irritated

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaker; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids; to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

lots of fun Where beauty entrances us all with delight Surely this land is a wonderful sight Where people are hospitable, kind and true This is surely the Isle for you. Where we can get rooms at the summer resort And spend a holiday with never a thought. Of care or trouble that business demands But roll about in the red shore sand A goodly land where one can rest A land that God has abundantly blessed Come to it, live in it, wait not till you're dead To sleep your last sleep with the daisies o'er head.

Why Ford Predominates

Many Reasons From Many Users

If you were to ask the next fifty Ford owners you meet why they prefer Fords, you would get a wide variety of answers.

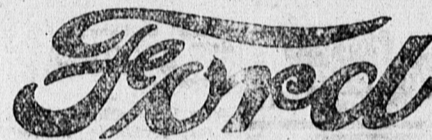

Some would say, "Because they seem never to wear out;" others would answer, "Because they cost so little." Many would reply "Because I can get service anywhere;" and just as many, "Because it is the only car I can afford to own."

All would tell you, "Because they master a bad road in any weather," a woman driver would respond, "Because I can drive it so easily." From the fleet-owners you would hear, "Because I can buy two or three or four Ford Trucks for the price of one big truck."

Wherever you might inquire you would hear expressed these basic reasons why Ford predominates—why, year after year, Ford sales equal the total sales of all other cars combined.

AN UNFINISHED MURDER STORY

In the experience of every newspaper man there is the one outstanding story sticking in memory; that one which from every angle lured the fact seeker into deeper labyrinths and displayed fascinating turns of mystery, of heart interest or hair-raising thrills with every foot of the way. My treasure was the mystery of Captain Horatio Turner, V. C.

This was in San Francisco before the great fire; a city then seeming to possess an uncanny knack for producing great news stories. I was a very green cub, with more ambition than experience.

An unidentified man with a 22 caliber bullet hole through the back of his skull had lain a week in the morgue of a suburban town and was about to be buried in Potter's Field—one more unsolved "cold" in newspaper parlance. Because I was a cub the city editor finally turned the thing over to me, giving me a sketch of the dead man which had previously appeared in a rival sheet.

"Since this man remains unidentified," he said, "he must have been a stranger in the city. Make the round of the hotel clerks with this sketch and see if any of them can remember this fellow as a guest." I began the forlorn hope, after ten or a dozen fruitless visits to hotel desks I came to the old Russ House. The clerk there thought the sketch looked like a certain Captain Turner, a Canadian who had been a guest there and who had not been in his room for a week, though it still was held for him. The staff, he added, had been too busy to bother with going over to Berkeley to attempt identification.

I went to the manager, who confirmed the clerk's hazard. He was, by rare good chance, a close friend of my city editor. I had him get my boss leaped for a cab, and in no time we were closeted with the manager. After much persuasion the latter consented to open the baggage the mysterious Turner had left in his room when he disappeared.

Trunk locks yielded to the chisel. In one room was a large leather box which was called a travelling secretary in those days. Once more the manager violated the coroner's law, and this secretary was pried open. Within lay a mass of official papers, a silver military medal which we afterwards identified

DAILY TALK

The pages narrated the life of these two led lived up in a cabin over the Arctic Winter. How they came to hate one another through sheer boredom at unvaried monotony. How with Turner the suspicion was born that his companion was secretly trying to "double cross" him. How he charged the other with this intent and they fought—brutally with fists and knives.

Then the growing fear of Turner, revealed in successive entries in the diary. Fear which gnawed at his heart sleeping and waking. A fear that his companion would murder him before the snows went. Coked revolvers kept ever at hand, day or night.

Oh, that diary reeked with human passions! How that story of mine wrote itself, column upon column! Finally one read how with the coming of spring Turner had taken the first boat down the Yukon, intent on getting to San Francisco and finding a market for his claims. His enemy caught the same boat. A last entry, the substance of which I can give from memory:

"San Francisco: Saw X (his enemy) on California street today. Does this mean he has followed me here to kill me before—"
