tion of Britain's available capital will come to Canada for investment. Under the circumstances, therefore, the one great essential to keep business moving is confidence, and Canada, probably of all nations of the world, has least excuse to offer for any lack of it.

"In the unprecedented and critical situation that exists," says Sir George Paish, "it is of the greatest importance that everyone endeavor to act as if great events were not impending. Were confidence seriously disturbed, business would practically to an end, and our ability to face the difficulties that may be in front of us would be seriously injured. Therefore, it is of vital importance that, as far as possible, the events that are now taking place should not interfere with the daily life and the daily work of the nation. Orders should be given factories should be run, and everything should be arranged to maintain, as far as possible, the productive power and the income of the country."

"But for this to be accomplished, the situation must be faced with courage and confidence on the part of everyone. Investors must continue to invest, bankers must continue to lend, the Stock Exchange must continue to deal, and every one according to his ability must endeavor to work hard in order that individual incomes, and therefore the income of the whole nation may be maintained at the highest possible level."

"A little over a century ago, when the nation was at war with Napoleon, its income was a very small one, being less than one-eighth of what it is at present, and in a comparatively small space of time the British people succeeded in raising about £1,000,000,000 of money for war purposes, and so great was their confidence and courage that at the end of the war, which severely taxed their resources, they were stronger and wealthier than they had been at the beginning."

"Canada's natural store is as yet barely touched. From any temporary lull in our progress, from whatever cause, we can, therefore, recover ourselves more quickly than did the Motherland after her world struggle of a century ago, if our people are of the same heart and industry, and we are confident they are. Courage in the fight for the Empire is not more necessary than courage in the maintenance of the industry and commerce of the country."

NOTES

Germany has been given a week to think over Japan's proposal. The proposal is a stiff one and Germany has a good many other things to think about at the present. It is most likely that she will—in the end—comply with Japan's ultimatum, but not till she is compelled to. Japan has told her in effect that she is to get out of the Far East, bag and baggage, before the 23rd. If she is not gone by that time Japan is going to make her go.

GUARDIAN'S SPECIAL CABLE SERVICE

Arranged with London Times and London Daily Telegraph.

The Guardian has just concluded arrangements whereby it has obtained the right of exclusive publication of all the cable dispatches of the London Daily Times and the London Daily Telegraph in addition to the dispatches from Montreal, Halifax and St. John.

This service includes special signed cables from Ashmead Bartlett, who acquired great fame for his mastery work in covering the Russo-Japanese, Balkan and Boer wars; E. J. Dillon, the expert English journalist who is in close touch with all of the inside workings of European diplomacy, and others of equal repute.

Cables from other correspondents in the principal European capitals will include the dispatches of Herbert Temple, W. Orton Tewson, and Frederick Villiers in London; Fritz Jacobsohn, Steven Burnett and Frederick Werner in Berlin; C. F. Bertelli in Paris and others who will cover the European war from every possible angle.

This service will afford our readers prompt, accurate and complete war reports written in masterly style and upon which complete reliance may be placed.

NO TIME FOR PESSIMISM

Sir Rider Haggard, who has recently visited the province as a member of the Dominion Royal Commission, and whose name is a household word wherever English books are read gave a speech in St. John a few evenings ago which was characteristic of the imaginative writer of books. A note of seriousness, if not of pessimism, was noticeable throughout the whole speech. "Do the men and the women in your great country of Canada," he asked, "whom I notice laughing and talking gaily, understand that the Empire is at grips for life and death?"

To this we believe it is quite safe to reply that they do, and that by their actions during the past two strenuous weeks they showed that they not only understood but that they had made up their minds that the "grips" were for the life, not the death of the Empire. Behind the "laughing and talking gaily" was the grim determination of the "whelps of the lion" to dare and to do in the crisis that came like a bolt from the blue. No sooner did the announcement come that Britain was at war than from every section near and remote came men in thousands offering themselves for service. And behind these men were mothers, wives and daughters willingly and loyally acquiescing in the sacrifice.

Yes, the men and the women understand and they may laugh and talk gaily, but not in frivolous forgetfulness of the seriousness of the work in hand. War is a grim business, and the present war will probably be one of the bloodiest in history, but it will be worked out to a finish and that finish will be to quote again from Sir Rider—"that we shall conquer and that the world shall be free."

It is natural to feel solemn in the presence of the awful sacrifice of human life of which we read daily,

WAY CANADA SHOULD BE CONFIDENT

The Financial Post has the following common sense article in its issue of the 15th, which should be read and carefully digested by all Canadians. Let it be remembered that while we must lay aside something to pay our share of the cost of the war, we then have at our back storehouses of natural wealth scarcely yet touched. As the calamities of Europe place a higher value on our wheat and other exportable crops, so will the same calamities—the result of militarism and conscription—make the peaceful land of Canada more attractive to some of the best people of Europe whose hopes and lands, generation after generation have been despoiled or devastated by natural that there should be a note of sadness even in our rejoicing over the sinking of an enemy's ship with its hundreds of lives, or over the defeat and the slaughter of our enemy's battalions, but there is no cause for pessimism or for fear concerning the life of the Empire which is now doubly dear to us, because of our sacrifices. This is not the first time in which the Empire has been "at grips for life and death." She has been bought with the blood of her sons—and, "if blood be the price of Empire, Lord God we have paid in full."

In our own province there are those who talk "blue" and who communicate the blue to others. It will do no good. As far as this province or even Canada is concerned there will be no participation in the war except by those who go overseas. German ships will give the Canadian coast a wide berth while British and French warships are on watch, and they are on watch now and will be until the last German ship has been sunk or securely docked in a British or French or Russian port. As for Prince Edward Island our bridges and railways and wireless stations are safe while the Germans are giving their attention to larger places and larger interests. It is quite possible that in the larger Canadian centres, where there is a movement of troops on a large scale, Austrian or German sympathisers might think it worth while to risk their lives in an attempt at train wrecking or sending out information to the country's enemies, and prudence demands that every precaution shall be taken. For us and for all Canadians the attitude throughout the anxious days should be one, not of despondency or pessimism but of faith in the might of the Empire and in the righteousness of the cause for which the Empire is battling.

war. At the present instant Canada stands practically immune from the physical menace of war, our fields are giving wealth to the harvester, and our other resources are yielding their bounty in greater proportions than ever. Wealth production is proving at our back storehouses of greater primary production are not diminishing. This continent, including Canada, will profit largely and speedily by the changes in the world's currents of trade during the war. Many of our factories will find demands upon them stimulated because of restriction placed upon the export agencies of war and though for a time have been despoiled or devastated by diminished quantities, a fair proportion
