WHY THE JURY HELD OUT

The Secret That Was Imparted to the English Chief Justice.

The most remarkable case of a jury "standing out" against what seemed irrefutable testimony, and all through the resolution of one man, occurred before Chief Justice Dyer many years ago.

This was Chief Justice Dyer's case, and he put some very searching questions to the high sheriff. The cause of the acquittal, said the official, was undoubtedly the foreman, a farmer of excellent character, esteemed by all his neighbors and very unlikely to be obstinate or vexatious.

It had been no murder, for the other had attacked him with the hayfork, and—as he showed—severely injured him, but in the struggle to get possession of the weapon he had the misfortune to give the man a fatal wound.

Every year for fifteen years the judge made inquiries as to the foreman's existence, and at last, happening to survive him, he considered himself free to tell the story.

When the artist was requested to paint a portrait of Carlyle for one of the leading cities in Scotland a deputation of citizens called to confer with him with regard to the work.

Robert Donald, the new editor of the London Daily Chronicle, is another of the Scotsmen who have made their mark in Fleet street.

The Duke of Westminster, who has been in South Africa in connection with his scheme for the colonization of a large tract of land which he has acquired in Orange River Colony, says he is confident of success.

An English rural schoolmaster was greatly annoyed one day by not getting satisfactory answers to the questions he put to one of his school-boys.
