

Children Cry for Fletcher's CASTORIA

Fletcher's Castoria is strictly a remedy for Infants and Children. Foods are specially prepared for babies. A baby's medicine as even more essential for baby. Remedies primarily prepared for grown-ups are not interchangeable. It was the need of a remedy for the common ailments of Infants and Children that brought Castoria before the public after years of research, and no claim has been made for it that its use for over 30 years has not proven.

What is CASTORIA?

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. For more than thirty years it has been in constant use for the relief of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic and Diarrhoea; allaying Feverishness arising therefrom, and by regulating the Stomach and Bowels, aids the assimilation of Food; giving healthy and natural sleep. SAFETY DEVICES FOR RAILWAYS

Two new devices for increasing the safety of railway travel have lately been introduced on British railways. One is for use in fogs on sections of line where automatic signalling is not installed. It frequently happens that fog descends so suddenly that the men who were detailed to put detonators on the line could not arrive in time to avoid danger. To meet this situation repeater signals are now used. They are placed on short posts close to the line, and the lamps are switched on by the signal men in the cabins when the fog comes on. This device is adapted for electric railways. The second invention referred to is an anti-telescoping device for railway carriages. It is well known that the heaviest loss of life in railway collisions occurs through the tendency of one carriage to mount and crash through the light woodwork of another. A British railway company has accordingly introduced special buffers and in addition shock absorbing corrugated fenders. These fenders have projecting teeth which fit into each other when the carriages are forced together. In this way the alignment of the carriages will be maintained when a collision occurs.

A HOUSEHOLD FRIEND.

Few housewives realize what a useful friend bran can be in the home. Its purposes are as varied as they are useful.

For washing art work, cretonne, cushion covers, chintzes, and delicate colors put one breakfast-cup in a pot with one quart of cold water. Simmer for half an hour, then strain, adding sufficient hot water to make the mixture lukewarm. Wash the article with a little squeezing action, using a little melted soap if required. Rinse in clean warm bran-water if a light stiffness is desired; if not, plain water should be used. Bran-water prevents delicate colors running and the small amount of starch present gives ample stiffness if ironed when still slightly damp. All materials should be ironed on the wrong side.

For dry-cleaning gloves some bran is put in the oven in a basin and removed when hot. Put the gloves on the hand and place them in the hot bran, which should be rubbed with a soft brush. The warmth of the bran, added to the friction, removes any dirt and grease, but the gloves should not be allowed to become soiled, as far better results are obtained by frequent applications than by allowing the gloves to get really dirty.

Bran is most efficacious for easing pain. The brain is heated as before, slipped quickly into a woolen bag made of an old blanket, tied securely at the top, and placed on the affected part. This has the advantage of being lighter than a hot-water bottle.

HINTS TO WOMEN DRIVERS.

"Do not expect other car drivers to give you the right of way out of courtesy because you are a woman. Every car driver is on an equal plane in the streets.

THE PERFECT HUSBAND

"A Perfect Husband—who can find one?"
"Six days of the week doth he labor for his moneys, and upon the seventh doeth chores within the house for relaxation."
"With his own hands he runneth the lawn mower and washeth the dog."
"He hocketh his wife's dresses up the back without mutterings."
"He putteth the cat out by night."
"His ashes fall not upon the carpet, and his cigarette burneth not holes in the draperies."
"He weareth everlasting socks, and seweth on his own buttons."
"His overcoat doeth his two seasons."
"The grouch knoweth him nit, and his breakfast always pleaseth him."
"He huncheth meagerly upon a sandwich that he may adorn his wife with fine jewels. He grumbleneth not at the bills."
"He openeth his mouth with praises and noteth her new frock and the word of flattery is on his tongue."
"He perceiveth not the existence of other women."
"He, many men have I met in the world, but none like unto him."
"Yet have ye all seen him—in your dreams!"
All Busy
"What's your wife doing?"
"Preserving watermelon rind."
"So?"
"And the kids are enthusiastically supplying her with the material."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

ALWAYS DRIVE RIGHT

Don't hog the road. Obey all traffic signals. Don't stop on car tracks to wait for signal. Keep near the curb. Don't go ahead of the officer's signal and then say you did not see him. Don't turn in the middle of the block in narrow side streets. Don't fail to report accidents to the police department. Try not to delay traffic by killing your engine. Don't over-inflate your tires.

—WHEN THE HORSE LAUGH.—With all of his thirty horse-power dead, a well-known barber of Summerside was forced to enter the aid of another equine on Sunday night, when his motor car died on him when reaching the outskirts of the town. His entry into the capital of Summerside, his car drawn by a fiery steed, was almost as interesting to the many on-lookers as the entry of Allenby into Jerusalem and as he drew up before his tonyorial parlor the expression of relief that was shown in his face was echoed by a cheer of applause from the score of anxious friends who had gathered around.

DR. JOHN BULL

Dr. John Bull, who flourished in the early part of the seventeenth century is the reputed author of the National Anthem, but according to Sir Frederic Bridge, the matter has been investigated by many, but so far there seems to be no proof of it. He was the first professor of music of Gresham College and his connection with the City made him the musical director at many City feasts which, even in those days, seem to have been both frequent and elaborate. Bull and several others of the most talented musicians of the reign of James I. were Roman Catholics, though they were obliged to conceal their faith in order to earn a living. This concealment appears to have become intolerable to Bull, and he left England secretly about the year 1611 and took refuge in Brussels. He became organist of Antwerp-Cathedral in 1617 and was buried there eleven years later.

MR. GLADSTONE'S WATCH

The following story is related by Sir Henry Lucy: On one occasion, in the far-off time of his youth Mr. Gladstone was perched on the box seat of an omnibus behind an old driver of bibulous appearance, with whom, to beguile the time he began to converse. The fare was young enough to be proud of a fine repeater carried in his fob. By way of interesting the driver, he showed it to him, explaining its complicated mechanism. The driver took more or less intelligent interest in the works. After a period of profound reflection, he said: "What I want to know is, how do you wind that watch when you're drunk?"

PARENTHOOD IN THE SEA

Two examples of the loving care of parenthood in the open sea were given in a recent lecture by Prof. Arthur Thomson. The first is that of the paper nautilus, the most beautiful cradle in the world, made by the mother for the shelter of her young. The second is the case of the sea horse, who carries the family eggs in a sort of breast-pocket and goes hungry till they are hatched. According to Prof. Thomson the whole of the open-sea fauna may be divided into two classes—the swimmers and the drifters. Of the first class the whale is the best swimmer of all; it stays the longest in the water; and takes the longest breath of all lung-breathers.

A ROUNDHEADED BOLT.

A roundheaded bolt which turns when it is necessary to remove the nut may often be held by catching with a pair of pliers or pipe wrench the part which projects through the nut. Sometimes the head may be pried up enough so that it may be caught by the pliers or pipe wrench. Sometimes the head may be filed on two opposite sides so that it may be held by a wrench.

A Suspicious Nature.

"I don't like Mr. Dubwaite's new stenographer," said Mrs. Dubwaite. "Why not, my dear?" asked Mrs. Gadspar. "She had a dreamy look in her eyes."
"Oh, well, she may not be meditating mischief."
"Perhaps not; but when a girl is young and pretty and indulges in day-dreams, with a susceptible old fop like Mr. Dubwaite around, some of those dreams may start to coming true."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Allied Council To Meet Aug. 8

PARIS, Aug. 1.—The program for the forthcoming meeting of the Allied Supreme Council is now tentatively set for August 8th and will likely require considerable further negotiation since there is still a divergence of views between Paris and London regarding advisability of considering now whether the Allied troops ought to be withdrawn from Dusseldorf, Duisburg and Ruhrort in Ruhr Area, which was occupied last spring as penalties to Germany's non-fulfillment of peace treaty terms.

Dangerous Counterfeit

The most expert means of counterfeiting American greenbacks has been discovered by the state police in the Adirondacks lumber camps, where $20, $50 and $100 notes were being duplicated. Banking experts have pronounced them the most clever counterfeits in existence. The information now in the hands of the state police is to be turned over to the United States department of justice. The secret of the device is a machine which is capable of splitting the thin note paper on which the American notes are engraved and permitting the face and back of the note to be stripped from each other. Waxed paper is then laid over each half of the note and a solution applied to transfer enough of the original ink to the waxed paper to make an exact duplicate of the note. The waxed sections to which the ink has been transferred are then pasted to the opposite half of the good note and in this way two bank notes exactly alike are produced.

GANDHI IS DANGEROUS

Revolutionary Leader Does Not Believe in Civilization

The great dependency of India is facing today a supreme crisis in her history. Recent articles by P. W. Wilson, of the London Daily News, George F. Arthur, of the New York Herald and others who have studied the question, throw new light on the situation, and they all emphasize the power of Gandhi, the Hindu leader of the revolutionists. Mohandas Karamchand Gandhi is today an open threat against continued British rule in India. His extreme nationalist movements have been opposed by the Moslem and by the low caste Hindus, who have not relished the prospect of being subject to the harsh and arbitrary rule of the high caste Hindu. It was from this rule that British control rescued them.

The appeal to religious prejudice has farred a portion of the Moslem leaders from their position to nationalism, while the influence of Gandhi, leader in the movement against the British, has succeeded in developing a nationalistic sentiment among a portion of the low caste Hindus. It is this strange influence which Gandhi exerts which makes him so dangerous an element from the British viewpoint. Gandhi is 51 years old and is described as an extreme religionist with a sweet and beguiling tongue. Although he walks about like a mendicant, with bare feet and the clothing of the humblest, his influence extends from the bottom strata of society upwards.

In the industrial city in which he makes his home he has developed social cult which professes to find its chief satisfaction in primitive agriculture and in the simplest forms of industry. The machine is discarded and the hand is exalted in their ideal of industry. He wants to banish all foreigners and go back to conditions as they were before British rule in India. Gandhi, the man of mystery in dreaming India, describes himself in this sentence: "Most religious men I have met are politicians in disguise; I, however, who wear the guise of a politician, am at heart a religious man." While scorning modern inventions Gandhi is understood to utilize railroad trains and automobiles in travelling about India, spreading his doctrines wherever he can.

with the result that his popularity appears to have attained almost Messianic proportions.

At a congress held at Nagpur at the close of last year, Gandhi while pleading for non-violence called for the destruction of the British Empire and declared that success of the movement might involve "wading through oceans of blood". This was but a sample of the utterances that were made at this congress, which declared loyalty to Great Britain optional and constitutional methods matters of expedience. The congress declared for non-co-operation with the British government in the establishment of its new system and for non-co-operation with the British under any form, except in the case of schoolboys under 10 years of age.
