

PRINCE EDWARD
MON.— TUE. and WED.
EXTRA!

CHAMPIONS IN THE MAKING
Featuring
BARBARA ANN SCOTT

MGM's Star-Splashed Hit!
A NEW HIGH IN THE MUSICAL SKY
TECHNICOLOR

This Time For Keeps
ESTHER WILLIAMS
LAVINIA MELCHOR DURANTE JOHNSTON
XAVIER CUGAT and his orchestra

TODAY ONLY — "GREEN FOR DANGER" — THRILLING MYSTERY
Shows 2:30 - 7 - 9 — Also News — Cartoon — Engulfed Cathedral

THE EASTERN GUARDIAN

AGENTS: MONTAGUE: Harold F. Landry, Albert Aitken, Mrs. Byron Stewart, Miss Harriet Clark.
AGENT GEORGETOWN: Walden Lavers.
AGENTS SOURIS: Miss Edith Richards and Gordon Farrell

The Guardian may be bought at any of the following places in Montague: Miss S. A. Llewellyn; Mrs. Clay. In Georgetown: The Post Office; in Souris: Condon's and Florence Roper. In St. Peter's: The Post Office.

GEORGETOWN & VICINITY

Miss Janie Hunter, R.N., of Camp Hill Hospital, Halifax, is visiting her brother, Mr. Joseph Hunter.

Mr. Peter Martell of New Glasgow, N. S., is visiting Georgetown for a week where he is the guest of his sister, Mrs. Wilfred MacQuillan.

Mrs. F. J. DeLory was a business visitor to Montague and Carleton Place Thursday in the interest of the local firm of F. J. DeLory and Sons.

Mr. Andrew Lavers and his son Opl. Raymond Lavers of the R. C. A. F. station at Summerside, visited Mr. Andrew Lavers' daughter, Mrs. Albert Fraser of Montague on Thursday. Cpl. Lavers is home for a few days prior to his leaving for Goose Bay, Labrador, where he is being posted.

Mr. Angus MacLean spent a few days visiting in Souris during the week.

Friends of Mrs. Charles Fraser are glad to hear that she is improving from a recent illness.

Mr. Horace Parker of Georgetown Royalty is a patient in the Veterans' Wing of the P. E. Island Hospital having been taken there from his home on Tuesday by ambulance. On Thursday, Mrs. Parker visited her husband in the hospital.

In the announcement of the death of Mr. Lewis Lavandier of Pawtucket, Rhode Island which appeared in Tuesday's issue, the deceased who was the uncle of Mr. Herman Lavandier was erroneously referred to as being his nephew.

BEAU

By Mrs. Harry Fugh Smith

Scotty stared at her in astonishment. "Gosh! don't you understand? I've got five thousand dollars in the bank. I can go in with Beau and buy the Maryville House. We'll get a government loan and fix it up. We'll run the best small-town hotel in this state."

"Are you laboring under the impression that I will turn into a chambermaid or something?" demanded Rosalie jolly. "If so let me disabuse your mind. I have no intention of living in Maryville. I have no intention of going into the hotel business. I have no intention of..."

"Marrying me?" suggested Scotty. "Five thousand dollars?" cried Rosalie bitterly. "When that's gone you'll starve, and it just happens that I like to eat."

"Meaning you're jilting me?" asked Scotty with a lit in his voice.

"Yes."

"Well," said Scotty, "I'll bear up, believe it or not."

He left early the next morning for Maryville. He could not wait to get to Beau with his tidings. When he reached the filling station however, Beau was out campaigning.

Scotty walked around the house. Jennie Sue was bending over the oven, basting a roast. Her face was flushed, little dimples clung to her forehead. She caught her breath when Scotty spoke over her shoulder. "They've tied a tin can to me at home, Jennie Sue," he said. "Turned me out to sink or swim."

"Oh, Scotty!"

"I've got five thousand dollars from my grandfather's estate and that's all I'm ever going to get. Just enough to buy a run-down hotel like the Maryville House."

"I always thought it would be fun to run a hotel," said Jennie Sue.

Scotty grinned ruefully. "Here's your chance. Maybe I'm a sap to keep asking you, Jennie Sue, but you see I like you, I like you so much."

"I like you too Scotty, I always have."

"But not enough to risk marrying me," said Scotty ruefully.

Jennie Sue turned a little white. "Not while you were the heir to a lot of money, Scotty."

"I'd have been terrible as a rich man's wife, Scotty. I can't do society. I'd have embarrassed you right to death. You'd have been ashamed of me. But I—I ought to make a nice wife for—a man who has to run a hotel for a living I mean I can cook and—"

"Nice," breathed Scotty. "Oh, Jennie Sue, you'd be perfect!"

He put out his arms shyly. He was afraid to believe it could be true. Blushing exquisitely, Jennie Sue slipped into his embrace. Scotty stroked and kissed her and somehow it was as if all his life he had been lost, but was found.

Jennie Sue and Scotty were married the last week in March. Carolyn was the only member of his family at the wedding. She had said she was not going. She had received an affectionate letter from Jennie Sue urging her to come, but Carolyn answered with a formal note tending her regrets. Then when the day arrived she could not stay away. She created a stir at the breakfast table by announcing that she was driving down to Maryville as soon as she had eaten.

Maryville to her eye presented much the same sleepy aspect as of old in spite of the scaffolding which encircled the hotel where extensive repairs were under way. Jennie Sue and Scotty were not taking a wedding trip. They were moving straight into the Maryville House. Every penny they possessed was invested there.

"We've got to make good," Scotty had written. "Jennie Sue is going to do the cooking, with a negro woman to wash the dishes. I'll be porter and head waiter and bell hop if necessary till we get on our feet, and we wouldn't change places with a nabob."

The town was liberally decorated with placards for the coming election. There was a large lithograph of Beau smiling from every tree and telephone post. Underneath was his platform. He advocated a cooperative system of buying for the retail merchant to offset the chain store and drastic changes in the type of merchandise offered.

"Climb out of the rat with Beau!" was his slogan.

Carolyn's heart was beating very fast as she drew up outside the filling station. The garage wall was covered with second-hand tires offered for sale, the two tourist cabins which had been poined together were separated. Otherwise the place was unchanged. Carolyn had telephoned Scotty that she was coming down. She had not wanted to do anything so melodramatic as walking in upon Beau unannounced. Doty spied her first and came tearing around the house. "Oooh! Aunt Caro's here!" she shouted, flinging her arms about Carolyn's knees.

Carolyn was grateful for Doty's welcome. It made everything less embarrassing. Holding tightly to the child's hand, she advanced to the rear of the house.

(To Be Continued)

I want to know...

what is done with my insurance premium

Your Insurance premium is divided three ways. The largest part goes into your own savings fund. A small part is used to pay its proportionate share of the Company's operating expenses. Another small part is used to help make up the balance for those who die before their savings funds have been built up to the full face value of their policies.

If you yourself die before your savings fund is sufficient to pay the full face value of your policy—then the other policy-holders will likewise contribute the balance needed. If the premium you pay is higher than is necessary, the excess is returned to you by way of dividends.

This is the basic policy of life insurance by which men co-operate mutually to protect their families against the hazards of life.

If you drop out of this co-operative venture then your savings fund is returned to you.

*The exception is "term" insurance where no savings fund is built up.

Low cost life insurance since 1859

MUTUAL LIFE OF CANADA
HEAD OFFICE WILMINGTON, ONTARIO

BRANCH OFFICE—BANK OF NOVA SCOTIA BUILDING
Charlottetown, P. E. I.
H. W. PLETCH, Branch Manager
Representative: (Charlottetown)
C. H. Black, C.L.U., Joseph H. Cullen
Representatives in Other Centres:
F. H. Menkley, Summerside; A. Gallant, Rustico; Cyril Gallant, Ashcroft, N.L.; Lester MacLeod, Montague, P.E.I.; Clifford O. Ellis, O'Leary, P.E.I.; Alvin McLean, Northam, P.E.I.; Horace M. Wright, Bedouque, P.E.I.; Herbert Wyand, Cavendish, P.E.I.; Raymond Gallant, Rustico, P.E.I.

CAPITOL
MONDAY TUESDAY and WEDNESDAY

TODAY
A Family Hit
"DRIFTWOOD"
Shows 2:30-7-8:45

BEAUTY against BEAUTY... with Drummond in the middle of MURDER

BULLDOG DRUMMOND STRIKES BACK
RON RANDALL GLORIA HENRY
PAT O'MOORE ANABEL SHAW TERRY KILBURN

NEWS - SPORTS
CARTOON - SING-SONG

Royal Conservatory of Music
Face Elle
EILEEN LAW, Contralto
WELDON KILBURN, Accompanist

W. C. T. U. NOTES

This is how Cowper welcomes a winter evening in:
"Now stir the fire, and close the shutters fast,
Let fall the curtains, wheel the sofa round,
And while the bubbling and loud hissing urn
Throws up a steady column, and the cups
That cheer but not inebriate, wait on each,
So let us welcome peaceful evening in."

EMPIRE TODAY
Matinee 2:30 — Evening Shows 7 and 8:45

Sing, Love and Be Gay
Midst ACTION MUSICAL Thrills
Down Santa Rosa Way!

Rose of Santa Rosa
THE HOOSIER HOT SHOTS
(Hezlie, Kan, Gil and Gabe)
PATRICIA WHITE - EDUARDO MORGES
Musical — "BRICK BRADFORD" Serial — Cartoon

RUSSIAN CARTOONIST
WINNIPEG — (CP) — Bohdan Slocurkiw, 23, a Ukrainian art student at the outbreak of the Second World War who spent four years in German concentration camps, now is in Winnipeg studying English. He hopes to earn a living by selling cartoons.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT
Venice, Italy, is 150 miles farther north than Vladivostok, Siberia.

TAFT WAS FIRST
The first man to be president of all 48 United States was William Howard Taft.

Rush And Strain Hard On Nerves

Often keyed-up nerves cause restlessness, irritability and even nervousness. If you suffer from these, turn to Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills. They may be of help.

Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills are a well balanced medicine for those who are run-down and may need a general conditioner to help build up the system. They stimulate the nervous system, improve the appetite, aid digestion and thus help promote refreshing rest. Get Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills at your nearest drug store today. Accept no substitutes. Look for the trade mark the "Red Heart".
The W. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Have Your MAGNETO INSPECTED and ADJUSTED NOW!

MAGNETO REPAIRS MADE NOW WILL SAVE YOU TIME AND MONEY DURING THE RUSH SEASON

REPLACEMENT MAGNETOS NOW AVAILABLE

Complete replacement magnetos for tractors, combines, and other farm engines can be obtained without delay.

BATT & McRAE
171 Grafton St. Phone 437

EDUCATIONAL IN TEMPERANCE

For some years we, here in British Columbia, have been striving for Temperance Education through our schools and now this has at last been crowned with success.

We are indebted to Dr. G. M. Weir, Minister of Education, for his support and the effort he has made to bring this about. Taking the matter up in the Legislature, he has been able to have a superintendent appointed for this special course. We rejoice greatly that Mr. H. L. Campbell is the man chosen.

We had a grand meeting in the Mayfair room of the Hotel Vancouver on December 7th, when Mr. Campbell presented his plan as prepared for the schools.

Some 700 interested friends were in attendance and pledged their co-operation and support in any way desired. At the close of the address a fine film was shown, entitled "Drunken Driving," depicting the serious result of drinking before driving a car. Some considerable discussion took place and proved most interesting.

I am delighted to be able to tell you now that Mr. Campbell is preparing an outline of his plan to be printed in Tidings. I am sure you will all be waiting for this so that you may become familiar with its contents and be ready to co-operate in your own area.

This work will take considerable time to get under way, and trained leaders will be necessary. We are therefore asking you at this time to make a special financial effort to help our education programme.

February being the month when we hold our Frances Willard meetings, I hope you are all planning something special. Mrs. Holt, our superintendent, has prepared a programme that you will find interesting. I am sure. Write to her.

REASONS FOR TOTAL ABSTINENCE

1. Modern science proves that alcohol is not helpful to any vital process. It is the enemy of vitality. It overworks the organs with which it comes in contact, inducing needless friction.

2. The appetite for alcoholic drinks is cumulative. It has no power of self-destruction. It grows by what it feeds on. One glass calls for two, two for three, and so on in dangerous ratio.

3. The life of a drinking man is apt to be divided into two chapters of a very tragic serial, in the first of which he could have left off if he would, and in the second he would have left off if he could.

4. The power of habit is practically omnipotent. The power of will to cope with it has been proven insufficient. The grooves of action are quickly worn. No harm results from doing without alcohol, but absolute good has been proven to result from such abstinence. Therefore as a friend to myself, and the special guardian of my own well-being, I am bound to let intoxicating liquors alone; and by the terms of Christ's Golden Rule I am equally bound to let them alone because of my interest in the well-being of those about me and because of my purpose, by God's grace, to invest my life in hastening

ROAD NEGLECT
(Continued from Page 6)

Government took some concrete action. Its policy to date has been one of retarding rather than of fostering the development. The Government must decide either to expropriate the present plant, or give grants to help the sparsely settled areas in obtaining electricity.

Premier Jones: "Where would you get the electricity?"

Mr. Matheson: "You will have to develop it."

Premier Jones: "How would you go about it?"

Mr. Matheson: "That is up to you, to formulate a policy. According to Dr. Hogg's report, with the machinery we have now on order and which they expect to get in 1949, in addition to what they have already installed, you would be able to supply a great deal of electricity."

Mr. Jones: "That would be their machine. If we took it over perhaps we wouldn't get that machine. We might mess the whole thing up."

Mr. Matheson: "We don't expect miracles, but we expect you to make a start."

Dealing briefly with education, he stressed the danger of training young people for careers at too early an age. The groundwork of a good general education should be laid first, he maintained.

The heavy snowfall this winter served as a reminder of what must be overcome in the way of transportation if we are going to have consolidated schools on an extended scale, he pointed out.

The hog situation had been "badly handled" when price control and subsidies were removed, Mr. Matheson referred to the strike which took place in the local plant. When it occurred the farmers of course wanted to see their hogs slaughtered. But the Government's method of taking over the plant left the question of legality wide open. Their action antagonized a group of people. There is a general feeling that the present employees were not getting enough wages. Later a situation arose whereby the Dominion Government obtained a higher bacon price on the British market, and this was made known two weeks in advance of the actual price being set. The packers knew there was to be a rise, and naturally held over their products.

"Perhaps," suggested Mr. Matheson, "Hon. Mr. Wright, the Government controller at the local plant, could give us some idea of

NEWSY NOTES
(Continued from page 7)

he deprived of the thunderbolt for some unknown reason. The Romans always represented Caesar's eagle with outstretched wings designed probably to show his untiring activity, and to intimate that his shadow covered the entire world.

If the Roman legion suffered defeat, it was the duty of the standard-bearer to break the lance from the lance on which it was mounted and to bury it, so that it would not fall into the hands of the enemy. This took place after the fatal battle of Lake Thrasymurus, and the precaution saved the only legionary eagle that has survived till modern times. It was found on the land of Count d'Erlach in Germany, was of bronze gilt, three inches high and the whole design weighed eight pounds. It is supposed to have belonged to the 2ndnd legion, who were defeated by the Alemanni. It is not likely, however, that this irreplaceable antique has escaped destruction in the World War.

The day when all men's weal shall be each man's care.—Frances Willard (address in 1890).

RELIEVE ACHE & PAINS BY RUBBING IN

19-46
MINARD'S PAIN LINIMENT
35¢

G. F. Hutcheson & Son
OPTOMETRISTS
Specialists in the fitting of glasses for the correction of ocular defects.
28 Grafton Street

A Quick Meal

Ask for VAN CAMP'S

We are now booking cement and asphalt shingles for spring delivery.

THE ROGERS HARDWARE CO. LTD.

the profit made on the hogs at that time. Why didn't you take a little bit of that and pay a bonus to those men who must be in need."

Premier Jones: "We offered them more than they asked for and they wouldn't go to work."

Mr. Matheson: "They were misguided in the matter. It was not altogether their fault. When the thing was settled you should have been a little more lenient with them."

Referring to the Premier's reference to the possibility of dredging mussel mud on a large scale, Mr. Matheson suggested that a beginning be made at Oyster Bed Bridge. He also dealt briefly with widows' allowances, and the need for more uniform distribution of extra mural relief.

More Timidity

In his opening remarks he recalled that last summer, in speaking before the Women's Institutes, Premier Jones had suggested that the women return to their homes and pick out the ablest men to elect. His own chief difficulty had been to pick out men to run the various departments. Apparently at this time the Premier did not feel he had men of sufficient calibre.

"We had a promise in the Liberal election platform to set up a Department of National Resources at once," Mr. Matheson said. "It seems strange to find timidity in the ranks of the Government at this stage, when they were so definite in their election promises. At the commencement of this first session the people expected to see all the Cabinet seats filled, and are disappointed at the result."

The property vote, Mr. Matheson said, was a "nuisance one" and he wished to add his support to the proposal to have it repealed or amended.

SPRING VALLEY SCHOOL

Report for January:
Grade X — 1. Lorne Brennan.
2. Elaine Sudebury, 3. Dolly Cole.
Grade VIII — 1. Brenton Cole.
Grade VII — 1. Don Casley,
2. Joyce Campbell, 3. Louis Brennan.
Grade VI — 1. Don Sudebury,
2. Shirley Brynton.
Grade IV — 1. Keith Sudebury,
2. Wayne Harrington, 3. George Glover.
Grade III Sr. — 1. Rilla Brennan,
2. Sylvia Proffitt.
Grade III Jr. — 1. Gerald Sudebury.
Grade 1 — 1. Patricia Harrington and Shirley Campbell (equal).
Perfect Attendance — Leaman Cole, Keith Sudebury.
Teacher — Lorene MacLellan.

RELIEVE ACHE & PAINS BY RUBBING IN

19-46
MINARD'S PAIN LINIMENT
35¢

We are now booking cement and asphalt shingles for spring delivery.

THE ROGERS HARDWARE CO. LTD.

BEAU

By Mrs. Harry Fugh Smith

Scotty stared at her in astonishment. "Gosh! don't you understand? I've got five thousand dollars in the bank. I can go in with Beau and buy the Maryville House. We'll get a government loan and fix it up. We'll run the best small-town hotel in this state."

"Are you laboring under the impression that I will turn into a chambermaid or something?" demanded Rosalie jolly. "If so let me disabuse your mind. I have no intention of living in Maryville. I have no intention of going into the hotel business. I have no intention of..."

"Marrying me?" suggested Scotty. "Five thousand dollars?" cried Rosalie bitterly. "When that's gone you'll starve, and it just happens that I like to eat."

"Meaning you're jilting me?" asked Scotty with a lit in his voice.

"Yes."

"Well," said Scotty, "I'll bear up, believe it or not."

He left early the next morning for Maryville. He could not wait to get to Beau with his tidings. When he reached the filling station however, Beau was out campaigning.

Scotty walked around the house. Jennie Sue was bending over the oven, basting a roast. Her face was flushed, little dimples clung to her forehead. She caught her breath when Scotty spoke over her shoulder. "They've tied a tin can to me at home, Jennie Sue," he said. "Turned me out to sink or swim."

"Oh, Scotty!"

"I've got five thousand dollars from my grandfather's estate and that's all I'm ever going to get. Just enough to buy a run-down hotel like the Maryville House."

"I always thought it would be fun to run a hotel," said Jennie Sue.

Scotty grinned ruefully. "Here's your chance. Maybe I'm a sap to keep asking you, Jennie Sue, but you see I like you, I like you so much."

"I like you too Scotty, I always have."

"But not enough to risk marrying me," said Scotty ruefully.

Jennie Sue turned a little white. "Not while you were the heir to a lot of money, Scotty."

"I'd have been terrible as a rich man's wife, Scotty. I can't do society. I'd have embarrassed you right to death. You'd have been ashamed of me. But I—I ought to make a nice wife for—a man who has to run a hotel for a living I mean I can cook and—"

"Nice," breathed Scotty. "Oh, Jennie Sue, you'd be perfect!"

He put out his arms shyly. He was afraid to believe it could be true. Blushing exquisitely, Jennie Sue slipped into his embrace. Scotty stroked and kissed her and somehow it was as if all his life he had been lost, but was found.

Jennie Sue and Scotty were married the last week in March. Carolyn was the only member of his family at the wedding. She had said she was not going. She had received an affectionate letter from Jennie Sue urging her to come, but Carolyn answered with a formal note tending her regrets. Then when the day arrived she could not stay away. She created a stir at the breakfast table by announcing that she was driving down to Maryville as soon as she had eaten.

Maryville to her eye presented much the same sleepy aspect as of old in spite of the scaffolding which encircled the hotel where extensive repairs were under way. Jennie Sue and Scotty were not taking a wedding trip. They were moving straight into the Maryville House. Every penny they possessed was invested there.

"We've got to make good," Scotty had written. "Jennie Sue is going to do the cooking, with a negro woman to wash the dishes. I'll be porter and head waiter and bell hop if necessary till we get on our feet, and we wouldn't change places with a nabob."

The town was liberally decorated with placards for the coming election. There was a large lithograph of Beau smiling from every tree and telephone post. Underneath was his platform. He advocated a cooperative system of buying for the retail merchant to offset the chain store and drastic changes in the type of merchandise offered.

"Climb out of the rat with Beau!" was his slogan.

Carolyn's heart was beating very fast as she drew up outside the filling station. The garage wall was covered with second-hand tires offered for sale, the two tourist cabins which had been poined together were separated. Otherwise the place was unchanged. Carolyn had telephoned Scotty that she was coming down. She had not wanted to do anything so melodramatic as walking in upon Beau unannounced. Doty spied her first and came tearing around the house. "Oooh! Aunt Caro's here!" she shouted, flinging her arms about Carolyn's knees.

Carolyn was grateful for Doty's welcome. It made everything less embarrassing. Holding tightly to the child's hand, she advanced to the rear of the house.

(To Be Continued)

NEWSY NOTES
(Continued from page 7)

he deprived of the thunderbolt for some unknown reason. The Romans always represented Caesar's eagle with outstretched wings designed probably to show his untiring activity, and to intimate that his shadow covered the entire world.

If the Roman legion suffered defeat, it was the duty of the standard-bearer to break the lance from the lance on which it was mounted and to bury it, so that it would not fall into the hands of the enemy. This took place after the fatal battle of Lake Thrasymurus, and the precaution saved the only legionary eagle that has survived till modern times. It was found on the land of Count d'Erlach in Germany, was of bronze gilt, three inches high and the whole design weighed eight pounds. It is supposed to have belonged to the 2ndnd legion, who were defeated by the Alemanni. It is not likely, however, that this irreplaceable antique has escaped destruction in the World War.

The day when all men's weal shall be each man's care.—Frances Willard (address in 1890).

RELIEVE ACHE & PAINS BY RUBBING IN

19-46
MINARD'S PAIN LINIMENT
35¢

G. F. Hutcheson & Son
OPTOMETRISTS
Specialists in the fitting of glasses for the correction of ocular defects.
28 Grafton Street

A Quick Meal

Ask for VAN CAMP'S

We are now booking cement and asphalt shingles for spring delivery.

THE ROGERS HARDWARE CO. LTD.

What Price Value?

Fine quality at the right price... that's our idea of true value. Typical of the true values we offer are the Green Precision watches in our selection. For years of value-giving, choose a Green.

G. H. TAYLOR
Jewellers For Four Generations