DESCENDED FROM NOTHING DUMB

Miss Gassaway (highly informed and talked ve): As I have tried to convince you before, Mrs. Blankman never descended from a dumb animal.

Mrs. Blank: I used to think he did, Miss Gassaway, but I've changed my belief since I met you.

HER PREFERENCE

"Gert, do you care for Carmen?" "Well, yes, but I believe I like hermen better."

PHYSICAL CULTURE IN CAVELAND

Mrs. Sabertooth: I wish you'd let me join the women's gymnasium class to build up my strength.

Sabertooth: Nothing! You're strong enough right now to do all the work around this cave. If you was any stronger I couldn't make you do it.

JUST THE THING

Farmer Bug: Pw fortunate, I want to paint the barn red, this Spring!

The Yellow Stub

"Killed her, more than likely," growled O'Day. "Rand, I'm an old fool. I'm sorry for thinkin' what I did about her, an' I'm man enough to apologise when I see her again. But this here bird, and he indicated the covering Church, 'he cooked. There's not only murder against him, but abduction an' a number of other things."

"By the way, Church," he continued, "what was that you stuck in your pocket?" He fumbled with his large hand through Church's coat, fished out a folded paper and spread it on the table.

"It's a will, Rand, the will of Thaddeus Rand, I guess this is yours."

"Take care of it," said Jimmy. "They'll be wanting it as evidence later on. Hold on, though, guess I'll read it over, myself."

"Yep," he said later, when he had gone over it. "It's just as dooney's information, whoever he was, said, Henry Rand or his heirs, Samuel Church executor."

He looked at Church again, but he was speaking to O'Day. "I believe that's all, Lieutenant." Once more dull depression settled on him, and the draught of victory was bitter on his lips. Mary, the girl he loved, no longer unattainable but waiting to hear from him. And now that he knew she was his and his agonized longing was at an end his triumph was suddenly flat like that of some seeker who blind to everything but his goal finds it, and when it is in his grasp pauses to see what has been overlooked in the quest.

There was Olga, broken in spirit, hurt with nothing to look forward to. And she loved him; had told him with her lips with her eyes with faithful devotion to him. What a debt he owed her—what a debt.

"And God help me," he agonized, "how can I pay it?" He thought, "Church has licked me, after all."

Surprisingly, it was Church himself who broke into his reverie. He said with a forced smile and affected indifference, Congratulations, Rand. You win. Lots of money now. . . you can marry her, and they lived happily ever after."

"Shut up, you!" growled O'Day. He had missed nothing. There was a rare amount of sympathy and understanding beneath his tough hide.

It had not occurred to Jimmy that he was wealthy. He failed to realize it even then. He thought, "Yes, I suppose I can—and trample on that poor girl you dragged down."

To Church he remarked quietly, "you'll never realize what you've done to me," and turned away to hide his face.

A struggle went on within him. As long as Mary had been out of his reach he had been indifferent to everything else—his indifference at any rate, as a sensitive nature would permit.

Then his path had seemed so clear. But now it had branched, and one way lay desire and the other way—his duty? He thought of going to Olga and saying, "You troubles, I've got 'em. My friends, I'll see that you get a start—your career."

But the words in his mind were mere empty phrases. It would be nothing short of hypocrisy, he thought.

He groaned aloud. "Lord, that's not paying her back, I owe her everything," and was started when O'Day put a hand on his shoulder.

"Come, lad," O'Day was saying, "let's get out of here. You need to sleep it over. Too much of a strain. You're tired, an' you're hurt, an' you're nerves are all in pieces. You need quiet."

He turned toward his men. "Bring him along, boys," and pointed to Church.

When he spoke again to Rand his manner was bluff and hearty. "Did I tell you how Mooney got that dope from Mexico City? No? Well, he called me up first and sent the telegram out as confirmation. I told him, 'I want it.' Seems he had an old friend who used to be on the force years ago in Grafton and who went down to Mexico, learned the language an' then settled down in some business or other."

"Mooney got in touch with him, an' this fellow did some gumshoe work and finally found these Mexican lawyers Thaddeus used to deal with. They told him the dope and he relays it right back to Mooney. Simple as pie wasn't it—after he got on the right track?"

Jimmy heard him listlessly. As they were leaving in the manner, free O'Day, with a sweeping glance around him said, "Pine house you've got here, Rand. Do you realize, my boy that it's yours? Why you're a millionaire, lad!" He whispered, "Think of it!"

And then he threw an arm around the other's shoulders. "Aw-

Don't Fuss With Mustard Plasters!

Musterole Works Without the Blister—Easier, Quicker

Don't mix a mess of mustard, pour and water when you can relieve pain, soreness or stiffness with a little clean, white Musterole.

Musterole is made of pure oil of mustard and other helpful ingredients, in the form of a white ointment. It takes the place of mustard plasters, and is better.

Musterole usually gives prompt relief from sore throat, bronchitis, tonsillitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest (it may prevent pneumonia).

back up, lad back up! It has been hard, but you've pulled through on top. Imagine the guy spending your money all these years. But it's yours now and let's hope you put it to a better use."

"I hope," said Jimmy thoughtfully, "I hope I'll be generous, that's all."

He watched dully while the officers sat silent, his mind a muddled jumble of thoughts as he tried to reach some kind of a decision. And then, frowning, he set his teeth he knew.

"Want me to drop you off at home?" O'Day asked, "or are you coming with us?"

"I'm going down there later to meet Barry Colvin," said Jimmy. "First of all though I've got to see Olga Maynard."

STOCK MARKET

(Canadian Press)

MONTREAL, April 6.—(Dominion livestock report)—There were 100 cattle, 9 sheep, 517 hogs and 1,662 calves for sale on the two markets this morning. One load of good quality north west steers were sold for $7.50 and $8.50 and a load of fairly good quality brought $7.00 common dairy type cows sold from $3.50 to $4.25, and bulls were very hard to sell.

Calves were the dominant feature of the whole market and prices ranged from $6.00 to $7.50 with a few better sales at $5.00 and $5.50. Practically all the calves were sold in unbranded lots and the ruling price was between $6.25 and $6.75. One straight carload brought $7.60. Hogs were about steady with yesterday receipts were light and most sales were made at $14.50, a few brought $14.25 and some poor quality hogs $14.00.

Worms in children work havoc.

These pests attacks the tender lining of the intestines and, if left to pursue their ravages undisturbed will ultimately perforate the wall, because these worms are of the hook variety that cling to and feed upon the interior surfaces. Miller's Worm Powders will not only exterminate these worms, of whatever variety but will serve to repair the injury they have done.

Worms in children work havoc.

Went about unravelling case something like officer Doyle. Would not undertake to swear to a footprint seen a day or two ago and one seen today. Measured one print in the yard with his own. Take a 9-12, (prisoner's rubber produced). It is an 8. Mr. Johnston: "Isn't that 698?" "Isn't that a 7?" "Yes it is a 7." Witness shown the other rubber. A reading glass was then produced. It is a 7 rubber. "I did not swear it was an 8 impression." "I do not agree or disagree with officer Doyle as to the size of the footprint. Did not measure the footprint seen in Anderson's yard. The prints looked the same. We were doing some figuring. Mr. Johnston: Then there was some figuring you did not do, you neglected to measure them. Concluded it was a lame person. The prisoner is not lame. Was not trying to persuade him he was lame. The footprints looked alike but would not swear they were the same. The money produced, "Is that the same money?" "It is the money given to the Chief." The money got in his pocket were all one dollar bills. They searched around pretty well. That was what they got—$8.50. (Key produced). There is no gum on it now. The gum has disappeared. On Sunday night there was a pinkish gray substance like gum on it. (Rubbers produced). Heel of right rubber worn most. Witness' own rubbers produced. Asked by Mr. Johnston when he bought them he said on Monday. Did not have the rubbers which

The trial of Ernest Farly, charged with the theft of money from Murdoch Anderson, was resumed in the Police Court yesterday before Stipendiary Martin.

Following is the continuation of the evidence:—

Officer Dominic Doyle (re-called): There was gum on one key. It is not there now. Witness did not take it off. Saw the gum on key while he was in the house. "I know gum when I see it." It was about the size of the head of a match. Did not know what it was. (Other articles found on prisoner produced). Another key shown witness who said the stuff on the key was paint. Then gum. Would not swear it was gum. Don't know. The stuff on the other key appeared like gum that was not chewed. He did not show it to any one. Witness was shown two packs of gum unopened and one pack empty. Gum could not come from any of these. Shown a key but would not swear the substance sticking to it was old or fresh. Arrested prisoner about 1:30 Tuesday morning. Walked behind prisoner all the way up. Time was shown to her. It was 11:30. There was a day and a half intervening. There was some fresh snow. Halt an inch. There was snow on Monday night or Tuesday morning. Snowing when he was arrested.

To Attorney General: When he was examining tracks witness used a light. There was a snow bank back of the house. Witness received the key shown from Mrs. Anderson, who secured it from the front porch the night of the robbery. On Tuesday morning found prisoner in his room. Witness heard him say nothing.

Officer Higgins on being sworn, said he came into the case shortly after 11 o'clock on Sunday night, March 28th. I went down to Anderson's house with Officer Doyle. We saw tracks from Anderson's back door to the lot on Grafton Street. A man's tracks. On the tracks of the smaller tracks he noticed the right heel appeared to scuff or drag before it made an impression. There were other tracks made by the officers who were down previously. They lost the tracks on Grafton street. Did not go in the house that night. Went down about 7:20 the following evening to Mr. Anderson's house. Went into a vacant house across the street to see if the key would fit the door. After that got information from Farquharson's Livery Stable. Secured a warrant from the Magistrate. Went to Farly's on Richmond Street east. Three houses from Anderson's, east. Officer Doyle with him. It was about 2:30 a. m. Prisoner was in bed. Officer Doyle read warrant and witness searched his clothing hanging on the wall. Prisoner's two coats and vest. Found $8.50 in inside breast pocket of brown coat. Eight one-dollar bills and fifty cents. Officer Doyle spoke to the prisoner at all. No questions asked. No inducements to have a statement made. He said that was the wages he received on Saturday night from Edward Lynds. That was all that was said. He was brought to the Station. It was snowing when they produced. Officer Melanis called his attention to substance on key. Looked like gum. It is not there now.

IN MEMORIAM

FLORENCE MacKINNON

The death of Florence MacKinnon which occurred at her home in Alexandria on the tenth day of February was a source of unusual sorrow and regret to her family, to her friends, and to the community in general. Her passing at an early age, while deeply enamoured by the beauties of art and the wonders of science and with bright prospects of a happy life is particularly sad.

Her life, which was spent mostly at her home—seemed always to produce on those who came within her sphere a beneficial and permanent influence. Her keen intellect and ready wit made her an agreeable companion to those of more mature years, while her blithe and generous disposition made her a general favorite among the younger people and especially the children in whom she always delighted.

A full appreciation of her worth can be had only by those who knew her intimately, and in the transition her family and friends have sustained a grievous loss. There are left to mourn her demise her mother and three brothers, Reginald, in his final year at Howard University, George, of the staff of Queen Square School, and Alphonsus at home; also an adopted brother Richard at home. The following were the pall-bearers: Winston Smith, Gay Judson, Roland Cody, John McMillan, Bruce Judson, and Wilfred Judson.

Floral tributes—Family, cross, Mr. and Mrs. W. Chester McLure, spray, Mr. and Mrs. Jenkne bouquet.

Mass cards—Mother and brothers, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Bradbury, Boston, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Prendergast, Boston, Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Brown, Mrs. L. I. Reddick, Mr. A. Des Roche and family, Mrs. N. FAMOUS FEET

...how they're kept free from corns..

Blue-jay

THE SAFE AND GENTLE WAY TO END A CORN

"I think a lot of my feet," writes Adelaide Hughes, the charming danseuse of Broadway musical hits.

"So much rests on them—including my pay check . . . that's why I am so strong for Blue-jay. . . . A dancer's feet lead a hard life. . . . but I never fear corns.

"As soon as I sight a sign of one, I put on a Blue-jay. . . . and it goes before it comes, if you know what I mean."

Thousands of noted folks who reap fame and fortune from their feet, including actors, screen stars and athletes, keep a supply of Blue-jay always at hand—both to keep corns from coming and to banish, quickly and easily, those that insist on arriving. . . . At all drug stores.
