OUR OPPORTUNITY:—Be thou exalted, O God, above the heavens: and thy glory above all the earth. Psalm 108:5.

PRAYER:—Sing unto the Lord, ye saints of His, and give thanks at the remembrance of His Holiness.

THE CLOUD'S GOLDEN LINING

It may be we often feel weary,
And tired of life's worries and care,
We feel all forsaken and dreary,—
Our load is too heavy to bear:
And yet in the cloud, there is shining
The rainbow of hope, as of old;
We may think of the cloud's silver lining,
I am sure it will prove to be gold.

It may be some lingering illness
Compels us to rest by the way;
We feel in the night's solemn stillness
God's discipline hard to obey;
Yet here God's love is entwining
The ill with the good we are told:
We may think of the cloud's silver lining,
I am sure it will prove to be gold.

The loss of some friend or some treasure
Brings sorrow and tears to the eye;
Life seems to have robbed us of pleasure,
And nothing is left but to die;
Yet why should we yield to repining
When God numbers the sheep in His fold;
We may think of the cloud's silver lining,
I am sure it will prove to be gold.

So when the clouds gather and darken,
And fill us with fear and alarm,
We look for the rainbow, and harken,
And know that there's nothing can harm.
All the music of heaven is combining
In notes both melodious and bold:
We may think of the cloud's silver lining,
I am sure it will prove to be gold.

Ferns

Quite often a fern that is considered dead can be revived by standing the pot in a tub of hot water for about an hour, or until the water becomes cool.

Cleaning Granite

If burnt spots are on granite, cover the spot with a teaspoonful of soda and a little water and heat to boiling point. Then wash at once. Never scrape it with a knife.

Ironing Board

Newspapers make an excellent padding for the ironing board, preferred by many to a blanket.

Acid Fruits

A pinch of salt always helps to sweeten acid fruits when cooking.

For corns and bunions use Minard's Liniment.

SAYS "GORILLA SERMONS" CARRY NO WEIGHT

Archbishop of Canterbury Replies to Rev. E. W. Barnes, Bishop of Birmingham. Recent Incident in St. Paul's Condemned.

LONDON, Oct. 24.— The reply of the Archbishop of Canterbury to the letter recently addressed to him by Rt. Rev. Ernest William Barnes, Bishop of Birmingham, supporting the theory of evolution, condemning the doctrine of transubstantiation and charging that religious leaders are ignoring the work of scientists, is contained in a statement issued to the press today.

The Archbishop of Canterbury regards as the Bishop's chief error his words regarding the sacrament, which he declares have given offence to a great body of church members. He also condemns the recent incident in St. Paul's Cathedral when Rev. Dr. Bullock Webster entered the edifice and, addressing the congregation, condemned Bishop Barnes for moulding his interpretations of religious problems to conform to the theories of scientists.

The Archbishop of Canterbury's statement follows:

"You will not doubt my condemnation of the unseemly incident in St. Paul's. Not by an action of that sort can the cause of truth be reasonably set forward. But speaking generally I think you too are mistaken as to what it is that has been evoked from cultured men with scientific, philosophical as well as theological knowledge judging from the vehement reprobation of some of your recent utterances.

"Regarding these, I probably have received, publicly or privately more condemnations than anyone excepting yourself. I do not attach great weight to what I have heard described as 'the Gorilla sermons.' I believe you over-rate the adherence of thoughtful people to the creation theories of fifty or one hundred years ago and I scarcely think that among those who listen to you, there are a great number holding the opinions which you satirize. For myself I can say at least your position on the biological question in outline and so far as I understand it, is one wherewith I personally have been familiar for over 50 years.

READY TO DISCUSS SUBJECT.

"This teaching however admirable, is, to most, novel. I do not think those hearing you on the subject with interest and advantage would recognize themselves as 'wistful agnostics.' You may, I am certain, my dear Bishop, dismiss the fear that anyone in England desires to drive you either to Rome or Tennessee. The words giving rise to the sort of indignation referred to are the words you use in dealing with the sacrament of holy communion. It is on what you have said regarding the sacramental doctrine that intelligent and large minded church men, lay as well as clerical, have daily approached me. I have an intense dislike of the use of the daily press for the discussion of such subjects. I purposely refrain from from trying in such a letter as this to discuss the profound life-giving doctrines involved, but, of course, I am more than ready to go into the matter with yourself if you desire. Your open letter forces me, however reluctantly, to some reply. Formally, publicly you invite me 'to consider what steps can be taken to help those of us who are giving of our best to fit the church to be in the future a spiritual guide of an educated nation."

STATEMENTS DIFFER

"It is a large and difficult matter, needing time and care, but I can say at once that in my judgment one of the first steps is to secure as scrupulous use of the most careful language possible in dealing with doctrinal matters of deep solemnity affecting the devotional thoughts and prayers of Christian people. That duty, obligatory upon all Christian teachers, is peculiarly incumbent upon bishops who have to weigh the effect of our words upon all sections of the great body to whom we desire to be fathers in God. While, as you have truly said, 'smooth unctuous platitudes' are not enough, yet in all the range of our duties there is none called for more clearly than the exercise of tender, fatherly carefulness in word and act. In your open letter you assure me of what you have been doing lately and have been denounced for doing "as a bishop to uphold traditional sacramental doctrine, and to affirm, as we call affirm, that "the doctrine of transubstantiation is untrue." Do not suppose me to be unmindful of our duty to stem whatever trend there is in that way. But when I turn to your Birmingham sermon which aroused this criticism I find the statement you make to me fails to describe fairly what you there said.

GIVES REAL OFFENCE

"In your natural legitimate desire to denounce the few in the Church of England who hold or teach transubstantiation you were led to speak of the holy communion in a way which—quite reasonably I think—has given real offence to a great body of churchmen and women, not the least of those who are able to give scholarly as well as reiterant consideration to the sacramental doctrine which our church upholds. I do not believe you had any intention of wounding the souls of honest faithful English churchmen but you ignore or belittle the position of teaching those within the church who stand with such English bishops as Andrews of Ken or Wilson or in our own day Edward King or Charles Gore.

"Your words seem to be capable of being so interpreted as to include in reprobation or almost in contempt the position of the great mass of Churchmen who would associate themselves with the teaching of such leaders as say, my own great masters. Bishop Lightfoot or Bishop Westcott or who have caught the devotional spirit of Charles Wesley's hymns. I prefer to think if you read your Birmingham sermon in the light of such criticism as your letter has drawn from me you will feel that what I have said is not unfair.

BISHOPS MUST LEAD WAY

"When I read your words about the grace of our Saviour's presence being in the whole act of worship they leave me wondering whether, if you were to consider what are their implications you would not find further cause to modify the width and scope of your negative and destructive statements. We all have been impressed in these recent months by the self-restraint and considerateness for others shown by many clergy and laity foremost in our prayer book discussions. To the larger tasks which lie beyond these discussions we bishops must lead the way. But we shall lead only if we talk 'with all lowliness and meekness and long suffering,' being obliged to keep the unity of the spirit in the bond of peace."

Edward King refered to in the Archbishop's statement, was Bishop of Lincoln, who died 18 years ago, and who many years previously had been tried and imprisoned for certain acts of ceremonial then deemed illegal. Nobody however, ever doubted his saintliness and personality.

Bishop Gore is still preaching and holding to evolution in much the same way as Bishop Barnes. Singularly enough Bishop Gore last year preached a series of sermons in St. Paul's Cathedral on this very subject which though receiving the widest attention aroused no acute controversy. Bishop Gore, however, would probably take a strong objection to Bishop Barnes' sacramental views.

Changes its own Records

Plays twelve records without attention.—Runs itself for a whole hour. No operating effort on your part.—Just listen.

WHEN you turn on the current, the turntable starts to revolve; a mechanical "hand" takes the first record from the group of twelve and places it on the turntable; the tone-arm moves into position; the sound-box is lowered and the music begins. At the end of the selection, the mechanical "hand" removes the record from the turntable, slides it gently into a felt-lined concealed drawer, and "picks off" the next record from the magazine arm. These operations are repeated until the last record is played, then the mechanism stops automatically.

So magnificent an instrument demands an exterior of exceptional beauty. Victor craftsmen have designed a distinguished cabinet for the Automatic Orthophonic Victrola, in which every luxurious touch that ingenuity can devise has been incorporated.

The price of the automatic instrument is $775. Other models of the Orthophonic Victrola Instruments are obtainable at prices ranging from $430. down to $115.

Obtainable on convenient terms from "His Master's Voice" Dealers. Demonstrations now going on. If your dealer hasn't one he will order it for you.
