Regimentation At Last For All Out War

citizen of this country. Regimentation is the system of total war and we must be regimented before we can produce the machinery of total war. I would like to think, however, that we can develop a democratic version of regimentation. I would like to believe that we do not need a Gestapo nor a horde of Government police officers to make necessary controls work. I know how difficult it is. I know that the almost daily flow of restrictions and instructions makes life miserable and that the sudden discontinuance of something which we have considered almost as much a necessity of life as fresh air and sunshine is hard to take. I know that a serious reduction in one's standard of living in any class of society is one of the most difficult pieces of personal discipline to achieve. But we must all do it and if we are to adhere to democratic principles in doing it, we must do it without having to depend upon the compulsion of law.

In wartime the code of regulations for society undergoes very drastic revision. Of necessity, many privileges and freedoms must be denied in the interests of the safety of the State. Curiously enough, many otherwise respectable individuals take a belligerent attitude towards wartime regulations. They are prepared to adhere to those which they think all right but may deliberately disobey or condemn those to which they object. They fail to see that in resisting wartime controls they are playing directly into the hands of the enemy!

It is time for a definite change in the attitude of the public towards the evader of wartime regulations. Each person should regard it as his duty to search out the meaning of the law and to observe it in spirit, and not grudgingly in the letter. Moreover, he should go further and try to organize a community feeling to assist in campaigns to see that wartime restrictions and regulations are faithfully observed. Each citizen should regard himself as his brother's keeper and let it be known that the evader of wartime regulations is a creature unfit for human association. Of course, we are going to have regimentation and more regimentation, but let us develop it without the ugly meaning which it has been given in Gestapo land and by the Japanese imitators. Let us paraphrase Abraham Lincoln—let it be Regimentation of the People by the People and for the People. Then, and then only, can we accept confidently the challenge of Winston Churchill—"They asked for total war, let us see that they get it."

Will Extend T. C. To Newfoundland

OTTAWA, March 26 — (C P) — Trans-Canada Air Lines announced today that air service will be extended to Newfoundland shortly, allowing persons to travel from Ottawa to Newfoundland by air in 16 hours. Extension of the service will be made by continuing one section of the daily Trans-Continental flights throught to Newfoundland instead of stopping at Moncton it was announced.

The air miles distance from Moncton to St. John's, Nfld., is 700 miles. A stop will be made between the two points at Sydney, N. S.

IS CHOSEN AS AIR STEWARDESS

MONCTON, N. B. March 26 — Among those chosen from a recent stewardess' training class held in Toronto to fil the gaps in Trans-Canada Air Lines Stewardesses caused by cupid and the war was Miss. Jane Hunt, R. N., who is a graduate of the Moncton City Hospital ,class of 1941. Miss. Hunt was born at Argentia, Newfoundland and was one of three registered nurses practising their profession in the Maritimes Provinces who took the course. It was the largest training class since 1938. Supervisory Stewardess Margaret Dickson in charge of Stewardess training for Canada's National Air Line stated "it seems that if our Stewardesses don't join the armed forces they marry them in war time."

The Cigarette Tax

Making out one's tax in triplicate is a troublesome business. The forms cost the government (i.e. the taxpayer) money to print. And the taxpayer ultimately pays also the salaries and overhead of the small army of auditors whom he sees in imaginatio relentlessly checking over the forms he has made out.

Collecting taxes through cigarettes, on the other hand, is simplicity itself. The manufacturer buys an excise stamp (i. e. pays the tax) before the cigarettes go on the market. The stamp is, in effect, the government's receipt for something over half a cent for each cigarette in the package.

Thus the government has the use of the cash before the smoker reimburses the manufacturer by purchasing the cigarettes — and the stamp. And few smokers even realize that they are thus making a daily cash contribution to Canada's war effort! Approximately $74,000,000.00 in 1941.

The Wade Kidnap Case

By Leslie Cargill

With the recognition of Marsh Hollow Manor as the hide-out familiar methods of investigation could be adopted. From this point they were not working so completely in the dark. An estate agent was able to describe a tall, gentlemanly client who had taken the house on a quarterly tenancy, paying in advance. It was fairly well furnished but linen and other incidents had been bought locally.

Then there were tradespeople who had called. Payments had been regular. In all cases the tenant had given the name of Jones, which in the light of later discoveries rather lacked imagination but had passed muster. Residence had been taken up about a month before the disappearance of Sir Timothy Wade.

"Planned well in advance," Major Mosson said, placing these facts before the assistant commissioner.

Captain Caythers did not smile at the obviousness. The case was driving him into a state of unusual seriousness. "Quite so," he agreed. "And confoundedly well organized. A darned sight better than on our side."

"I've been expecting a wigging, sir."

"H'm, this isn't the time to give you one. I'm not blaming you much. That fellow Broome has been the worst offender."

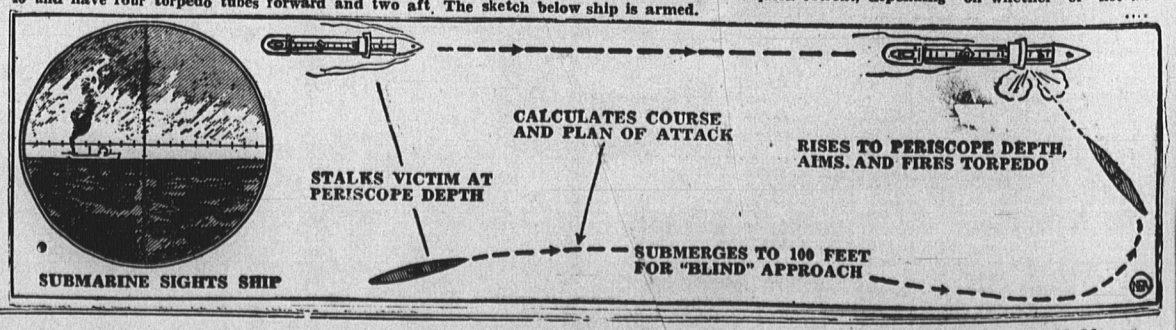
The cutaway diagrammatic sketch, above, shows a German submarine of the larger type now operating off the Atlantic coast. These boats have enough fuel capacity to cross the ocean, stay in action for a week or ten days, and return to their base, though it is possible that some of them may be refueling at a secret rendezvous on this side of the Atlantic. Displacing nearly 800 tons, these submarines carry a crew of 40 and have four torpedo tubes forward and two aft. The sketch below ship is armed.



shows one way a submarine stalks a victim. After sighting the prey and watching it for a while, the U-boat commander calculates the course and speed necessary to bring him into the best position for attack. Then he submerges to 100 feet or less, makes a "blind" approach toward the victim, cautiously breaks water with his periscope, takes final aim, and fires one or two torpedoes. He may surface to watch the effect of the torpedoes.
