A Record

Statistics show that nearly twenty per cent of all deaths are caused by ailments which begin with coughs and colds.

Everytime you catch a cold or start coughing, you are in peril. The seemingly trifling cough if neglected, will invade the deeper lying tissues and penetrate to the delicate air passages of the lungs.

Any cough, however slight, should have immediate attention.

At this season extreme care should be exercised.

"THE SLIGHTEST COUGH MAY BECOME SERIOUS."

Anglican and Roman Catholic Conference

Preaching in St. Peter's Cathedral on Sunday, the rector, Rev. E. M. Malone dealt with the conference taking place in Belgium, choosing as his text St. Matthew's 2:9: "Lo, the star which they saw in the East, went before them, till it came and stood over where the young Child was." He said:

In the guiding of the wise men to the feet of Christ that they might pay Him their homage, this thought comes uppermost: God is guiding men who are willing to follow His guidance to that which all humanity has sought and is all His majesty, His beauty and His glory. That was what the wise men found. The star which led them so long, through so many vicissitudes, at last halted: "It came and stood over where the young Child was." The object of their journey was attained—God had led them to Himself. It is just this that we want to be sure of in our own lives. In my belief, my prayers, my communions, my rule of life, is God leading me to Himself? Are we led to worship? Do we feel that the living life leads us to adore the living God? If so our hearts may rest satisfied; if we have been led to worship then we have been led right.

There is much to perplex us in our beliefs and our religion today. More so now when newspapers seem all too ready to swoop upon every phase of religious thought, to seize on any idiosyncrasy of the high placed leader of any religious denomination frequently to magnify and distort out of all proportion statements and occurrences just for the sake of stimulating the interest of their readers. Quite lately the Montreal Star gave prominence to what, if the headlines alone were considered, would mean a difficult discussion of relations between the leaders of the Anglican and Roman churches. It really turns out to be nothing more than an unofficial conference between certain Anglican and other Belgian and French Catholics. These conferences are of an old standing. In October, 1921, to Cardinal Mercier of Malines; the subjects of their discussion being published in a small booklet by Lord Halifax, entitled "A Call to Re-union," from which I have quoted a few lines for our information. As long ago as 1894 Pope Leo XIII contemplated such conferences for discussing the points which separated the two churches. The question to which most prominence was given then was that of Anglican orders and little success attended the negotiations. Lord Halifax, however, put out a memorandum as a basis of discussion and there was found to be a great measure of agreement on certain specific points, e.g., on baptism, on Apostolic Succession, on the meaning of the words "body and Blood of Christ" are verily and indeed given, taken and received in Holy Sacrament."—these being the actual words of the Catholicism supplemented by Article 27. The question of Papal supremacy or infallibility was not discussed. The cardinal's opinion the preservation of the Church Unity without a visible head seemed in principle and practice impossible. Lord Halifax, while admitting that for the defense of religion and morals such a visible head of the church may be necessary, yet feels that the two pronouncements of Pope Leo XIII should have greater weight in the practical policy of the Vatican. viz: (1) that the supremacy of the pope implies no claim to authority or infallibility; (2) that the authority of every bishop is not from the pope, but from Christ Himself. Lord Halifax concludes by saying that if any see in this a surrender to Roman claims, he assures them that from the time of his confirmation, 70 years ago, he has tried to conform his life to the requirements of the Book of Common Prayer, that his communions and confessions have been governed by it, that he hopes and believes he would gladly die rather than any action of his should cast a doubt on the purposes of God in regard to the Church of England, but because of the absolute security which he feels as a member of that church he does not hesitate to advocate the duty of endeavoring to recognize the need of a visible centre for the Catholic Church throughout the world.

Since the publication of this pamphlet in 1922 great prominence has been given in newspapers to the controversy between the Fundamentalists and Modernists, or Churchmen and Radicals, as they have been termed. Rollin Lynde Hart in a series of articles in the World's Work, speculates that in the end there will be two churches, one Catholic and the other Radical. In the face of this upsetting of accepted beliefs, to which is added a cynical disregard for the principles of the Gospel, the breakdown of the old morality, the tendency to substitute universal selfishness for the common good, we see in England today a drawing together of Anglo-Catholics and Evangelicals, or High and Low Churchmen, to defend the faith of Christ and the principles of Christianity. No doubt the same considerations have impelled members of the Anglican and Roman Catholic churches to discuss their differences unofficially with a view to reunion, and these conferences possibly have been in progress since 1922, as the Archbishop of Canterbury's statement seems to show.

It should be to us an occasion of rejoicing, even though no appreciable agreement is reached, because it is only another sign of God's guidance. Can we doubt that these men are following the guiding of the star, as did the wise men at the birth of Christ, and that it will lead them eventually to kneel as brethren before the altar of God?

We must never forget that the Church of England is part of the Catholic Church of Christ, that however laudable may be the desire for union with Protestant sects, yet any such union which excludes the Church of Rome or the Eastern Church can only accentuate and not heal the wounds in the body of Christ. Archbishop Murray, of Dublin, a Roman Catholic, wrote: "There are no irreconcilable differences if only the Church of England people were true to the principles laid down in their Prayer Book. The doctrinal differences, which appear considerable but are not so, would soon be removed, whilst on one side, as the instrument of the Most High for preaching peace to men of good will, we should leave nothing undone short of sacrificing truth towards and dividing Christendom."

Let us trust our leaders and follow the guiding of the star and in God's good time the rents in the body of Christ will be healed, if we work and pray that we and our separated brethren be once more knit together in one communion and fellowship in the mystical body of Christ our Lord.

Sulphur Clears A Pimply Skin
 Apply Sulphur as Told When Your Skin Breaks Out

Any breaking out of the skin on face, neck, arms or body is overcome quickest by applying Month-Sulphur. The pimples soon dry right up and go away, declares a noted skin specialist.

Nothing has ever been found to take the place of sulphur as a pimple remover. It is harmless and inexpensive. Just ask any drug list for a small jar of Rowles Month-Sulphur and use it like cold cream.

SCIENTIFIC FOX FEEDING

A well-balanced ration for your foxes is absolutely necessary at this season of the year. Cereal food is essential as well as fats and protein. The largest litters of young pups are produced in the ranches feeding Imperial Cod-Liver-Oil Fox Biscuits during the winter season. Many of the most experienced fox feeders on Prince Edward Island are now feeding these Biscuits right along, together with meat. There is a scientific reason for this; Carbohydrates produce energy. Fats are required to maintain heat and protein to build up the waste tissue and produce strong, vigorous foxes. Dr. J. Ennis Smith in his experiments has found the best results obtained from feeding 25 to 50 per cent cereal food during the winter months.

The Biscuits should be fed dry and in addition give your foxes all the milk they will drink, is the advice of several of our best breeders.

If your Wholesale dealer cannot supply you, write direct to us.

MESSRS. C. M. LAMPSON & CO.'S WINTER SALE WILL COMMENCE ON JANUARY 24, 1924

Fine Furs, such as Fox of all kinds, Beaver, Otter, Lynx, Fischer, etc., intended for the January Sale, should be in New York not later than the morning of January 4, 1924.

Staple articles, such as Skunk, Opossum, Muskrat, Mink, Raccoon, Bear, Wolf, etc., reaching New York by the morning of January 11, 1924, should arrive in London in time for inclusion in the Sale.

Messrs. C. M. Lampson & Co., report by cable that their market is becoming very active, owing to an increasing interest on the part of Continental buyers.

A good demand exists for White Fox, Raccoon, Muskrat, Southern Muskrat, Skunk and Opossum, and a fair demand for Mink and Northwestern Wolf.

Generally speaking, Messrs. Lampson & Co., expect to realize full October prices at their January Sale; but it is possible that, if the offering of American staple articles proves to be short, some improvement in prices may take place.
