CANADA'S SHELLS.

Canada has its shell problem as well as its recruiting problem. The American Machinist, a U. S. A., technical journal, explains with admiration in its current number, the work of the Canadian Shell Committee.

Two hundred Canadian shops are producing munitions of war. They are thoroughly organized into a great manufacturing unit, in which each plant produces its speciality, and depends on another in a large factory The Shell Committee, comprising expert managing engineers and military men, formed on Sept. 2 last, assembled the means and now run the production of munitions.

"The thing has been done so quietly," says the "American Machinist," "that but few have the least idea of its magnitude. We have looked upon the United States as being the home of the excessively large industrial undertakings, and the place where schemes are carried out so rapidly that the process resembles sleight of hand. But when it comes to a general average number of plants, number, and shortness of time available for organization, we must take off our hats to our Canadian neighbors and admit they hold the record."

IWAN HAMILTON DESCRIBES LANDING AT GALLIPOLI

LONDON, July 9.—"Throughout the events I have chronicled, the Royal Highness has been father and mother to the army. Not one of us but realizes how much he owes to Vice-Admiral de Robeck, to the warships, French and British; to the destroyers, mine-sweepers and picket boats, and to all their countless crews, who took in the thought of themselves, but risked everything to give their soldier comrades a fair run in at the enemy."

Thus General Sir Ian Hamilton, commander of the allied troops at the Dardanelles, pays tribute to the navy at the end of his first full report describing the purple days of the landing on the Gallipoli Peninsula. The commander-in-Chief's despatch to the War Office is of great length, but most of the events had already been chronicled in other official despatches from him.

General Hamilton admits it was "a touch and go" many times before the invaders established a footing. In several instances half of the landing parties were killed or wounded before they could reach even the slight shelter afforded by the sandy bank on the upper part of the beaches. A great majority of the senior officers were either killed or wounded.

"So strong, in fact, were the defenses," says the General, "that the Turks may well have considered them impregnable, and it is my firm conviction that no finer feat of arms has ever been achieved by the British soldier or any other soldier than the storming of these trenches from open boats on the morning of the 25th of April."

General Hamilton speaks of "long lines of men being mowed down as by a scythe." Of the endless chains of wire entanglements, he writes: "Again the heroic wire-cutters came out. Through the glasses they could be seen quietly snipping away under the hellish fire, as if they were pruning a vineyard."

Of the Australians, he says: "Like lightning leaped ashore, and each man that did so went straight as his bayonet at the enemy. So vigorous was the onslaught, the Turks made no attempt to withstand it, and fled from ridge to ridge, pursued by the Australian infantry."

A shortage of ammunition prevented the Allies from gaining the heights for footing on Achi Baba. "Had it been possible," says General Hamilton, "to push in reinforcements of men, artillery and munitions, Krithia should have fallen, and much subsequent fighting for its capture would have been avoided."

"Up to May 1," he continues, "the net result of the operations was the repulse of the Turks and the infliction upon them of very heavy losses. At first we had them fairly on the run, and had it not been for those inventions of the devil—machine guns and barbed wire—which suit the Turkish character and tactics to perfection, we should not have stopped short of the crest of Achi Baba."

General Hamilton pays high tribute to the French forces, who lost heavily. He reports the British losses during the period between April 25 and May 6 as 177 officers and 1,999 men killed; 412 officers and 7,897 men wounded; 13 officers and 3,580 men missing.

There was a good attendance of delegates and the following were admitted to the Grand Lodge Degree:— Rev. W. E. McVie, Wm. Grant, G. A. Watkins, Fred Mosher, Haddon McLeod, Thos. W. Obituary—Bros. Grant and Foster and Sister Gladys Rose.

Resolutions—Bros. Wilson, Tarbush, McVie and Mosher.

The reports of officers showed that the finances of the Grand Lodge were in a very satisfactory condition, but there was some falling off in membership although two Lodges were reorganized during the year and some lodges had made considerable increase of membership.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:— G. C. Templar—Jas. H. Brooks, Murray Harbour.

The invitation to meet in convention with St. Georges Lodge, Georgetown, for next annual session was cordially accepted.

The Committee on Political Action expressed its satisfaction at the progress made along temperance lines, especially in Russia and the United States; but deplored the fact that so few amendments were made to our own Prohibition Act at the late session and that these amendments were not yet put into operation.

The Committee on Resolutions submitted the following resolutions, which were adopted:— Whereas the facts brought before our Grand Lodge reveal a condition of affairs that ought not to exist in our province, and

Whereas our Legislators have admitted failure by refusing to have enforced the amendments recently introduced by them.

Therefore resolved that this Grand Lodge express its dissatisfaction and call upon the Government to enforce the amendments recently passed;

Further resolved that still more stringent legislation be asked for.

(2) Whereas this Grand Lodge has time after time realised one cause of the failure of our Prohibition Law to be the trading in liquor between the different provinces.

Therefore resolved that this Grand Lodge, through its secretary, send a request to the Hon. Sir R. L. Borden asking for legislation to prohibit inter-provincial trading in liquor and further that copies of the same be sent to our Island representatives.

The Committee on Obituary in their report submitted a tender and appreciative tribute to the late Rev. Edward Bell and also suitably referred to other members who during the year had passed to the great beyond.

Very interesting and encouraging reports of their lodges were presented by a number of the representatives. The thanks of the delegates were cordially extended to the members of Charlottetown Lodge for their generous hospitality, and a pleasant and apparently profitable meeting of the Grand Lodge was brought to a close.

The many friends of Miss Winnifred M. Back, formerly of Summerside, but now of Milltown, N. B., will regret to learn that she underwent an operation in St. Catherine's Hospital, St. Stephen, N. B., on Tuesday, but was reported to be doing as well as can be expected. For several months Miss Back was employed as stenographer with the firm of R. T. Holman, Ltd., but was obliged to resign her position owing to a continued series of ill health, and returned to her home in Milltown a short time ago.

How sleep the brave who sink to rest By all their country's wishes blest! When Spring, with dewy fingers cold, Returns to deck their hallow'd mould, She there shall dress a sweeter sod Than Fancy's feet have ever trod. By fair hands their kins will be sung; By forms unseen their dirge is sung; There Honour comes, a pilgrim gray, To bless the turf that wraps their clay; And Freedom shall a while repair, To dwell a weeping hermit there.
