Looking 'Em Over

BY TEC

Crystals won't turn their faces toward Mecca today when they pray, but towards Summerside the home grounds where they are scheduled to make final stand against the smart and heady Amherstonian Ramblers, the team which made Maritime hockey history this season in consecutive wins. Amherst chances judged very slimly by many local dopesters, have taken a sudden turn. By the way, two of the most prominent of the Nova Scotians are Paddy Cormier and Art Dalton. These boys have been leading the Ramblers attack all winter and are among the leaders in number of goals scored in the Central League. Cormier is Captain of the team and Dalton is Chief Lieutenant in the direction of plays. Dalton caged two of Amherst goals last night. These boys tried out with the Abegweits the first of the season.

The Fastest Game on Earth

The following has been contributed by Mr. William McClure, who evidently appreciates and understands hockey:

Quick beats the pulse; the rushing blood leaps on,
The flashing steel goes flying underfoot
As, man to man, the strong-limbed athletes crash,
And try the flying puck in goal to shoot.
Fast and faster goes the lightning pace,
And tense, expectant faces line the rink,
The crowd can scarcely breathe; they watch
And thrill to see their heroes fail to shrink,
The clashing impact sends a crash around;
They're up, unharmed again, and in they reel,
And suddenly, more fast than eye can see,
The puck is netted, and the cry is "Goal!"
A smile lights up the eager watcher's face,
A sharp intake of breath, and then a roar
Reverberating round and round the rink;
Their appetite is whetted keen for more.
They're off again, and steel like silver gleams,
Advances and retires the ebb and flow;
The game is won, and crowds now quick disperse
And count the hours till there's another show.

Tribute To Williams

The Moncton Transcript says in part in its report of the Abbie-Crystal game:

For the Abbies, the veteran Chick Williams, a little more portly than in his early hockey days, was the star of the team. He started in a defensive role, but led attack after attack and every one of them was dangerous. In the third period he shifted to the forward line in his old position of right wing and kept boring in and finally got a counter, his team's second and last one. Williams engineered the majority of the Abbies scoring threats and used not only his hands and feet, but his head. He was probably the most effective man on the ice and not only was he a star on the offensive but he turned in a fine blocking game on the defense, and was the only man of five defense men who used his body to advantage. The others contented themselves with playing the puck almost entirely.

Gathered In Passing

Although they are called the Flying Frenchmen, the only member of the Montreal Canadiens who deserves that title is George Mantha. He qualified for a pilot's certificate in an aviation course last summer . . . Joe Lamb of the Ottawa Senators leads the Canadian division players in number of penalties. Joe evidently believes there is nothing in a name . . . The Melville team of the Saskatchewan senior series is planning a tour of the Maritimes this season. Melville is definitely out of the Western play-offs. . . . Four fights occurred in a recent game played in the Sault Ste. Marie Industrial League. Sambo Haki recently declared ineligible to play for the Greyhound juniors by the N. O. H. A. was in every scrap.

The Roarin' Game

Following is a continuation of an interesting article on the grand old game, curling.

In 1835 occurred the first battle between Montreal and Quebec curlers the match taking place at Three Rivers, Montreal, paid for the dinner. There was no haggis but the deficiency was made up in some degree by nine roast turkeys. Wine was served for "no good, not even tolerable whiskey was to be had in Three Rivers." This was so unusual that the secretary made this comment: "The secretary has never seen such a thing, and as this is the first, he hopes it will be the last time that he shall ever hear of champaign being exhibited at a bonspiel dinner." The eight Montrealers paid 3 pounds, 2 shillings, 6 pence each for the dinner and about the same for transportation, so it was no cheap excursion for them. One of them, a little more Scotch than the others, figured that the cost was too high, and to prove it he produced the corks of all bottles that had been emptied, which did not correspond to the number the landlord charged for. However, upon investigation it was found that some of the more thirsty men had consumed a considerable quantity out of sight, so the bill was paid without further argument.

At Quebec and Montreal irons were used in the game in place of stones, as the intense cold rendered the stones liable to break on striking one another. The early curlers of Dundas, in Upper Canada, also used irons while at Guelph and Galt blocks of beech were first used. Similarly the curlers in Fergus at first used hardwood blocks. In Toronto and vicinity stones were always used; some of these were imported from Scotland, while others were "made by the "stone cutter to the club, from blocks of excellent quality picked up by him on the land in the vicinity." The brooms used in Scotland were usually made of "broom," but sometimes of birch twigs and occasionally of heather. In Canada corn brooms were commonly used, though some curlers near Scarboro, who had immigrated from Lanarkshire, imported stocks of genuine Scotch broom which under their cultivation soon became quite popular.

In Scotland, where the continuance of the curling season was very precarious, most curlers played the whole of every day. Among the early settleres in Canada it is said that many a man "set out the night before and travelled all night on Shanks pony, curled all the next day and returned home thereafter." Transportation was a difficult problem before the coming of the railway; when the Toronto Club arranged to play a match with Hamilton Thistles in the early fifties, it took three days to do so, one to travel the 40 miles by sleigh, one to play the match, and a third for the return home.

MONTAGUE CURLERS RETAIN CUP

The local curlers, with an eye to grabbing the coveted McArthur Cup back to the fold, challenged the Montague stonemen early this week, and on acceptance, sped Montague-ward with the above mentioned intentions. However, after the rinks were fought to a conclusion, the total score showed that the Eastern Metropolites had not relinquished their firm grip on the much wanted mug. This cup was donated for play some years ago and was won last year by the Eastern wielders and judging by the form they showed in their last encounters it looks as if there will be a lot of ice swept before it leaves its present domicile.

The following are the scores:

In the actual number of goals scored, Radcliffe leads with 19, with Jimmy White is second with 15 and Doccity White had 13. D. White and P. Hemorrhoids
Or piles are quickly relieved by Dr. Chase's Ointment

It is a serious matter to have piles and one person in four has them at one time or another. The annoyance and distress is great. It is difficult to obtain lasting relief. So much so that a surgical operation may be considered necessary. That is unless your physician is familiar with Dr. Chase's Ointment for many doctors recommend this treatment to their patients.

For nearly half a century Dr. Chase's Ointment has been the never failing relief for itching, bleeding and protruding piles. It is now very generally known by the medical profession, and the public generally, as the standard treatment for this torturing ailment.

Ask your friends about Dr. Chase's Ointment for "users are boosters" in this case. Relief comes quickly and you can obtain the ointment at any drug store.

Crystals Are Shut Out By The Ramblers 4-0

Art Dalton And Captain Paddy Cormier Get Three Of Amherst Counts—Nova Scotia Defence Too Much For Islanders.

By Ronald M. Ross, Sport Editor, Amherst News

AMHERST, N. S., Feb. 20.—From the opening whistle the Amherst Ramblers, champions of the Central N. B. section, forced the Summerside Crystals to fight an uphill battle. As a result the Islanders left on their special at midnight four goals down in the first game of the home and home series marking the initial round of the Maritime playdowns. The Ramblers not only won the game, but they shut out the Crystals 4-0. Although beaten in the opening game the members of the Crystal's lineup declared they were not discouraged, and will go out on Monday night on their home ice, with every intention of winning the second game, and possibly the series. But they have a stiff job on their hands, as the masterly defence offered by the Amherst team was seldom penetrated by the black and white uniforms tonight. They did work through on occasions, but were generally thrown off balance by the defence, and were forced to hurry their shots. As a result they flung many of their strokes wide of the net and into the corners.

What breaks that occurred in the game were all against the Crystals. In the third period, the Ramblers weakened slightly in their defensive attitude and left brief openings. MacDonald and Chick Gallant nearly snapped up one goal, but they lost their chance, while Saunders also failed in his opportunity. Two of the goals that beat out Lefurgey were of the heartbreaking variety.

Dalton Gets First Goal

Art Dalton, hard working Amherst centre, who tried out in Charlottetown early in the season, nailed up the first tally, when he slid a long shot at Lefurgey. The goalie misjudged the pace of the rubber and it passed slowly between his feet. In the last period Vic Fraser drove another low shot out of a mixup and the disc glanced against Lefurgey's stick and into the twine. The other two tallies were well deserved as Captain Paddy Cormier drove in his own rebound after a long run, while Art Dalton found the net for a second time in the first period. The well-timed shot from the wing probably the best performance of the entire game, was given by Pin Dalton the diminutive Amherst left winger, who was set to mark Chick Gallant, the speedy and dangerous scoring man of the Crystal line-up. Dalton did not leave Gallant unguarded and only on two occasions did the stocky Summerside lad break clear. He smashed one rebound shot at Bubbles MacDonald in the last period that called for a brilliant save and sent in a corner shot that caused MacDonald to sprawl at full length. In fact it was the close covering game played by the Amherst line-up that broke the speed of the visiting Islanders, while the Crystals laid down a barrier of poke checking sticks, the Ramblers used the same defensive method and in addition Paddy Cormier and Doug Elderkin shook up several of the rushing visitors with sturdy body checking, but the Crystals won the respect of their opponents not only for hockey ability, but for clean play. Only seven penalties were handed out with Amherst drawing four and the Islanders three. All offensives were trivial.

Lefurgey Had 40 Stops

Fifteen hundred people observed the game, the largest crowd that has been in the Amherst arena for some seasons. One section was turned over to the visitors, who sent a special train to the mainland and the cheering squad kept encouraging the Islanders at all times. The canny game of the Ramblers was actually their best effort of the season. They matched speed with the Crystals and took advantage of every opening without delay. In fact Lefurgey, although beaten by two easy shots, was called upon to make forty saves, nearly double the number of stops that were made by MacDonald.

In the third period with the Crystals though covering their opponents did was given twenty shots to handle while MacDonald only handled ten. Time and again the Amherst forwards broke through the Crystal defence in solo rushes and in pairs, only to have the stocky little net minder clear the rubber into the corners. Saunders and D. Gallant although covering their opponets, did not use their bodies, and the Amherst forwards stickhandled through them for direct shots on the goal.

Amherst Goal Disallowed

It was a snappy game, with a wonderful interchange of play from end to end, and the second Summerside line that included Siddiphant, Schurman and Jamieson did particularly efficient work. They used a better passing game than did the three regular front liners, and covered their opposing men to more advantage. But MacDonald, Montgomery and Gallant worked hard, and in the last period they deserved at least one goal. The Ramblers scored a fifth goal in the third period, but the play was called back, referee Jack Carroll overruling the goal judge. Thre were numerous delays in the game, and in the first and second intermissions efforts were made to secure new sweaters for the Ramblers as both teams and officials were bothered by the similarity in uniforms.

Gallant Blocked

In the third period the Ramblers covered their purple and white costume with white sweatshirts, but it required extra time to secure the paraphernalia. During these delays the ice became soft and the sticky surface reacted to the disadvantage of the lighter Islanders. Amherst opened a fierce attack and within the first minute of play LeFurgey took a series of shots from the sticks of Art and Pin Dalton. White went in and nearly scored. Saunders relieved, but was stopped at the defence. Play hung in centre ice and Art Dalton broke through and at the blue line slid a low shot between the defence men. Lefurgey misjudged the shot's speed and the puck passed between his feet for the first tally. Chick Gallant worked hard for the tying goal, but was blocked behind the blue line. Paddy Cormier in an end to end rush, broke through and pounded a close up shot at Lefurgey then snapped the rebound into the twine, for the second goal of the night. Chick Gallant was penalized and the Crystals played a defensive game. With Chick back on the ice, MacDonald drew a penalty for tripping, but Amherst in forcing play could not score. D. Gallant came down and tossed a hard shot into the corner. Mos of the Island rushes were blocked at the blue line. Roy Chapman was sent to the penalty box and with one man down, Amherst sprung a surprise and pressed a hard attack. Art Dalton wandered up the ice and with a hard wing shot beat Lefurgey for the third count. Chick Gallant gave MacDonald a hot one to handle just before the bell.

The second period MacDonald threw a dangerous drive at the Amherst goalie and almost scored. The Crystals sent up a stiff attack and the Amherst team was kept busy. The poke checking of the Crystals kept them bottled up for some minutes and in this interval white Drew a penalty, but the Amherst team killed time and tossed a few long shots up the ice, Dannie Gallant made a fine rush and almost broke through, but was checked by Elderkin as he was about to shoot. Vic Fraser, the elusive Amherst centre scored on the Crystals, but the play was called back. Chick Gallant got away from Roy Chapman and directed a hard one on the nets. He followed in for the rebound and nearly caught MacDonald napping. Pin Dalton was given two minutes for holding and Summerside sent up a four man attack that almost gathered up a goal. It was a busy time for MacDonald, Art Dalton broke through alone, but was off balanced as he shot. Montgomery worked through over the blue, and nearly found the corner and then chased in for the rebound.

Breaks Against Crystals

The breaks went against the Islanders in the third period. The Amherst defence weakened and left the odd loose puck lying around the nets. Only great work by MacDonald halted two scores. MacDonald and Gallant just missed. Saunders sent a high shot over the goalie's head and struck a light causing more delay, while the glass was being swept up.

Great Period

Although the ice was heavy hockey in the third period was fastest of the game and both teams kept trying for a score. The Ramblers refused to play actual defensive hockey and kept striving to increase their lead, while the visitors just as hard to score. Saunders was in close for a shot, but struck by Donald. Vic Fraser went up the ice and in a mixup batted a sharp shot at the nets, the puck glanced against Lefurgey's stick and the goal counted. The fourth goal sent the Islanders into a steady drive on the Amherst nets and play hung at the Ramblers' end for some minutes. White broke clear and caught the Island team flatfooted, but Lefurgey made the greatest save of the night, stopping White's shot at two rebounds from Pin Dalton and Vic Fraser. It was fast work. With only minutes to go, Pin Dalton was penalized and the Islanders made their final effort to score, but without success.

George Wilkins of Campbellton and Jack Carroll of Moncton handled the game.
