

MRS. MacLAGAN
 Demonstrator of the Gossard Completes, front lacing corsets, girdles, clasp arounds, and combinations will be here on Tuesday, May 31st.

We would be pleased to have you call and be fitted.

PROWSE BROS LTD.

Eastern Guardian

*HERRING PLENTIFUL.—The herring has struck in on the North Side and catches are now being made by the fishermen. There will be no need now of getting herring-bait from the Magdalen Islands. Fishermen however, complain of lobsters being scarce.

*GROUND NOW READY FOR SOWING AND PLANTING.—The fine, dry, sunny days of Saturday and Sunday has put the hitherto cold and damp ground in fine condition for sowing and planting. There will be much of the work done this week. The spring is quite favorable for the farmer, and farmers are preparing to sow and plant the biggest ever.

*AND POTATOES.—Mr. Jack Burke, who last year marketed an unusually marketed, considerably over 2,000 bushels of potatoes from a field of less than six acres, (not quite six acres remember), on his new potato growing farm at St. Charles Station, is this year putting in 10 acres of potatoes at St. Charles, and 4 acres Green Mountains at Rollo Bay.

*NEW CREAMERY FOR SOURIS.—The Eastern farmers are calling with much satisfaction the construction of a new creamery in the town of Souris, the more so from the fact that the Company is other than the famous and prize winning butter maker of the Central Creamery, Charlottetown, and to whom much of the cream from the East, is now shipped by train.

*CHANGED CONDITIONS.—Not so very many years ago, the farmer killed his own pork for home use, made his own butter, killed his own beef, made his own cheese—in fact, everything used was of his own manufacture or production. All this is now changed, the farmer sells his cream and buys creamery butter; sells his hogs alive, and buys cured bacon; sells his beef alive and buys

IT PAYS TO GET THE FACTS
 A large proportion of all the nerve energy generated in a normal body is expended in the act of seeing.
 Eyes are often found to be defective so that although vision is still good, they are consuming twice or three times their allotted portion of nerve force, thus robbing other vital organs of their motive power.
 The result is serious physical disorders—often in remote parts of the body.
 Two out of every ten people are in this fix, yet the real cause of their trouble is often not even suspected until a thorough examination discloses the facts.
 If there is any reason whatever to suspect eye strain, the common sense thing to do is to have a thorough examination and GET THE FACTS ABOUT YOUR EYES.
H. J. MABON
 OPTOMETRIST,
 Montague, P. E. I.

Public Temperance Meetings
 Under The Auspices of The Temperance Alliance of Prince Edward Island will be held During the Week Beginning May 30th as Follows:

Monday May 30th:	Tignish	8.00 p.m.
	Port Hill	8.00 p.m.
Tuesday, May 31st:	Miminigash	2.30 p.m.
	Alberton	8.00 p.m.
	Coleman	8.00 p.m.
	Canoe Cove	8.00 p.m.
Wednesday June 1st:	Wellington	2.30 p.m.
	Tyne Valley	8.00 p.m.
	Clinton	8.00 p.m.
	DeSable	8.00 p.m.
Thursday, June 2nd:	Cape Wolfe	2.30 p.m.
	O'Leary	8.00 p.m.
	Margate United Church	8.00 p.m.
	South Rustico	8.00 p.m.
	Afton Hall	8.00 p.m.
	French River	8.00 p.m.
	Kingston	8.00 p.m.
Friday, June 3rd:	Freetown	2.30 p.m.
	Cape Traverse	8.00 p.m.
	Cardigan	8.00 p.m.
	North River	8.00 p.m.
	St. George's	8.00 p.m.
Saturday, June 4th:	Cambridge	8.00 p.m.
	Annandale	8.00 p.m.

OTHER MEETINGS WILL BE ANNOUNCED LATER

SLATER'S
Heavy Service Oxfords
 SUPERCEEDS BROGUES

Men tired of Brogues, the fussy tips and fixings, punctured with innumerable holes are too ornate, and out of place excepting with heavy tweed clothes, for Hunting or Golfing.

Slater's Created This Heavy Service Oxford

For Street, Business or Hiking—to make it English Calf-skin is imported for the uppers, this with oak-tanned double soles and a plain tip gives you an ideal shoe for any occasion excepting evening wear.

The Shape is Comfortable and Pleasing

The Slater reputation insures you wearing satisfaction. Price $8.00 Per Pair for Brown or Black.

ALLEY & CO LIMITED
 FASHIONABLE FOOTWEAR

Western Guardian

—NEW VISOR CAPS for boys—25c and up at Sinclair's, 5804-5-28-21

—WANTED—A Cook. Apply to Mrs. Alban A. Lecky, Summerside, 5820-5-28-21.

—ROBIN HOOD FLOUR—All sizes wholesale and retail. Holman's, Summerside. 4-21-dft.

—INSTITUTE MEETING AT INDIAN RIVER.—The May meeting of Indian River Women's Institute was held at the schoolhouse. The meeting opened with singing Institute Ode. Ten members answered Roll Call. One visitor present. Money was voted for a new blackboard for the school. The 24th of May was set as Eggday, on which day all the women of the district would be asked to contribute eggs. Candy was to be made and sold at the play to be staged in Malpeque. Meetings will be held at National Anhem. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Wm. Mann on June 8th. Members please answer Roll Call with "Uses of Newspapers."

—SUCCESSFUL CLINIC—After being in Charlottetown for two days Dr. P. A. C. Scrimmer one of the leading surgeons of America and holding an authority in the treatment of infectious diseases and both of Montreal, held a most successful clinic at the Prince County Hospital yesterday when the Summer-side doctors and doctors from other points throughout Prince County and the best guarantee of ultimate success, these hours have passed into years, and tonight you stand on the threshold of your career. Your life work is now at its commencement, and it is my honor tonight to address to you a few words of advice and encouragement, as you gird your armor on to go forth into the crusade against disease.

—ANGLICAN CHURCH.—The reopening of St. Mark's Church took place in Kensington on May 22nd at 3 p.m. Rev. G. S. Spriggs officiating. At evening service the Rector read prayers appropriate to the occasion. There was present an exceptionally large and attentive congregation. The choir performed efficiently. A sermon appropriate to the event was preached by the Rector, Rev. T. Spriggs, taking for his text Luke 10:17: "The Kingdom of God is Within You" emphasizing the nature and the locality of the Kingdom of God. It was essentially spiritual, and can be established essentially by co-operation with the life of Christ. The Rector and his congregation are to be congratulated on the splendid appearance of their House of Worship. The east window over the communion table bears testimony of the highly artistic work of the painter, Mr. J. Evans Inglis. There are five parts, the centre, showing the Shepherd and the Lamb, on each side is represented the Good and the evil, the right and left are displayed St. Peter and St. Paul. The whole picture is emphatically expressive the lesson that this scene in the life of our Lord is intended to teach, and cannot fail to intensify the devotion.—Y.

—THE VILLIAN FOILED.—In the Strand Theatre, Kensington, on Wednesday night, the Margate Dramatic Players presented their very realistic drama, "The Villian Foiled" to a numerous and appreciative audience. The play is a comedy drama in four acts, and is replete with thrilling situations. The action was well balanced and the interpretation was easy and natural. The audience followed the denouement with close attention and expressed satisfaction with generous applause. The bill showed the following cast:—Bud Wheeler, home from the city; Roland Thompson; Pat Flannigan, a Green Irishman; John Howard; Otto Guckenheimer; Dutch Policeman, Heath Mayhew; Jasper White, a Suspicious Negro; Chester Howard; Aunt Hannah; Bud's Mother, Mrs. Gordon Woodside; Jerusha, Jane Alvira. Ann Boggs, an Orphan, Mrs. Jos. Woodside; Dora Barton, Heiress, Margaret Pillman; Harvey Barton, Dora's Cousin; Stanley Thompson; Uncle Eli; Bud's Father, Turner Glydon. Not a dull moment intervened, and the audience were gratefully pleased. The highly dramatic situations were well staged and the audience was not slow in displaying appreciation. Specialization would be out of place when all performed their parts so efficiently. The specialties were Vocal Solo, Mrs. Parker, Summerside, and an aboriginal number by a native of the dusty tribe, Noel Le Beau. The instrumental music by the orchestra, under the guidance of Mr. H. Campbell, Long River, with Miss Cousins and Mr. John McGregor, who played banjo and Mr. Mayhew on the piano was good.—Y.

PERSONALS

—Dr. McDougall, O'Leary, was a visitor to Kensington on May 24th, K.

—Mrs. P. L. Morris of Murray Harbour was a visitor to Kensington on Sunday, K.

—Miss Kathleen Brown, teacher, Mt. Pleasant and Miss Patricia Callaghan, teacher Port Hill, were visitors to Summerside on Saturday-N.

—Mr. Joseph D. McLellan, Grand River spent several days in Charlottetown last week. N

—Miss Elsie Murphy, teacher, Bayside, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John M. Murphy, Kinkora. N

—Mr. Harold Brown, Port Hill, has purchased the fine property of the late Frank McNeil, Bayside, from Mr. Albert McNeil, the administrator of the estate. N

P. C. Nurses Graduation Exercises

The following is the address to Graduating Nurses at Prince County Hospital Commencement Exercises on May 26th, 1927 by Dr. J. C. Simpson.

Your Honor, Mayor Arnett, Mr. Chairman, Lady Superintendent, Ladies and gentlemen:

You are in the audience tonight, and to you officials who sit on the platform, the frost of custom has perhaps made this annual ceremony a monotonous and lifeless thing. To you, graduating nurses, this ceremony marks an epoch in your careers.

This is your graduation night. For three long years you have struggled, as it were, up the steep slope of high terrace—the terrace of accomplishment, and you are delighted to look back. But you must look forward, you must look to the future for further accomplishments. Life is before you, and more successes are yours if you will but achieve.

Doubtless there were times in your training when graduation seemed but only a distant goal, but day by day you have struggled on and now success is yours. No doubt at times you have had morbid apprehensions about the future. The dread of examinations was ever before you, and you have had doubts as to your ultimate success. However, absorbed in the duty of the hour itself, which after all is in itself the best guarantee of ultimate success, these hours have passed into years, and tonight you stand on the threshold of your career. Your life work is now at its commencement, and it is my honor tonight to address to you a few words of advice and encouragement, as you gird your armor on to go forth into the crusade against disease.

Eastern Guardian

NOTICE—The Annual Meeting of the Kings County Exhibition Association will be held in the Court House, Georgetown, on Tuesday June 7, 1927. D. P. McKinnon, President. 5809-5-28-21

*EASTERN KING'S EXHIBITION—The Eastern King's Exhibition Association will hold their annual exhibition on Tuesday, Oct. 4th, 1927.—D. F. Macaulay, Sec'y. Souris. 5816 5 28 31

*SHEEP RAISING.—Mr. Jack Burke of Rollo Bay and St. Charles, purchased last fall at various sales, sheep to the number of thirty. He has had splendid luck, twenty-eight strong, living lambs. Considering that many of these sheep were old ewes, this was a wonderful increase. There is sure money in sheep, Mr. Burke has also gone into cream producing on a large scale, on his new place at the late Frank McNeil, Bayside, from Mr. Albert McNeil, the administrator of the estate. N

LAND LEAGUE

Champion Provincial Horse Show March 8th, 1922

Land League is a beautiful Black Stallion 5 years old, sired by Nathan Asworthy, 2:09; his dam is by Direct, 2:05; dam of Zomret, 2:03 1/2; world's champion green trotter.

Land League is a beautifully built horse with the best of feet and legs, and a sure trotter. He will stand for the season at the owner's stable.

Mares at owner's risk, $10.00 for the season.

G. H. MYERS, V. S. D. V. D. Owner, Montague.

5832-5-30-21.

And slow, as in a dream of bliss, The speechless sufferer, turns to kiss Her shadow, as it falls Upon the darkening walls." Graduating nurses, you belong to that noble order of which Florence Nightingale is the leader of modern times. You have a grand inheritance, and you are compelled by that inheritance, by that priceless heritage to keep your escutcheon free from stain. This is your duty to your profession.

You have a duty to yourselves. We are not far from the Tom Sawyer stage today with its philosophy, "that work consists of whatever a body is obliged to do, and play consists of whatever a body is not obliged to do."

In order to be good nurses, you will be obliged to do certain things. You will be obliged to work. Your profession is an exacting mistress, and you must seek outlets for recreation. When the hurly-burly of the day's routine threatens your mental and physical equilibrium, seek recreation in some hobby. After all, what you are is the sum total of your yesterdays, and you will be carried over the crisis of life only by the inertia of the past. If your yesterdays were free then you will be the slave of your yesterdays. Your only hope is that today is in your hands, and you may so use it as to compel your tomorrow. Responsibility will be thrust upon you, days and nights of anxious waiting, in those trying ordeals you will have to draw on your past. In the crisis of life your only hope is in your past. "Guard well the fires of youth, lest in old age you sit beside the cold ashes of exhausted pleasure."

Chance favors the prepared mind. Be prepared. All the tragedies of Shakespeare are from the single text "There is a tide in the affairs of men, which taken at the flood, leads on to fortune; omitted, all the voyage of their life is lost in shadows and in miseries."

Cultivate the habit of doing things well. There is a strange antithesis between the ideal and the real, that is between the capacity of the human mind to conceive ideals, and the pathetic incapacity of human effort to achieve them. We are commended in all things to attain the unobtainable. The claims of perfection are always imperative. Strive then to attain the unobtainable, and you may perhaps rise above the common level, and even though your names may not echo down the corridors of time, yet, after all you will have the greatest satisfaction in life—the satisfaction of things well done.

And now, farewell! Tonight you pass from the shelter of your "Alma Mater," and we wish you God-speed in your venture. "Yet, ah that Spring should vanish with the Rose, That youth's sweet scented manuscript should close." On behalf of the Doctors, let me assure you that your work has been very gratifying, and our relations most cordial. To each of you, your work will be very much as you make it—to one, a worry, a care, or an annoyance, to another a daily joy, and a life of much happiness and usefulness.

Graduating nurses, you belong to that great army of physicians and priests, sisters and nurses, all over the world to whom is given the ministry of consolation in sorrow and need and sickness. In all circumstances, be true to yourselves, true to your high calling and true to your fellow man.

You must exercise a talent for silence. Sacred confidences will be yours, and "You must keep your mouth as it were with a bridle," as Sir Thomas Browne says, "Think not silence the wisdom of fools, but if rightly timed the wisdom of wise men, who have not the infirmity but the virtue of taciturnity." Or as Sir William Osler says, "Taciturnity a discreet silence, is a virtuously little cultivated in these garrulous days, when speech has taken the place of thought." Such then is your duty to society.

Graduating nurses, you have a duty to your profession. The escutcheon of your order has been won by fearless suffering, toil, sacrifice and death. Shall any wavering yours blot that escutcheon? The very richness of such an inheritance compels you to hold up the honor of your order. Do not falsify the best traditions of an ancient and honorable calling.

"And can you cravens be, Who heir this mightily blood bought legacy!"

From humble beginnings, amidst pestilence and the wild despair of war, your profession has grown and flourished. By charitable devotion, where strong men struggled in the service of their country, woman in virtue of her labors has given you a legacy of which you may well be proud. Your profession along with that of ours has gradually emerged from the imperfect and unorthodox practices of the past to its present status, based on scientific inquiry and experimental proof. The nineteenth century produced three famous persons in England who contributed more than any of their contemporaries to the relief of human suffering and disease. Lord Lister, the inventor of antiseptic surgery, Simpson, the discoverer of Chloroform, and Florence Nightingale, the founder of modern nursing. The last named stands out as the greatest pioneer of modern nursing methods. Her services in the Crimea can never be overestimated. Among the unhappy, emaciated victims of hunger and disease she was indeed a "ministering angel." Amid scenes of loathsome disease, pestilence and death she worked with instinctive delicacy, gentleness and chivalry. Even in the lowest sinks of human misery she found chords, which responded to her sympathetic touch. Longfellow has immortalized her work in the oft quoted lines:

"Lo! in that hour of misery, A Lady with a lamp, I see Passes through the glimmering gloom, And fits from room to room,

And slow, as in a dream of bliss, The speechless sufferer, turns to kiss Her shadow, as it falls Upon the darkening walls." Graduating nurses, you belong to that noble order of which Florence Nightingale is the leader of modern times. You have a grand inheritance, and you are compelled by that inheritance, by that priceless heritage to keep your escutcheon free from stain. This is your duty to your profession.

You have a duty to yourselves. We are not far from the Tom Sawyer stage today with its philosophy, "that work consists of whatever a body is obliged to do, and play consists of whatever a body is not obliged to do."

In order to be good nurses, you will be obliged to do certain things. You will be obliged to work. Your profession is an exacting mistress, and you must seek outlets for recreation. When the hurly-burly of the day's routine threatens your mental and physical equilibrium, seek recreation in some hobby. After all, what you are is the sum total of your yesterdays, and you will be carried over the crisis of life only by the inertia of the past. If your yesterdays were free then you will be the slave of your yesterdays. Your only hope is that today is in your hands, and you may so use it as to compel your tomorrow. Responsibility will be thrust upon you, days and nights of anxious waiting, in those trying ordeals you will have to draw on your past. In the crisis of life your only hope is in your past. "Guard well the fires of youth, lest in old age you sit beside the cold ashes of exhausted pleasure."

Chance favors the prepared mind. Be prepared. All the tragedies of Shakespeare are from the single text "There is a tide in the affairs of men, which taken at the flood, leads on to fortune; omitted, all the voyage of their life is lost in shadows and in miseries."

Cultivate the habit of doing things well. There is a strange antithesis between the ideal and the real, that is between the capacity of the human mind to conceive ideals, and the pathetic incapacity of human effort to achieve them. We are commended in all things to attain the unobtainable. The claims of perfection are always imperative. Strive then to attain the unobtainable, and you may perhaps rise above the common level, and even though your names may not echo down the corridors of time, yet, after all you will have the greatest satisfaction in life—the satisfaction of things well done.

And now, farewell! Tonight you pass from the shelter of your "Alma Mater," and we wish you God-speed in your venture. "Yet, ah that Spring should vanish with the Rose, That youth's sweet scented manuscript should close." On behalf of the Doctors, let me assure you that your work has been very gratifying, and our relations most cordial. To each of you, your work will be very much as you make it—to one, a worry, a care, or an annoyance, to another a daily joy, and a life of much happiness and usefulness.

Graduating nurses, you belong to that great army of physicians and priests, sisters and nurses, all over the world to whom is given the ministry of consolation in sorrow and need and sickness. In all circumstances, be true to yourselves, true to your high calling and true to your fellow man.

You must exercise a talent for silence. Sacred confidences will be yours, and "You must keep your mouth as it were with a bridle," as Sir Thomas Browne says, "Think not silence the wisdom of fools, but if rightly timed the wisdom of wise men, who have not the infirmity but the virtue of taciturnity." Or as Sir William Osler says, "Taciturnity a discreet silence, is a virtuously little cultivated in these garrulous days, when speech has taken the place of thought." Such then is your duty to society.

Graduating nurses, you have a duty to your profession. The escutcheon of your order has been won by fearless suffering, toil, sacrifice and death. Shall any wavering yours blot that escutcheon? The very richness of such an inheritance compels you to hold up the honor of your order. Do not falsify the best traditions of an ancient and honorable calling.

"And can you cravens be, Who heir this mightily blood bought legacy!"

From humble beginnings, amidst pestilence and the wild despair of war, your profession has grown and flourished. By charitable devotion, where strong men struggled in the service of their country, woman in virtue of her labors has given you a legacy of which you may well be proud. Your profession along with that of ours has gradually emerged from the imperfect and unorthodox practices of the past to its present status, based on scientific inquiry and experimental proof. The nineteenth century produced three famous persons in England who contributed more than any of their contemporaries to the relief of human suffering and disease. Lord Lister, the inventor of antiseptic surgery, Simpson, the discoverer of Chloroform, and Florence Nightingale, the founder of modern nursing. The last named stands out as the greatest pioneer of modern nursing methods. Her services in the Crimea can never be overestimated. Among the unhappy, emaciated victims of hunger and disease she was indeed a "ministering angel." Amid scenes of loathsome disease, pestilence and death she worked with instinctive delicacy, gentleness and chivalry. Even in the lowest sinks of human misery she found chords, which responded to her sympathetic touch. Longfellow has immortalized her work in the oft quoted lines:

"Lo! in that hour of misery, A Lady with a lamp, I see Passes through the glimmering gloom, And fits from room to room, make it—to one, a worry, a care, or an annoyance, to another a daily joy, and a life of much happiness and usefulness.

Graduating nurses, you belong to that great army of physicians and priests, sisters and nurses, all over the world to whom is given the ministry of consolation in sorrow and need and sickness. In all circumstances, be true to yourselves, true to your high calling and true to your fellow man.

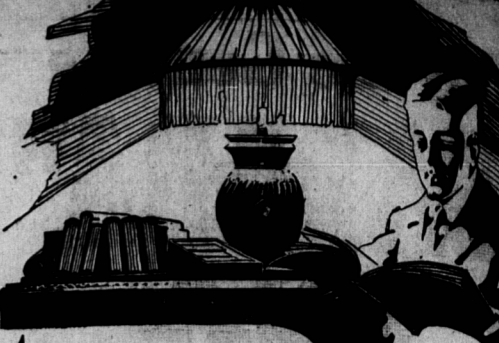

You must exercise a talent for silence. Sacred confidences will be yours, and "You must keep your mouth as it were with a bridle," as Sir Thomas Browne says, "Think not silence the wisdom of fools, but if rightly timed the wisdom of wise men, who have not the infirmity but the virtue of taciturnity." Or as Sir William Osler says, "Taciturnity a discreet silence, is a virtuously little cultivated in these garrulous days, when speech has taken the place of thought." Such then is your duty to society.

Graduating nurses, you have a duty to your profession. The escutcheon of your order has been won by fearless suffering, toil, sacrifice and death. Shall any wavering yours blot that escutcheon? The very richness of such an inheritance compels you to hold up the honor of your order. Do not falsify the best traditions of an ancient and honorable calling.

"And can you cravens be, Who heir this mightily blood bought legacy!"

From humble beginnings, amidst pestilence and the wild despair of war, your profession has grown and flourished. By charitable devotion, where strong men struggled in the service of their country, woman in virtue of her labors has given you a legacy of which you may well be proud. Your profession along with that of ours has gradually emerged from the imperfect and unorthodox practices of the past to its present status, based on scientific inquiry and experimental proof. The nineteenth century produced three famous persons in England who contributed more than any of their contemporaries to the relief of human suffering and disease. Lord Lister, the inventor of antiseptic surgery, Simpson, the discoverer of Chloroform, and Florence Nightingale, the founder of modern nursing. The last named stands out as the greatest pioneer of modern nursing methods. Her services in the Crimea can never be overestimated. Among the unhappy, emaciated victims of hunger and disease she was indeed a "ministering angel." Amid scenes of loathsome disease, pestilence and death she worked with instinctive delicacy, gentleness and chivalry. Even in the lowest sinks of human misery she found chords, which responded to her sympathetic touch. Longfellow has immortalized her work in the oft quoted lines:

"Lo! in that hour of misery, A Lady with a lamp, I see Passes through the glimmering gloom, And fits from room to room,

For Real
L-a-s-t-i-n-g Refreshment

Get NIPS—delicious Peppermint flavored gum in sugar-coated form—

WRIGLEY'S NIPS SUGAR COATED GUM PEPPERMINT

A beneficial treat—cleanses mouth and teeth— aids digestion.

Smokers like Wrigley's because it sweetens the breath and makes the next smoke taste better.

The kiddies—well, just take them some—and see their answer.

"After Every Meal"

IMPERIAL FOX AND DOG BISCUIT

Imperial Puppy Food

This popular "Imperial" product is giving excellent results in our ranches this spring. The ranchers, using it, report splendid progress in growth of their young foxes and are ordering in large quantities.

IMPERIAL PUPPY FOOD is first baked as a biscuit from our scientifically prepared and tested Puppy Food formula and then ground into a coarse meal by a special machine recently installed for this purpose. It is ready for feeding and only requires the addition of milk to form a properly balanced diet on which the young foxes thrive most successfully.

IMPERIAL PUPPY FOOD and IMPERIAL FOX BISCUITS contain the nutritional requirements of the young foxes and adults and their liberal use will ensure healthy, vigorous foxes.

Orders promptly filled from fresh stock.

IMPERIAL BISCUIT CO., LIMITED
 Phone 721. Box 446.
 Charlottetown, P. E. I.
 Exclusive Maritime Agents for HAUCK FIRE GUNS