THURSDAY, JULY 7, 1910.

A TRIBUTE TO THE WOMEN'S COUNCIL.

The recent successful meeting in Halifax of the National Council of Women called forth much commendation of the Council and its work in the press of Halifax and in some of the pulpits. On Sunday morning in St. Paul's Church the Venerable Archdeacon Armitage took for his text the words, "She hath done what she could," and in the course of his sermon paid a high tribute to the Women's Parliament, a number of whose members were present.

The Archdeacon thought that the meeting of the National Council was one of the most notable gatherings in Canada. It was really a free Parliament of chosen representatives, representing all that is best in the women of the land. The National Council, he said, has proved by its work its right to exist, which is more than some other institutions have done. Its aim is simple and direct, its methods admirable and its work most practical. The outstanding feature of the Council is its power of initiative. It has given to us a number of most useful movements. We owe to its direct influence, supervised playgrounds, the campaign against tuberculosis, the effort to reduce infant mortality, and the proposals to give opportunities of technical education to women.

A CURIOSITY IN GOVERNMENT.

Among the Governments of the world perhaps the greatest curiosity is the little Republic of Andorra, which is wedged into a few Pyrenean valleys between France and Spain. Its total area is some 580 square miles, and its population about 6,000—half as many people as are in Charlottetown. This little state is a republic, but by no means a democratic one, and has retained its separate existence for more than 1,100 years. Its charter of independence was granted by Charlemagne in 782.

The constitution of Andorra is antique, patriotic and aristocratic. The voting power is confined to the heads of families, who must be the eldest sons of eldest sons, who only may vote. Six parishes, or parishes, elect four members each to the National Parliament. The members elect the President, Vice-President and Secretary. The Parliament meets only when the President calls it together. Each parish has a council for the management of its local affairs, chosen in the same way. There are only three paid officials in the whole state. The taxes are five cents per head of population. Another source of the little revenue needed is a license fee of ten dollars a year on inn-keepers.

When Parliament is called the members come together, riding on horses or mules, along the bridle paths. (There are no vehicles of any kind in Andorra.) The members stable their steeds on the ground floor of the ancient hall, then go up stairs to legislate. They have no indemnity or allowance, but are fed and lodged during the sessions at the cost of the state. There are six bedrooms on the same floor as the Legislative Chamber, one each for the members from each parish, who sleep two in a bed. The President is the only one allowed to go home or to go out at night. After supper at 8 p. m. and evening prayers conducted by the President, he locks the doors and goes home.

Andorra has no printed laws. Traditions govern the state. It has no railways, post office, telegraphs, gas lights or other modern notions. The people have little intercourse with outsiders except by occasional smuggling. No photographers are allowed within the state, and they are roughly treated if caught. Crime is almost unknown. The people are described as contented, happy and healthful, although they have intermarried for twelve hundred years. Truly a remarkable little Republic in many ways is Andorra.

THE MANITOBA ELECTION.

Manitoba is now in the throes of a general provincial election. The Conservative party under the leadership of Hon. R. P. Roblin has been in power since January, 1900, following a still longer continuous Liberal term under Premier Greenway. Mr. Roblin, who had his birth in Ontario, 57 years ago, and who follows the business of a grain merchant, has successfully passed through three elections, in 1899, 1903 and 1907. The Legislative Assembly to be elected on Monday next will contain 41 members. The House that was recently dissolved contained a large majority of Conservatives, the party vote when all were present standing 28 to 13. This might be thought to indicate another Conservative victory in the present contest but it must be remembered that the other adjoining Provinces of the prairie group, which are closely related to Manitoba in many ways, have been from the first very strongly Liberal. And the Roblin Government has now been a long time in power. A good plan would be to await the result of next Monday's polling before deciding upon the winning party.

An image of King Edward's dog Caesar is taking the place of the Teddy bear, as a toy for children in London. The little dog has been copied in plush, showing his rough coat, and attached to his collar is a medallion with the inscription "I am Caesar; I belong to the King."

The aviation meeting near Montreal just concluded was very successful according to the newspapers of that city. Unhappily our own Canadian flyers did nothing very brilliant. In a few days hence Toronto is to have a like competition with the flights to be made over the waters of Lake Ontario. The leading foreign competitors who gave exhibitions of their skill at Montreal will take part in the Toronto meeting.

Professor Osler in a contribution to the British Medical Journal, urges that the attitude of the physician should not be hostile to faith healing, as he himself has seen much of the curative effects of faith, made operative either by the personality of the physician or by the attractions of a new gospel. But he has not met any cases permanently cured by Christian Science. A similar attitude toward both faith cure and Christian Science is taken by Sir Henry Morris and other eminent contributors to the Medical Journal.

The evolutionists are making progress. It was not enough that the human race was evolved from the anthropoid apes generally. One Dr. Mecher, a German biologist of some note, has published his opinion that the four great race-groups of men are each descended from one of the four tribes of apes, that is the gorillas, chimpanzees, orangs and gibbons. We need not particularise further than to mention that the fair or red-haired northern races are descendants of the gorilla, while the dark or swarthy people of southern Europe are of the chimpanzee stock. If evolution is true our family tree is very ancient. There were apes before Adam was.

GRAIN FIELD COMPETITION.

Sir.—There seems to be some misunderstanding regarding the competitions in fields of standing grain and the Agricultural Merit Competition. As advertised by circulars distributed through the Farmers' Institutes the entries for the Standing Grain Competition are to be received at the Dept. of Agriculture prior to July 15th, 1910. After that date a double entry fee will be charged. The reasons for this are as follows: 1st, the judging is done by the Seed Division, Ottawa, and in order that the expenses of the judging may be kept within reasonable bounds an entry fee is charged. This will prevent persons entering fields of grain that are not above the average. Last year entries were received almost till the grain was ripe and considerable trouble was experienced by the Seed Division in providing suitable judges for this work. This year upwards of 100 judges will be required for Canada and those who have charge of the judging have requested that these entries should close at an early date so that they would be in a position to get the necessary judges.

The date for the closing of entries in the Agricultural Merit competition was June 30th, but as few entries have been received it will be necessary to extend the time till July 15th. The reason for fixing June 30th, as the date for the closing of entries was that many people thought the farm should be visited twice by judges during the year, instead of only once, as it is very difficult to judge the pastures, and the hay crop after it is in the barn. There are at present on the Island several experienced men holding agricultural meetings and we thought that they could go over those farms and score them while they attended these meetings, if the entries were made in good time. It would be much fairer for all concerned and more benefit would be received from the competition. So very few entries however, have been received that the time has been extended till July 15th, so that all entries for the Agricultural Merit Competition will be received at the Dept. of Agriculture till July 15th. Yours very truly, THEODORE ROSS.

SUMMER ATTRACTIONS AT THE EDEN MUSEUM.

The management of the Eden Museum of New York City has arranged for summer attractions which will make that institution one of the most pleasing amusement places during the hot summer months. Artistic cooling apparatus has been installed throughout the Museum, so that the air is always fresh and cool. Palms and other floral decorations have been placed throughout the main floor of the Museum, so that a charming effect is produced by the rustling leaves. The Winter Garden has been changed practically into a roof-garden. All of the wax figures and groups of the Museum have been brightened up and given summer costumes, as well as dashes of color. Many changes have taken place by rearranging the groups and adding new figures. King George is now the most prominent figure in the "Rulers of the World." The various groups in which Roosevelt appears, are attracting much attention, and Chamber of Horrors has been brightened up with choice bits of humor. Each afternoon and evening, elaborate moving pictures are shown in the Winter Garden, which are being changed almost daily. Among these pictures are interesting events, such as flying contests, athletic contests, races and choice bits of scenery from out-of-the-way places. The afternoon and evening concerts have choice programs, all so charmingly rendered, as to hold all lovers of music.

A WILL IN RHYME.

Joseph J. Cassidy, a Jasper County, Kansas, farmer, died recently and left two wills—one in rhyme and the other in prose. The document in verse is void because it antedates the other. The rhyme will was made in 1901 and was witnessed by J. E. Stickney, of Carthage, and Murray Elliott, of Alba. It follows:

I, Joseph Johnson Cassidy,
Do hereby publish my intent,
Being sound of mind and memory,
This, my will and testament.

That all my just debts first be paid,
Expense for burial and funeral be made,
And all expenses made of late,
Out of my personal and real estate,
I do bequeath, devise and give,
As long as she, my wife, shall live,
Lot six in the original town of Laver,
To her assigns, and heirs for ever.
To my adopted daughter, Marie,
I do devise and give in fee,
The southwest corner of section seven,
Township nine and range eleven.
To my two sons, Joseph and Beach,
I do devise one dollar each.
The residue of my estate,
I do bequeath to Mary Kate,
And hereby do appoint her
For my last will executor.

The Small Store Needs A Phone

just as badly as the large one. The 'phone is the one important factor that causes a small store to become a large one—without it no business can grow great. The telephone is the stepping stone to a greater business and the time to take the step is now—before your competitors take the business that is rightly due you. Any merchant that shows progressiveness is sure of business and the safest step is to install the 'phone. It will save many trips to the wholesale store, it will bring the small grocer a prompt reply in the case of a rush order. The 'phone will bring you many orders that would have otherwise passed over to the larger store and will give you a tremendous handicap over your competitors in the race for business. The 'phone will increase your trade tremendously, it will make your store the buying centre of your district. It is within your means. Ask Contract Department for prices—write.
