Allied Warships Rushed to Tangier

GENERAL DISCONTENT AMONG THE SPANISH AND NATIVE POPULATION

LONDON, Aug. 20— A despatch to the Daily Mail from Tangier, Morocco, confirms a report of yesterday that there is general discontent among the Spanish and native population. The dispatch attributes the excitement partly to the flogging and otherwise torturing of native prisoners by the International Police, and partly to the declaration of General Primo De Rivera, the Spanish dictator in a Madrid newspaper that Tangier should be included in the Spanish zone in Morocco.

The despatch says a British destroyer was standing by at Tangier and that French warships were expected to arrive from Casablanca. Yesterday's report said General Primo De Rivera had offered to send Spanish troops to occupy Tangier to protect lives and property. It added that the general impression among the people of Tangier, excepting the French, was that something must be done immediately to give the Spaniards influence in Tangier commensurate with their numbers.

Mt. Stewart Notes

The H. A. Johnson blueberry factory started canning last Tuesday, which makes quite a stir. This factory is quite a benefit to many. Though not employed in it they can pick and sell the the berries for which five cents per lb is the price paid at present.

Mr. James Lougheran, Charlottetown, is in Mt. Stewart and vicinity repairing some pumps which have not been giving satisfaction to the various owners.

Mr. Frank Clark, Dorchester, Mass., is spending a holiday in Mount Stewart.

Mr. Horace McEwen, ex-Supt. of the P. E. I. railroad visited Mount Stewart last week

Mis Anna Duffy who has had two of her cousins from New York vsiting her the past weeks, on their return accompanied them to Quebec where she intend spending sometime.

A very successful tea party was held here Thursday last by the members of the United Church, upwards of four hundred dollars being realized. There were tea tables, fancy work tables, ice cream and tonics and everything that went to make it one of the best teas held here. Not forgetting the games and amusements which were second to none. And those who took part certainly deserve praise for the way in which they carried it through. A feature of the evening was the sale of two cakes. The one bearing the name and picture of our Liberal leader, Hon. W. L. McKenzie King and the other bearing the name and picture of our Conservative leader, Hon. Arthur Meighen. The one realizing sixty-two dollars and the other fifty-eight dollars. The proceeds of one table which amounted to fifty-three dollars went towards the Peoples cemetery here. In the evening an entertaining game of baseball was played between the Charlottetown Abbies and the Mt. Stewart Tigers. Score eight to ten in favor of the visiting team.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. F. Jardine, and Miss M. J Taylor motored to Freetown Friday.

NEWS AS A BUSINESS COMMODITY

A. P. Representative Would Have Govts. Accept the Principle That News Is Property and Entitled To Protection.

GENEVA, Aug. 20. — Elmer Roberts, representing the Associated Press of the United States, today introduced a resolution at the League of Nations, advocating international recognition of property rights in news.

The resolution recommends that governments accept the following principles; first, That news as a business commodity is property; Second, That this property right does not expire with the mere first appearance of news, either in a single newspaper or bulletin board, but continues and is entitled to protection until its full benefit has been realized by its owner and third, That violation of this property right is unfair competition.

Roy Howard, chairman of the board of the Scripps-Howard newspapers, introduced an amendment to the resolution, stating that property rights shall not apply to official news and communications emanating from governments.

Says He Invented Kitchener Story

LONDON, Aug. 20. — The Daily Sketch today prints over the signature of Singleton Gates, a British newspaper man, a long story bluntly stating that Gates invented the whole story of the discovery of Field Marshal Lord Kitchener's body in Norway in conjunction with Frank Power, a British newspaper man. It was Power who announced that he had found Lord Kitchener's body, and who brought a case to London supposed to contain the remains. Officials of the Home Office, who opened the case, said it was empty. Power contended that someone had tampered with the "Kitchener coffin".

Gates asserts in his story that Power was interested in a moving picture entitled "How Kitchener was Betrayed", which was badly in need of publicity. He says the film was made as long ago as November 1921, when it was shown privately in London to Lord Kitchener's sisters and several members of the House of Lords and the Commons, who, after seeing it, bitterly denounced it. The promoters of the film therefore decided to advertise it to the utmost and the alleged discovery of Kitchener's body was the invention to aid in the exploitation.

PLAYS THE WRONG TUNE

One tune is as good as another thought Tommy Powers, and fortunately for him the majority of people cannot tell the difference between one melody and another when played on the bagpipes. Otherwise, he might have been the centre of an angry mob recently when, on being commandeered to stage a one-man parade down the main street of Stewart in the British Columbia mining area, before a truck loaded with the first ore shipped from a local mine selected "The Barren Rock of Eden."

All went well until Powers, with martial stride and the skirl of the pipes all but drowned out by the rumble of the four-horse ore wagon, reached the office of the mining company. Two Scotsmen, employes of the company, recognized the tune, rushed out and halted the procession.

The piper explained that he had picked the tune at random and meant no malice. He struck up "The Cock of the North," and the lumbering parade started off again to the accompaniment of cheers from the two Scotsmen.

French Farmer Opens Sock As Franc Falls

PARIS, Aug. 20—For probably the first time in the history of French agriculture the French peasant is spending money lavishly, spending money lavishly.

Watching the franc tumble on the world exchange, and seeing the money he had two years ago with less than half its purchasing power today, the French farmer has decided money isn't so much anyway. Anyone who knows the character of this class of agriculturists, will realize this is nothing short of revolutionary.

While the solons have been arguing in the Chamber and Senate, the peasant has been going stoically along the road trod by his fathers and grandfathers, paying little attention to politics, but working early and late in the fields with the same methods as did his forefathers ,and placing his profits in the traditional woolen sock.

A Deliberate Thinker

He is rather a logical person, this son of the French soil with his wooden shoes clumping along the country road—it may take him a long time to change his mind and to adopt a new method or arrive at a new conclusion but when he does he is the most "sot" individual in the world.

He has now become "sot" in the idea that something he can use, or even gaze at, is better than money hidden away which may be worth nothing tomorrow, and he is buying light trucks, and even touring cars. He also is laying in harvesters and moving machines at the end of July when his crops for the year are in and he will have no use for them for another twelve months.

Hoard Wheat

Furthermore he is not selling his wheat but is leaving it at home—and this is why the price of bread is nearly three francs a kilo in Paris. The peasant argues that wheat is money anyway, and why should he sell it for worthless paper?

No matter where one travels in France these late days in summer whether down through the rich valley of the Loire or in the equally rich farming country of Normandy, at the stations of every little town he will see consignments of new farming machinery, American in make, waiting to be hauled away to the French farms.

DURUSSELL-McFADYEN.

A pretty wedding was solemnized on July 21st, at 5 o'clock, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Deacon, Corning, Sask., when their niece, Margaret Florence McFadyen, grand-daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Campbell, of this city, became the bride of Nelson Stewart DuRussel, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. H. DuRussel, of Graytown, Sask. The Rev. Mr. Shearer, of Stoughton, performed the ceremony under an arch decorated with pink and white carnations.

The bride entered the room on the arm of her uncle, to the strains of Lohengrin Bridal Chorus played by Mrs. O. R. Teel, of Panzance, Sask. She wore a gown of ivory satin and carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations. Miss Nelda Lewis, of Raymore, Sask., was the bridesmaid and wore a dress of pale pink georgette crepe, with large hat to match. Mr. D. Uriac supported the groom. During the signing of the register, Miss Marjorie Dobson sang, "The Voice that Breathed Over Eden."

Thirty guests sat down to the wedding luncheon. Out-of-town guests were: Mrs. Mary Larsen, Mrs. J. J. Woolsey and Mrs. O. R. Teel, Mrs. A. Gamsby, Barons, Alta. In the evening, Mr. and Mrs. Deacon gave a public reception in Fisher's Hall, when about 400 guests attended. The hall was beautifully decorated, carrying out the color scheme of pink and white in refreshments as well as in decorations. A two-course lunch was served. A short program was rendered, one of the principal items being a mock wedding. This was followed by dancing, the music being furnished by the Windthorst Orchestra. The many beautiful and useful presents received show the popularity of the young couple in the community. Mr. and Mrs. DuRussel, accompanied by Miss Lewis and Mr. Uriac, left for Watron's Beach for a short honeymoon, after which they will reside at Corning.

Wheat Crop so Good Hail Failed To Hurt

MEADE, Kan., Aug. 20.—The wheat crop in Meade county was so good this year that hail storms could not destroy it.

Wheat on the large Cummins farm was pronounced a total loss after hail stones as large as golf bals had battered to the ground every head of grain seveal weeks before harvest. Unusual prolonged rainy weather kept the field green. New stalks sprang from the roots. Finally Cummins obtained a yield of twenty-five bushels an acre.

Another farmer, who had collected hail insurance, harvested thirty-five bushels from every acre. The insurance company, having admitted its loss, found no recourse to compel the farmer to return his insurance money.

SPRAYING THE APPLE ORCHARD.

(Experimental Farms Note.)

To be most efective both fungicides and insecticides, whether used as a liquid or dust, should be applied in such a manner as to give a complete protective covering to the foliage. In the early spring after the first growth starts and when the leaves are about one-quarter of an inch in diameter the first application should be made. This prevents the apple scab spore from gaining lodgment on the foliage and opening up a source of infection later in the season. The bud moth starts in early, and thorough work at this time is desirable in order to prevent the ravages of this pest.

In some years it may be advisable to apply the second spray or dust somewhat before the blossoms show the pink stage of development. A continued low temperature may retard the blosoms, and too long a period may elapse without the protection necessary if the new foliage growth is to escape infection. Should such conditions of temperature obtain, particularly if the weather is dark and accompanied by rain, the second application, the one usualy applied just as the blossom buds are showing pink, should not be delayed.

The third application is usually made immediately the petals have fallen. It sometimes happens that because of low temperature the time from the second application to the dropping of the petals may be so extended that the new foliage growth is not effectively protected for such a long period; particularly is this the case when there is considerable precipitation at this time. Under such circumstances a fungicide without poison in it should be applied just as the blossoms are opening up.

The usual fourth application is made ten days after the blossoms have fallen, and a fifth application may be desirable should the weather hold damp and cool.

The sulphur and Bordeaux dusts are apparently equally effective in the control of apple scab. The former gives a beter finish to the fruit. Dusting materials cost more per acre than do the materials for spraying, but this cost is offset by a saving in the time necessary to overtake the work. A calm atmosphere with moisture on the foliage to stick the dust particles is required for most effective work, and these conditions prevail during the very early morning.

Lime-sulphur, made up of 1 gallon of concentrate to 40 gallons of water, to which 1 pound of calcium cascinate (spreader) to 100 gallons is added along with the necessary lead arsenate, makes a satisfactory spray with excellent sticking qualities. Bordeaux mixture, made up of 3 pounds of copper sulphate and 9 pounds of hydrated lime to 40 gallons of water, is equally effective for the early sprays, but is better not used when the apple sucker is present, and should not be used for the spray following the fall of the blossoms

ONTARIO AND QUEBEC MUST PROGRESS IN GENERATION OF ELECTRIC POWER

(Cnaadian Press.)

MONTREAL, Aug' 21.—According to the August letter of the Royal Bank of Canada the amount of electricity generated in Canada for Canadian use during the first five months of 1926 surpassed that produced in the corresponding months in 1925, by 17 per cent. and that of 1923 by 38 per cent.

"Increased growth in Canadian use of electric power is indicative of increasing industrial activity, since a much larger proportion of the electric power generated in Canada is used for industrial purposes than in more thickly settled countries where there is a larger proportional amount used for lighting," says the report.

"A study of the probable cost of future turbine installation in Eastern Canada indicates that between 1926 and 1945 nearly $1,300,000,000 will be required in capital expenditure or that the average expenditure per year for the next 20 years will be close to $65,000,000. In making this estimate the dominion water power branch of the Department of the Interior conclude that of this total about $600,000,000 will be required in Ontario and nearly $700,000,000 in Quebec.

"Such figures as those of the Royal Bank of Canada showing the rapid rise in kilowatt hours generated, or the tables from the dominion water power branch showing the rapid increase which has already taken place in installed turbine capacity in Canada have indicated the rapid growth in this industry, but the economic importance of the subject stands out more clearly when these changes are transformed into new terms giving the amount of capital required. Even more startling results would be obtained by showing the capital investment and the man power necessary for the growth of the power-using industries which will develop during the next 20 years."
