U. S. aid to Soviets will Be prompt

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12 — (AP)—United States aid to Russia will be full and quick and will continue until Hitler is crushed—this was the word that came from a conference today between the President and his newly-appointed supply mission to Moscow.

The mission, which called for financial instructions before leaving shortly for Russia by way of London, let it be known that all kinds of war supplies would be transported over routes to Vladivostok and the newly-opened line through the Persian Gulf.

A hint that this aid was expected to enable the Russians eventually to take the offensive for a crushing blow at the Nazis came from W. Averell Harriman, chairman, who discussed the mission's general purposes after the White House conference.

Asked whether Russia's needs would be considered from the standpoint of immediate requirements or long-range assistance, Harriman replied there would be no time limitations on aid furnished, that it would continue until "ultimate victory."

When questions arise as to whether Britain or Russia should get certain goods first, he said, the decision would be in favor of "where they would do the most good in the light of ultimate destruction of Hitler."

The Secretary of State told reporters that the United States was doing all it could at present to assist Russia and that these efforts would continue.

Harriman said the "whole problem of Russian aid" would be discussed in Moscow after the five-man mission had talked first in London with a similar British mission headed by Lord Beaverbrook.

HOW MANY DO YOU KNOW Many words have many meanings. It is a good game to take a word and try to write down all its meanings.

Take, for example, the word break. How many meanings can you think of? We can think of over a dozen. Here are a few of them:

Now see how many more you can write down.

U. K. orders Dried apples From Canada

OTTAWA, Sept. 12 — (CP)—Reports of substantial orders from the British food ministry for British Columbia and Nova Scotia apples are in line with information given out recently in London, that the ministry will take all the evaporated apples Canada can supply and considerable quantities of raw apples as well.

Canadian dehydrated apples made a great hit with British housewives last year and as a result there is a great demand for them, an official of the food ministry said. This was an interesting development of Canada's gift of processed apples to the United Kingdom last year.

Canada at that time donated 25,000 cases of canned apples and 25,000 cases of evaporated apples to the Red Cross for use in military hospitals and for feeding refugees. It also gave the food ministry 500,000 cases of canned apples and 75,000 cases of evaporated apples.

Britain then was buying a few raw apples for lack of shipping space and this gift took care of the surplus Nova Scotia apples which usually went in barrels to the United Kingdom market. When it came to distribute the evaporated apples the ministry ran into difficulties, being unable to place them in the hands of the people who knew how to use them.

Eventually the ministry turned the evaporated apples over to the regular retail trade and they were soon sold along with instructions about how to use them. The returns from these sales will add several thousand pounds to the Lord Mayor's Fund for London air raid victims.

Requests for more evaporated apples soon poured into the ministry with the result that this year the ministry offered to take 10,000 tons.

Since it requires almost nine pounds of raw apples to provide one pound of evaporated apples Canadian officials in London negotiating with the food ministry expressed the view this large order could not be completely filled.

Raw apples also were required from Nova Scotia as well as Ontario and British Columbia.

To receive Wage increase

RIMOUSKI, Que., Sept. 12 — (CP)—Thirteen hundred employees of the Price Brothers company mills in Rimouski, Pricerville and Matane will receive an increase in pay of about 20 per cent starting this week.

Six hundred employees of Price Brothers' sawmill and box manufacturing plant here staged a one-day strike last Monday for a 10-cent-an-hour increase. They resumed work when informed that their demands would be considered. Their wages ranged from $2.30 to $3.25 a day.
