Why Germany Wants a Moratorium (PARIS, July 10)—A proposal providing for the payment of all the remaining cash instalments due this year, provided Germany is granted a moratorium of at least two years, was brought to Paris today by German representatives, according to unofficial information which reached the Reparation Commission. The German emissaries were Dr. Fischer, chairman of the German War Debt Commission and Herr Schroeder, Under Secretary of the Ministry of Finance. In reparations circles the opinion seems daily to be gaining ground that the fundamental reason for the German financial chaos lies in the total of reparations required, 132,000,000,000 gold marks, which is regarded in many quarters as impossibly high.

INVESTIGATE VOLCANO Extensive drilling into the great active volcano Kilama on the island of Hawaii, will be undertaken during the year in an endeavor to determine the heat of the volcano, the quantity of steam underneath, the mineral constituents and the solution of other related questions according to an announcement of the government volcanologist at Hawaii. "The places of most interest are where the ground is hot from recent volcanic activity," the scientist said. "It is aimed to penetrate the surface where the lava flows are of known date so as to learn what changes of temperature underground have taken place with the passage of time. If high temperature are maintained possibly at red heat for years, it would be possible to utilize the heat for power." Kilama now is unusually quiet, but a "heaving up" in March at the equinox is expected," the scientist said.

THE S. S. GASPESIA arrived in port yesterday morning from Montreal. She left there last Tuesday with about 70 passengers for different points along the coast. These passengers were highly pleased with the treatment accorded them by the Captain and the other officers and crew that they made a presentation to Captain Tremblay just as the ship was entering Charlottetown Harbor. A substantial sum was contributed by the passengers and with this will be purchased for the Captain a handsome clock with a suitable inscription thereon. An address on behalf of the passengers was read by Dr. Maxwell Lauterman of Montreal. This address expressed the deep appreciation of the measures which were taken by the Captain officers and crew for the pleasure and comfort of the passengers, thus maintaining the splendid traditions of the British and Canadian Merchant Marine. A hearty tribute was paid to the sterling qualities of Captain Tremblay and the hope expressed that he would further advance in his chosen profession. The Captain in his reply said that "service" was the motto of himself and the Clark Steamship Company, owners of the "Gaspesia" and it was his desire to make every effort to merit the confidence and approval of the public. He heartily thanked them for their splendid gift, and was glad to know they had graciously accepted whatever inconveniences they had been obliged to put up with.

Company, corner of King and Queen Streets. He said he represented the Canadian Distilling Company. Witness and O'Brien closed for the night about 2 a. m. and went to bed together in witness' boarding house, Sydney Street. They got up at a quarter to four and going down Queen Street met the stranger standing on the opposite side in the doorway of Carter's seed store. He called out to them; they went over and he opened the door and took them in. There was another man present who they afterwards saw with the truck out by the bicycle park. Stranger No. 1, the one they had made the bargain with) said he didn't have the "stuff" ready and asked them to wait a while. There was a puncheon on the elevator and another on the floor. Hennessey came out with his figger and took them away. Witness asked again for their rum and the stranger said he was afraid to give the liquor then on account of the watchman, and that he would give it sometime through the day or evening. He told defendants to go with Hennessey. The other stranger went out the side door and went up Queen Street. Witness did not know there was any liquor in Carter's. The stranger let them out the front door. At the bicycle park stranger No. 2 was there with a motor truck. Witness and O'Brien expected to get ten gallons of rum in two five gallon tins for $200. They never got it.

EX-KAISER'S VERSATILITY BERLIN, July 10—The ex-Kaiser has become a clerk of the weather. Sawing wood and superintending the writing of his forthcoming memoirs have not been his only occupation since he established himself at Doorn. He has set up a fully equipped meteorological station there and he makes his daily observation with care and accuracy. Daily, too, he forwards his results and forecasts to Berlin. (Nor is that all. He has produced another book and has actually written it with his own hand. It is not about his reign, the war, or even remotely about himself. It is on the subject of growing orchids. He has a former court preacher at Potsdam, who has read the manuscript, describes it as being "a high degree of valuable work.")

A TWO PLY DEFENSE The prosecuting attorney had just concluded his opening statement to the jury. The defendant, a negro, was on trial for murder. The prosecutor had clearly outlined what the state expected to prove. Then the attorney for the negro stepped forward. "It pleases the court and gentlemen of the jury," he began in the usual dignified manner, "that defense in this case will be twofold, first, alibi, second self defense."

LEFT HIM NO ESCAPE. "If you feel that way, why did you propose to the woman?" "I didn't. She proposed to me." "But you could have refused her." "No, I couldn't. She said 'Will you marry me? Have you any objection?' so whether I said 'Yes' or 'No' she'd had me either way." "Well, you shouldn't have answered her." "I didn't, so she said, 'Silence gives consent,' and that settled it."
