FANCY WORK EXHIBIT ROCHFORD SQUARE SCHOOL

The exhibition of plain and fancy sewing by the pupils of Rochford Square School held the latter part of last week was exceptionally fine and demonstrated to parents and other visitors that the children of this school are taught something more than the three "R's". Sewing, a most essential factor in the home, the young pupils are taught early how to use a needle and thread and the specimens shown are most creditable.

The work of grade II consisted of small handkerchiefs neatly hemmed by the little pupils.

Grade III work consisted of samples of "darning" and towels, the latter being worked with outlines cups and saucers, tumblers, etc., showing careful attention to details.

Grade IV exhibited many nicely worked pillow cases with initials showing the numerous methods of stitching and hemming.

Fillow cases and laundry bags, the work of the pupils of grade V, was an exhibit that received much favourable comment. Here the pillow cases were more elaborate and the laundry bags, a real household convenience were neatly lettered. Neat looking aprons nicely worked were also exhibited by this grade.

The work of grade VI was similar to grade V but more advanced. A sample of work the Sisters took great pride in showing was a neatly worked apron made by Laura Thomas, a little Indian girl with only one arm. The neat stitches were pointed out and the name "Laura" worked across the apron. This grade also exhibited several neat runners.

Grade VII pupils exhibited advanced work in nighties hand embroidered with hand made lace. A similar exhibit was made by grade VIII with a nice showing of "runners" nicely worked centre pieces and cushions.

The beautifully worked Altar linen, with fine edgings of lace, neatly hemmed, lavabos and other articles used in connection with church services were greatly admired. This was the work of grades IX and X and showed careful attention to the smallest detail.

Taken throughout the entire exhibit was indeed creditable to pupil and teacher alike.

Personal Events, Mrs. Ernest Haslam; Child Welfare, Mrs. Hyatt Haslam; Immigration, Mrs. Archibald MacGregor. The roll call for next meeting is to be answered by "My Pet Superstition." The following delegates were appointed to attend the Annual Convention of the P. E. Island Women's Institute: Miss Emily Howard and Mrs. Hyatt Haslam, Substitutes, Mrs. Archibald MacGregor and Mrs. Norris Sinclair. The meeting closed by the singing of "God Save the King."—E.

INFORMATION TO VOTERS

In order that our citizens may know something of the procedure being followed in connection with the general election the Conservative Headquarters here are giving the following details on the work of registrars and revising officers.

Judge Duffy is the revising officer for the City of Charlottetown (not including the Royalty) and his sittings commences at eleven a. m., on Monday June 23rd, and will continue during Tuesday and Wednesday. At the revision court the lists may be modified in three ways:—(a) by adding the name of electors who are qualified to vote but whose names have not been included; (b) by correcting mistakes that have been made as to the names and callings of the electors and (c) by the striking off of names improperly included.

Applications should be made by the elector but in cases of sickness, disability or necessary, temporary, unavoidable and bona fide absence from the City a relative by blood or marriage or the employer if he has sufficient knowledge of the facts may make the application.

Since no one in Charlottetown whose name does not appear on the list may vote on election day it is important for every one to make sure that his or her name is registered. Wednesday, June 25th, is the last possible chance to have your name included as the lists are printed as soon as they are passed along by the revising officer. Copies of the voters lists for all Charlottetown Polls are posted up in the Conservative Committee Rooms and any voter who desires may look at these lists or will receive the necessary information by telephoning the Committee Rooms, (No. 1220), somewhat different. The Registrars The procedure in the rural polls is for these polls have been appointed some time ago and they are completed their lists. These lists are prepared by the Registrar by making personal inquiry as to the names of the electors in the polling division and are then posted by the registrar together with a notice as to where he may be found if any elector wishes to have any additions or corrections made. A number of the lists of voters in the rural polling divisions have been completed and cop-
