The bread box should be washed out weekly, dried and thoroughly aired by keeping the lid open a short time. If this is done the bread will never get a musty taste. To keep bread from becoming too dry place a well-baked potato in the box. Moisture is given off by the potato but not enough to cause mildew.

INSIDIOUS EYE STRAIN

We use this adjective advisedly.

Sufferers from Eyestrain may have perfect vision and therefore do not suspect the presence of any eye defect.

The motive power of the entire human organism is Nerve Energy.

Normal eyes, it is computed utilize about 20% of this Nerve Energy, but when Eye-strain is present, a much larger proportion is required. Hence defective eyes, through their consumption of an excessive amount of Nerve Energy may seriously affect the functioning of other organs of the body and produce ill health.

CHAPTER XV
A Rift

Myra's first feeling was a fine one. She thought of Sally and Sally's reaction. Since that night she had accused her on the boat of letting Allen Leigh make love to her she had come to a clearer understanding of Sally's childlike nature.

And yet there were times when this very quality in her sister annoyed her. Being older and more experienced, she knew that men were drawn by Sally's native charm. It wasn't Sally's fault, and yet Myra could be vicious at times.

Her second feeling was not so fine; it was one of hurt pride over a rather ordinary flirtation on her own part.

"Well," she said with a sneer.

When the door had closed on Tim Myra turned Sally curiously

"I suppose I ought to apologize for intruding. I'm very sorry, but of course, I couldn't be expected to know."
They were all three standing. Sally was trying to keep the tears back. George Britton spoke first. "We're all being very serious over what is, after all, a trivial accident," he said with assurance. "I came up with the idea of having a cigarette with you two, and Mrs. Bates looked so charming that I yielded to the impulse to kiss her."
Myra smiled a rather ominous smile.

"I see. Well, have you finished your cigarette? Because, if you have, it might be a good idea for you to go."
George Britton bowed. He had a feeling of having made a fool of himself. It had been rather pleasant taking the two women around Paris; he had quite enjoyed it, and since this new interest in Sally had been aroused in him it had offered still more pleasant possibilities.

But he was a man of the world. "I'm sorry, Mrs. Warren." And then he turned so Sally. "I apologize most sincerely, Mrs. Bates, for taking an unwarrantable liberty. I hope you will forgive me."
Neither girl spoke and he took his departure in silence. When the door had closed on him Myra turned to Sally furiously.

"Really, Sally, if you have no idea of how to take care of yourself, why did you ever come on this trip? I gave you credit for some common sense, but you don't seem to have any. It's all right to play this baby innocence, which seems to be your line, but if you don't expect a man to make love to you, why see him when you're not dressed? You must admit that any man would think it strange."
"But I didn't want to see him," Sally was crying now.

"Then why allow him to come up? You see how inconsistent it is! And after all, you might at least have had some idea of what we had in mind. But playing the game of innocence and then taking refuge in tears when something happens is disgusting."
Myra flung her parcels and fled to her room.

She had worked herself into a regular rage now and was willing to blame Sally for what had happened. Sally's tears only irritated her.

Stavert—Welsford Nuptials

(Montreal Gazette.)
The marriage took place Wednesday afternoon at half-past four o'clock at the Church of St. Andrew and St. Paul, the Rev. George H. Donald officiating, of Jean Thomson, daughter of Sir William and Lady Stavert, to Mr. Hubert Gray Welsford. The decoration in the church were carried out in palms, southern smilax and woodwardia ferns, pink snapdragons, mauve Darwin tulips and yellow daffodils. The chancel was arranged with palms and woodwardia ferns. Interspersed with snapdragons and tulips, and the window over the communion table was outlined in smilax and banked with potted daffodils. Tall standards of pink snapdragons, mauve tulips and daffodils were placed at intervals in the church, and the guest pews were marked with bunches of the same flowers, tied with cyclamen ribbon. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory ring velvet, made on simple lines, slightly draped and caught in front at the waist line with a large pearl ornament; the bodice, finished with a bateau neck, had long tight-fitting sleeves, and the court train of the velvet was lined in shell pink chiffon. Knots of silver ribbon and brilliants. Her tulle veil, worn over her face, was held by a bandeau of orange blossoms at the back of the head, finishing in tiny sprays at each side of the forehead and she carried a shower bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the Valley. The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Grahame Stewart, as matron of honor, in a gown of town guests were Mrs. C. J. Butcher, of Boston, aunt of the bride;

long streamers of wide silver and gold ribbon falling from the left side of the waist to the floor. The bridesmaids, Miss Louise Fraser, of Lancaster, Ontario, and Miss Mildred Bennett, of Calgary, wore frocks of cyclamen pink georgette embroidered in gold, with streamers of gold and silver ribbon falling from the waist line to the floor. They also wore cyclamen tulle hats banded in gold with a tulle pink rose over the left ear, and carried fan-shaped bouquets of lavender tulips, yellow fuchsia and acacia sprays. Mr. Ewart Stavert, brother of the bride, acted as best man, and the ushers were Mr. Cyril Welsford, brother of Mr. Hubert Gray Welsford, Mr. James Young and Mr. Hugh Willis. Mrs. Welsford, the bride's mother, wore a gown of peach georgette and black moire trimmed with motifs of gold embroidery, with a velvet hat with fox, and a mohair velvet hat with a paradise mount. She carried sunburst roses. Mrs. Butcher, of Boston, aunt of the bride, wore a black georgette gown, with panels of white beads, and a black satin hat. Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the residence of the bride's parents, 211 Drummond street. The drawing room received in the bride and groom, which was decorated with Columbia roses and mauve tulips. The bride's table in the dining room was arranged with Columbia roses and lilies of the valley, and daffodils and smilax were used as decorations in the hall. Later Mr. and Mrs. Welsford left for New York, en route for Washington and Pinehurst, the bride travelling in a rock of nymph flat crepe, with a hat of tulle of a deeper tone and a silver grey cloth wrap trimmed with platinum fox fur. They will reside in Montreal. Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. C. J. Butcher, of Boston, aunt of the bride;

GOT HER FEET WET CAUGHT BAD COLD

Mrs. Ernest Hall, Cardinal, Ont., writes:—"Last winter I got my feet wet and I caught a terrible cold. I took different kinds of medicine, but none did me any good and I seemed to be getting worse all the time.

One day I was reading about what your medicine had done for others, so I thought I would get a bottle. After I had taken a few doses I found it was helping me, so I took a few more and was completely restored to health. I cannot praise it enough.

(By Wandering Scribe)

We are sorry to learn of the serious illness (pneumonia) of Mr. Henry Smith, Tryon, and trust to hear of his early recovery.

Friends of Mr. Wesley Calbeck, North Tryon, are glad to know that his recent illness was not so serious, and that he is able to be up and about again.

Messrs Phil. Rossiter and Wm. Ready paid Albany a call Monday the 14th in the interests of their respective firms. They report business O. K.

The Misses Velda Campbell and Do. Howatt spent Monday visiting friends in Albany.

Messrs Norman McWilliams and Wilton Gardner, Cape Traverse, were among the fans attending the St. Pat-Arrow hockey at Albany Monday evening.

Although the weather was very unfavorable and light snow falling continually, making it very uncomfortable for man or beast, a large crowd assembled Tuesday Feb. 15th, at Clayton Morrison's sale of a farm, implements, stock, etc. The auctioneer was Mr. Hugh Morrison, Kensington, and bidding realized in almost all cases. The darkness of Tryon are as yet in the dark regarding the future intentions of Mr. and Mrs. Morrison (they having already disposed of their farm) but all trust they will find it convenient to make their home in Tryon, for we cannot well afford to lose such citizens.

Mr. Guy Holland, local representative for the Aspinwall Company reports business brisk.

Mr. Ben. Webber has an exhibition at the Delaney Company's store, Albany, a large hooked square purchased recently in the western part of the province. This square is a real work of art and will no doubt later find its place in the home of some connoisseur.
