PATRIOTIC SUNDAY IN THE CITY CHURCHES

who tread where saints have trod men for country, right and God. Give us men; I say again, give us men."

REV. R. G. FULTON.

In St. James Church Sunday evening Rev. R. G. Fulton preached a splendid sermon to a large congregation. He was eloquent and impressive, and he made a stirring appeal for "Men, and yet more men." He took as his text St. Paul's Epistle to the Hebrews, 11:24 and 25: "By faith, Moses, when he was come to years, refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter, choosing rather to suffer affliction with the people of God." Mr. Fulton ably portrayed the life of Moses and showed his usefulness in the interests of his people.

We have here, he said, a type of man who pleased the will of his country first of all. A man who thought of the times, of his own kindred, of his own nation, above all things which would appeal to him either from the standpoint of sense or from other things which sometimes appeal to men. There are days, he said, my friends, when one is led to question whether there is such a thing as the truest and highest kind of patriotism. There have been days already, since August 1914, when certain things have led us to remember the words of one, written long ago, when he claimed that no criminal was so corrupt, no office-seeker so base, no scribbler so scurrilous, that he did not dub himself a patriot and every one who differed from him a traitor to his country. One is reminded of these words when we think of the lack of loyalty, when we think of some of the disloyalty that has been disclosed in the past months. Even the day upon which the sun shines brightest the shadows are oftentimes deepest, and when we turn our attention away from some few who have failed in their responsibility in the country's call, and failed in loyalty and consecration in the country's hour of greatest need, we have been cheered and strengthened and sustained by the fact that on the right of that, everywhere above us, there have been those who have been loyal to the core, men and women who have been anxious to place everything upon the altar of their country, and give everything, as far as it was possible for them to give, that the glorious traditions of our Empire may be sustained. It is this, my friends, which cheers us when we think of some of the things which have occurred, when we think of some of the marks of disloyalty which have been found even in this land of ours. I say it is this fact that the great majority have recognized the call of the country, the call of the Empire, and have gladly answered it, which cheers and sustains us in this trying hour. In this testing time I sometimes think of the story of Regulus. In the war between Carthage and Rome, in the days when Rome sought to extend her power, to cross the Mediterranean and conquer the northern part of Africa—you remember how the hero of Carthage, assisted by those of Greece, eventually succeeded in capturing the great Roman general, Regulus, making him a captive of war, and you remember how, for two years, he pined in captivity, and eventually they offered him release if he would go back and tell the Romans they were unwise, and that Carthage was strong and invincible. If he would go back and plead with Rome to submit to conquest by Carthage he would be free; and you remember that Regulus, accompanied by two men of Carthage, went back. Instead of pleading with Rome he urged her on to greater efforts, although he knew it meant death and the cruellest and harshest kind of punishment before death. Mr. Fulton, in the course of his magnificent address, said that it pained him very much at one of the recruiting meetings to find one man questioning the age of a young fellow who had come forward to enlist, and who was obviously eligible. He had exploded the fallacy, which some people had until recently entertained, that the British Empire was in process of senile decay. Mr. Fulton went on to say that the Empire shall and must win, but that every man must do his duty and that every man was unnecessary to tell the young men what their duty was; they had been told that over and over again. But he reminded them of the gravity of the situation and urged them all to respond to the call of the King for "Men and yet more men."

"CASCARETS" FOR A COLD, BAD BREATH OR SICK HEADACHE

BEST FOR LIVER AND BOWELS, FOR BILIOUSNESS, SOUR STOMACH AND CONSTIPATION.

Get a 10-cent box now. Furred Tongue, Bad Colds, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret tonight and give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months. Millions of men and women take a Cascaret now and then to keep their stomach, liver and bowels regulated, and never know a miserable moment. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

CANON SIMPSON IN ST. PETERS.

Canon Simpson gave his hearers a plain talk on the serious nature of the situation. He said there was a vast amount of ignorance and misunderstanding amongst the classes with reference to Christianity in relation to the war. The faith of many was threatened and in some cases shattered altogether through the want of the simplest in the very elements of Christianity. He said that every man deliberately chose the evil, the Almighty would not interfere to prevent him doing so. His fate was in his own hand, if he decided to reject the wisdom and goodness of God.

In the ignorance of the past, people chose to build cities on earthquake ridges. When the inevitable earthquake came these people, or their equally foolish descendants, ran to churches and organized processions to appease, as they termed it, the Divine wrath whereas their criminal folly was the sole cause of the calamity. In these days of war some of the questions asked were how could God allow such murderous atrocities to continue? Why did he not interfere to prevent all this horror. The unbeliever declared that Christianity had failed. The simple answer was that God would not interfere to save nations from the consequences of their own negligence and folly. And they must pay the bitter cost. These people were utterly wrong. What a sad lack of faith it was to ascribe to any one or anybody else the certain results of their own folly. They knew that within the next few weeks the voluntary system was having its final test. What share were we in Prince Edward Island taking in this campaign in which the fate of the Empire depended. Were there not hundreds of men who could go, but who yet hung back. There were hundreds of people who thought they were doing their duty to their country by singing patriotic songs or eating bean-soup, or spending an evening at a patriotic bridge party. All these things would avail nothing, and unless they were willing to yield to German culture and German brutality, they must do a nobler service than that. England must win her sons and daughters were true to her. Would they be true. Would the glorious lives yielded up in Flanders and the Dardanelles be sacrificed for naught because others would not take the places of those who had fallen, or would the manhood of the nation rise to their responsibility and our responsibility till the foe was crushed and lasting peace once more restored.

REV. G. C. TAYLOR, IN BAPTIST CHURCH.

In the evening the Rev. G. C. Taylor occupied the pulpit in the Baptist Church. There was a very large con-
