Green is one of the favored colors for Spring and Summer wear. The answer for this is easy, for it appears cool and fresh at all times.

The simple balbriggan costume above is ideal for tennis and general sports wear. Balbriggan is much like Jersey, only it comes in lighter weights and has a mottled surface that is very effective.

The simple slip-on blouse is edged with deeper green, and the same deep tint is repeated in the inset pleats at the front.

Dick Whittington COLOR CUT-OUTS

THE MASTER'S SHIP

This is one day's chapter of the famous story of "Dick Whittington and His Cat." If you cut out and color these dolls every day you will soon have a whole set of Dick Whittington dolls with which to act out the story.

Now, about this time, one of Mr. Fitzgibbon's ships was being laden for a trip. As the merchant was a generous man and kind to all his servants he determined that they each should have a chance to send something on his ship to trade in foreign ports.

Each one may send whatever he wishes," he said. "So think over the list of your possessions."

Now every one of them had something which he was eager to send except Dick. Poor Dick tried hard to think over his possessions as his master had bidden, but he had nothing of which to think.

PERPETUAL SODAS.—There is a job in New York who is "fed up." Her girl is to drink nut sodas, sodas, all the soda fountain concoctions there are, or to order them at any rate and go through the motions.

Footloose

ing their constitutional along the Boardwalk. "When are you going to marry me?"

May drew a long, sobbing breath—the sort of gasp that an Olympic runner gives at the end of a long race.

"Do you want me to?" she asked, in a tone so low that Waterbury could barely hear what she said.

"Oh, no, not today." May shook her head. She knew that if she married Waterbury the trip to California would be their honeymoon.

"I won't say a thing about it—I'll just tuck it away for a nest egg," she thought, practically. "Twelve thousand dollars of my very own!"

Why it was more than $12,000—for she still had $2000 in her hand-bag!

A sense of triumph flooded her like warm sunshine.

She had done what she had planned to do! She had landed the millionaire husband she wanted, almost without effort!

And if she felt that there was something lacking in this matter-of-fact proposal of marriage—something of Romance, perhaps—what was the difference?

The great thing was that she had landed Herby, and that Herby had money, the thing she desired beyond all other earthly things!

She looked up at Waterbury and her face glowed.

"A week from today—let's be married then!" she said. "Shall we?"
