

Another War Coming On Bronchitis!

The campaign last year against Bronchitis was so successful that the public is fully determined to renew hostilities against this formidable foe this winter. People are going into action armed with the world's mightiest and most destructive weapon—Buckley's Bronchitis Mixture. The germs of bronchitis, colds, etc., are driven out of their strongly entrenched position, and thousands of victims are relieved in a most miraculous manner. It is positively wonderful the way this remedy does its work. The demand for it is phenomenal—over 6,000 bottles being sold in thirty days in Ottawa last winter.

Buckley's Bronchitis Mixture is not a syrup, but a scientific mixture guaranteed to relieve the worst case of bronchitis, coughs, colds, hoarseness, asthma, influenza, etc.

Join in this fight for humanity. Don't hesitate. Buy a bottle today. 75c. at any druggist's. Your money refunded if you are not satisfied. Accept no substitutes.

For sale at all Drug Stores or by mail from W. K. BUCKLEY, LIMITED, 142 MUTUAL STREET, TORONTO.

IN MEMORIAM

ROBERT P. LANK

Mr. Robert Putman Lank departed this life at his home in Cove Head, P. E. Island on September 27, 1920 much regretted by a large circle of friends and relatives who will long remember him for his kind and honest treatment to friends and neighbors in distress and affliction and as a man of business he was much respected by every man he dealt with from time to time. A native of Nova Scotia, he came to this province where he married Sara E. Hughes by whom he is now survived as also by his four sons: Hamilton, Havelock and Hilbert in Alberta, Saskatchewan, and Willard on the homestead. Interment took place at the cemetery in Stanhope, there to await the final call when the trumpet shall sound and the dead shall arise. "The memory of the just is blessed."

THE WOMAN HE MARRIED

BY JANE PHELPS

IT COSTS TO MOVE

Chapter 30

I didn't want to be anything but a good wife to Dick; I didn't mean to be anything but a good wife. I would have indignantly denied that I was in any way a hindrance to my husband. Yet I would have been very angry if anyone had accused me of living out of all proportion to our means, when I did all the work and took care of the baby to save; but I did. In all that happened I was laying up sorrow and trouble for Dick and for myself. I used to watch Dick swing down the street, tall, erect, wonderfully goodlooking, and think how proud I was of him—how he surpassed all other men I had ever met, save only the one essential, money!

"Any of the girls would have snapped at him," I used to say when I thought of the days he courted me, and how my girl friends envied me.

Now that he had signed the lease for the new apartment I would be terribly busy. We were to move in two weeks. I couldn't stop my bridge lesson because of Mildred. I felt for the first time a sense of obligation. She had done so much for me I couldn't feel free to do as I wished.

Dick helped me to dismantle the old rooms evenings. We took down draperies, packed dishes, and got everything to move with as little expense as possible. The van would cost us $35 and we really had so little.

"I didn't think of the cost of moving the stuff when I signed the lease," Dick remarked, a frown spoiling his face. I smoothed the frown away as I replied.

"No, for once you thought of making me happy."

"For once?" he pained surprise.

"Well, I didn't exactly mean that. But you have been so awfully afraid to do as other people do; so afraid to ask anyone to wait—why, Mildred says the stores haven't any respect for a woman who pays cash. And it must be so, for the clerks treat a woman who has a charge account far differently than they do a woman who pays for things."

"If they do, the system is all wrong. It must be because the stores spend so much more that the stores can afford to wait. There's something behind it, you can be sure."

"That's just what I have been telling you. They are willing to wait, so why not let them?"

"A settling day comes some times, Nan."

"Naturally, but it can be put off until you can pay, and in the meantime we can have what we need, instead of going around looking poverty stricken."

"All right, dear. Wait until you see your husband in his new suit—you'll be afraid to trust him out of your sight!"

"Indeed I shan't! I shall be glad to have people see you look nice. I don't think it is any credit to a man not to, or not to have his wife look nice. I am as shabby as can be, I can't save a cent on what you give me to run the house. You'll get another raise soon—you told me you would. Now if we can get fixed up so that we look decent, when the raise comes we will pay it."

It was with such specious arguments as this that I enticed Dick. He loved me. Gradually he was losing his morale, gradually he was looking upon things with a different point of view. Gradually I was supplanting his honor.

A wife can be either the greatest asset a man has, or the greatest liability. I was the latter, even though I loved my husband devotedly.

I have heard it said that many good wives harm a man more than women not so moral. Morally I never had a thought unfair to Dick. He was my man, the only man in the world for me! Yet I was dragging him down daily, causing him to lose his stamina, making him a man without a mind—because of his love for me, his desire for my happiness.

And all the time I excused myself by saying:

"If he earned more money, I wouldn't have to do these things."

MRS. IDA HAMBURGH, of Brattleboro, Vt., who says she never dreamed there was anything on earth that would do what Tanlac has done for her. Gains twenty-seven pounds.

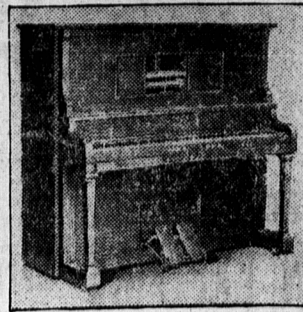

"I think it is perfectly marvelous the way Tanlac has built me up. Before I began taking it I was in wretched health and only weighed 117 pounds. I now weigh 144 and my health is splendid. I never dreamed that there was a medicine on earth that would cause me to regain my former weight and health in so short a time, but Tanlac did it and I simply can not tell you how grateful I am to this wonderful medicine. I suffered for two years from indigestion and dyspepsia and was in a very badly run-down condition. I had a tired, worn-out feeling nearly all of the time and rarely had any appetite. At times I would have indigestion so badly that I could hardly breathe. I also suffered from palpitation of the heart, severe headaches and pains in my back, but thanks to Tanlac, all of these terrible symptoms have left me and I now feel as well as I ever felt in my life.

Another thing; I sleep just splendidly at night now and never suffer from nervousness like I used to. Tanlac is certainly a wonderful medicine and I am only too delighted to recommend it to my friends. The above statement was made recently by Mrs. Ida Hamburg, of 316 S. Main Street, Brattleboro, Vermont.

Tanlac is sold in Charlottetown by Reddin Bros.; in Montague by H. J. Mabon, J. P. White, Murray River H. M. Chisholm, North Tryon R. H. Coohon, Murray Harbor, Lord's Company, Borden; Lord's Company, Cape Traverse and Lord's Company, Carleton Place, McEwen, Bristol, A. J. McEwen, Bonshaw.

Men who work in salt mines should be able to preserve their reputations. No doubt men are just as foolish as women, but you seldom hear of a man suing a woman for breach of promise. Happiness has a peculiar way of appearing and disappearing unexpectedly. Troublesome than one who can't but will. Anyway, a pessimist doesn't bore us half to death with his alleged jokes.

In the Case Of Detroit---

In granting increased rates for telephone service in Detroit the other day, the Michigan Public Utilities Commission said:—"An increase in telephone rates may be unpopular. A collapse in telephone service would be a calamity. It would be easy to jeopardize the investment of stockholders, impair the value of the company's property, cripple its service and destroy its credit, but in the long run the rate-paying public would bear the burden of re-establishing the business."

Public Utility Commissions everywhere are recognizing the fact that if telephone companies are to continue to give good service and to meet demands for new installations, they must have rates that will produce adequate revenue.
