BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES
(By Thornton W. Burgess)
No dinner's yours until 'tis eaten; No fight is won 'til foe is beaten.
—Billy Surefoot.

Little Kid Surefoot was staring at the biggest person he ever had seen, but being not very much over a week old he had seen few, and would be as big as his father whom he felt sure must be the biggest person in all the Great World. Now here below him on the rocky slope of the High Mountain was a person so big that he made mother and father seem small. Do you wonder he stared?
He didn't like the looks of this great stranger. Suddenly he was afraid and fear was a wholly new and most unpleasant feeling. He looked at his mother. She didn't seem afraid. Neither did his father. Both were watching the big stranger below as calmly as if he were Whistler the Marmot or some one else smaller than themselves. Still Little Kid moved a little closer to his mother.
"That," said she, "is one of the Bear folk. He is called Old Grizzly. He is very fond of kids. He would like you for his dinner."
"But I don't want to be his dinner," bleated Little Kid Sure-

Contract Bridge

By Josephine Culbertson
THE THROW-IN PLAY
Today's deal illustrates the dead-end efficiency of the elimination-and-throw-in play, properly executed.

North dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

♠ Q J 10 8 3
♥ K 6 5
♦ 7 4 3
♣ A K 7

♠ A 10 9 4
♥ 5
♦ 10 8 6
♣ J 10 8 5

The bidding:
North East South West
Pass 1 2
Pass Pass 3 4 Dbie.
3 N T Pass 4 5 Pass
5 6 Pass Pass Dbie.
Pass Pass Pass

North might have doubled two spades, especially since he had passed originally. When he took no action at this point, South was later unwilling to accept a three-trump contract. (That contract, incidentally, could have been beaten two tricks, played from the North position, if East were inspired to lead a club.) South felt that North could not have very much; so he decided to bid four diamonds and let North pass if he wished. South, after all, had shown a very strong hand by curbing the enemy's suit, and if North had anything that figured to be valuable at diamonds, he would carry on to game. North did just that—naturally, with some misgivings!

West opened the spade king. Declarer ruffed with the nine, drew two rounds of trumps, then took the slight risk of cashing the ace and queen of hearts. When West showed out, a third heart was led to the king and the spade queen was passed, South discarding a club. This "fix" West, whether he returned a spade or a club, South could control the situation and avoid losing two more tricks.

Of course, it may appear that East could have saved the defense by ruffing the spade queen, but appearances are deceptive. Readers may find interest and profit in trying out the last-named defense for themselves.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A X R
I O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
