THE MORNING GUARDIAN

FRIDAY JULY 30 1903.

BORELLI'S COMET.

The comet! he is on his way,
And singing as he flies;
The whizzing planets shrink before
The spectre of the skies;
Ah! well may regal orbs burn blue
And satellites turn pale,
Ten million cubic miles of head
Ten billion leagues of tail!

It was thus that Oliver Wendell Holmes took up his parable with regard to a comet of other days and in eight or nine stanzas more or less humorous, portrayed what might happen "if in the bearded devil's track our earth should chance to be." But the civilized world has now very little fear of these erratic visitants from far-off space. So far as known they are perfectly harmless and have never been known to interfere in human affairs except in a spectacular fashion. In that regard they have made a very grand display at times. Some of our older readers may remember the notable comets of 1858, 1861 and 1874, since which last date nothing so remarkable has appeared in the sky.

Altogether some hundreds of comets have been observed in different ages of the world, many of them being scarcely visible to the naked eye and others during but a short period. A few make comparatively regular visits, while others appear but once and then recede forever from human vision. It requires but little effort of the imagination to picture the comet as a huge etherial car in which a number of celestial visitors may be making the tour of the great universe, visiting in turn the different suns and planetary systems which astronomers believe to exist. For if we may believe the astronomers the comet is a very insubstantial thing; its sometimes tremendous tail being more attenuated than the air we breathe and its head or nucleus possessing so little substance that the human eye can look directly through it and see a star beyond, very little diminished in brilliancy.

This is true even of the larger comets, so we need have little fear of the shock of collision should one of them come in contact with the earth. This solid planet would roll on, as little disturbed by the impediment as would an express train at full speed on coming in contact with a puff-ball. But there might result a tremendous electric shock, and very grave disturbances of our weather conditions. In any case the chances of collision are extremely remote for human calculation, even if chance ruled the motions of the comets and planets in their orbits, which it does not.

Very varied in their appearance are different members of the tribe of comets. Some have no tails; others have shown two or more Some comets have no nucleus, or body, and this is the case with them all while very remote, when the comet appears as a mere nebuleus patch in the sky. This is called a telescopic comet. As it approaches the sun the nucleus is gradually formed as a central point of light. Later the tail appears, extending behind the nucleus, or on the side opposite the sun. The speed of the comet increases and when it makes its quick turn around the sun the tail always extends directly outward, and on the return journey of the comet into space the tail precedes the nucleus, and in turn the tail and shining body disappear in the same manner as they first appeared

It not infrequently happens that a comet which is visible to us when approaching the sun is invisible, or visible for a very short time after it passes round the sun. This is due to the rapid motion of both bodies increasing the distance between the comet and the earth. Not much is yet known of the comet now faintly visible in the northern sky, which was discovered some five or six weeks ago by Borelli, an astronomer, at Marseilles in France. But it is approaching toward the sun, gaining in visibility and may yet prove a striking figure in the sky. It may be in sight for weeks or even for months to come, but is not expected to become so conspicuous an object as several comets which appeared thirty to forty-five years ago.

A CALL DECLINED.

AMHERST, N. S., July 28.—At a large meeting of the Baptist church and congregation held here tonight, Rev. W. E. Bates, who lately received a call to the Main street Baptist church, St. John, announced his decision not to accept the call there. The announcement was received by the church here with hearty expressions of approval.

A Nightmare

Gives point to the fact that excessive or irregular eating disturbs the digestion. Nightmare or night hag has it's day time correspondence in the undue fullness after eating, with the belchings and sour or bitter rising so often experienced after too hasty or too hearty eating.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures dyspepsia and other diseases of the stomach and its allied organs of digestion and nutrition. When these diseases are cured, the whole body shares in the increased strength derived from food properly digested and perfectly assimilated.

"Your 'Golden Medical Discovery' and Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy have been of great benefit to me." writes (Prof.) Pleasant A. Oliver, of Viola, Fulton Co., Ark. "Before I used the above mentioned remedies my sleep was not sound; digestion bad: a continued feeling of misery. I now feel like a new man. Any one in need of medical treatment for nasal catarrh could do no better than to take treatment of Dr. R. V. Pierce. I know his medicines are all right in this class of diseases."

Sometimes a dealer tempted by the little more profit paid on the sale of less meritorious medicines will offer the customer a substitute as being "just as good" as the "Discovery." It is better for him because it pays better, but it is not as good for you, if you want the medicine that has cured others, and which you believe will cure you.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cleanse the clogged system from accumulated impurities.
