Chapter 28

Patty went home in a most dejected frame of mind. She knew at last the reason and the extent of her sister's unhappiness. And her own secret was gone—Millie knew all about it.

Besides, there were new secrets, to be kept. Her frank and open nature revolted from any sort of deception; at least, it called for constant deception. She tried to analyze the difference.

She was in love with Paul, but that was all right because her love hurt no one. The knowledge of it would have made no difference to anyone else, but all the difference to her, for to share the secret, somehow took from it its sacredness.

Millie was in love with Paul. But in that case everything changed for Humphrey, was hurt. Humphrey should know. Yet to tell Humphrey would hurt him brutally. Patty of all the people in the village, guessed sensitiveness of spirit that lay under his thick body and slangy manner.

"If he doesn't know, what is the difference?" she asked herself, starting out of her window across the green lawns and gardens of the neighboring houses. "Paul won't come back, she'll never see him, what's the harm—perhaps she'll forget about it."

In her concern for her sister, she was forgetting her own depression over the very fact that she would never see Paul either!

"It's worse for me," Millie had said before she left. "For you're young and you're unmarried. You've everything ahead of me. I'm 30—and married to a man I hate."

"How terrible it must be to be married to a man and hate him!" Patty said to herself, and shivered a little at something unknown, but sinister, in the idea.

And she stood and stared out for a long time at the yards and gardens along the street, each so snug and satisfied, so well watered, and well cut, so methodically carried into squares and patches by too narrow cement walks.

They were very much like their owners. Each square presented a green front and some flower beds to the public street as each woman presented a set of approved ideas along with her "best" embroidered tablecloths and towels and the new lace curtains, to guests and passer by.

Mrs. Markham, who lived next door, cultivated her flowers only in star and crescent shaped beds, and grew her thoughts in forms as

He Dreaded To See Night Come

MONTREAL MAN WAS ALMOST A NERVOUS WRECK—IS NOW WELL AND STRONG

"Tanlac did far more for me than I expected, and I never felt better in my life than I do right now," said J. R. Soucey, 2257 Jacques St., Ville Emard, Montreal, Quebec.

"I had indigestion so bad that I would go days at a time without taking a bite to eat, and my stomach was so upset and weak that I could hardly retain anything. My nerves were keyed up to such a pitch that I dreaded to see night come and every morning would get up with a dull headache that often lasted through the day.

"I am like a new man now, and I feel so strong and well that a whole day's labor does not tire me now as much as a half day's work used to. My digestion is perfect, I sleep like a boy all night long and then get up in the morning feeling just fine."

Tanlac is sold in Charlottetown by Reddin Bros and by leading druggists every where.

limited and artificial, never once letting them stray off into the green fields of romance or novelty. She watered them daily, each separate thought, with the approval of her own little set of friends, and elected all new ideas with haste and horror that she would have cast out poisonous weeds from the La France roses. Her morals, thought Patty, busily symbolizing in her the whole town were as straight narrow and unyielding as the cement walk to her front door.

If Mrs. Markham, or almost any one in the town knew that Millie's husband had ceased to love her, she would have been the laughing stock of the town.

But Patty knew fairly well what they would say if she told them. "She might have gone on with her analogy. For each house had a vegetable garden where, for economy, nettles and other table things were grown. But economy was something one did not admit to these gardens were tucked away behind asparagus or chicken wire overgrown with climbing vines, to hide them from the street the glowing red globes of tomatoes as though the pale green lettuce half hidden in deep green foliage, the silvery paleness of summer squash, or the flaunting orange of the pumpkins, were ugly because they were also useful!

And Patty wondered whether any of these friends in the town had ideas secretly cultivated but screened from public view as the vegetables, chicken runs and driving yards were tucked in star and crescent shaped beds, and grew her thoughts in forms as Presbyterian and Congregational churches is hard at work on the preliminaries, said Dr. Chowan, who expected that the act would be ready for discussion by the Methodist General Conference in 1922. The act will have to be approved by the Provincial Legislatures before it is brought before the Federal Parliament, but he was hopeful of it being placed before the Dominion House by 1923.

How could one's sense of duty control a blind and overpowering feeling that came, unthought and unexpected? Patty left the window and threw her arms about her head, her eyes gazing at the sky.

How did I really know of it and how much I thought I knew a little while ago? She said to herself. And she lay there for some time.

Oil Light Beats Electric Or Gas

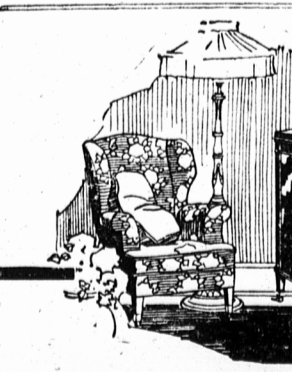

BURNS 94 PER CENT AIR

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up, is simple clean safe. Burns 94 per cent. air and 6 per cent. common kerosene (coal-oil).

The inventor, G. A. Johnson, 246 Craig St., W. Montreal, is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.

Union of Churches Progressing Well

WINNIPEG, Dec. 20.—No time is being lost in getting church union consummated. It was stated here tonight by Dr. S. Chowan, general superintendent of the Methodist Church, at a meeting of prominent Methodists. The committee representing the Methodist

Don't Shorten Your Lease Of Life

A month's suffering from Dyspepsia or Constipation shortens your life by two months

The stomach is the motor of life—food is the fuel, the stomach is the laboratory where combustion and the resulting changes take place. Therefore, digestion is the indispensable function, the absolute necessity to keep up the "vital fire."

And trouble of the digestive tract affects the entire organism, and if this trouble is allowed to continue for any length of time it brings on most serious conditions that may often result in death. That is why it can be said without exaggeration that a month's suffering from dyspepsia or constipation shortens your life by two months.

If you are suffering from loss of appetite, nausea, pains in the bowels, heartburn, sense of fullness or weight in the stomach, or any one of the numerous ills resulting from the poor functioning of the digestive organs, take one of the "Gastronals" after meals.

They will cleanse your system, purify your blood and generally tone your digestive organs. "Gastronals" is a new scientific discovery that is the specific in all troubles of the digestive tract.

It is sold everywhere at 50c. per box or 4 (six) boxes for $2.50. Each box contains 50 Gastronals, each one bearing its own name, so that you get full count. If your dealer cannot supply you, address remittance direct to Dr. J. O. Lambert, Limited, 396 St. Antoine St., Montreal.
