THE STORY

For the definite business of earning a living, she had a remunerative connection with the advertising house of Burnham and Morey, for whom she did conventional paintings in bright colors at their order. The work not only paid very well but was varied in type, usually interesting, and exercised the artistic virtues of a quick eye and finger for striking color effects. But always, besides this, she kept on studying better things, painting in all her hours of leisure the things her heart desired.

From the day she had entered upon the study of stenography, in her seventeenth year, Gay had never allowed herself time for a full and complete vacation, sufficient to give both soul and body recuperation. She said she hadn't time, there was too much to learn, too much to do. Even her one memorable trip abroad, although it continued over a year, had afforded her no rest, for in addition to her studies she had taken with her also a contract for a series of pictures for the Sunday Magazine, so that she returned to New York at last with zeal, aflame with ambition, and far less rested than when she went.

But outraged flesh and violated nerves claimed their revenge at last for the eleven years' defiance. For fully six months before the final June torrent of heat forced her in to full surrender, she had been a prey to quivering nerves that jangled in a jaded body, and when the inevitable forced itself upon her, she accepted it with a certain joy. If she must rest she would make that rest a sport. If she must go in to retirement, the exile should be a luxurious one. Perhaps—who knew?—even on a good little island of idleness might be some stimulant for an ardent though flagging spirit. Adventure perhaps, amusement certainly or even—ah, Romance!

Gay most ardent of free-soul advocates, decrying though she did the hampering confines of marriage, turned always sensitive heart-string to the stumming fingers of Romance. Marriage, Gay argued, was not designed for the ambitious worker. For the complacent, for the self-satisfied, for the indolent, as well as perhaps, but marriage and ambition, passion for accomplishment, were never messmates. Gay's first romance, tender sweet blossom of her ardent young womanhood, joyously promised the full fruitage of marriage "when the war is over," lay buried with the soldier who did not come back. And Gay's first passion of grief soon subsided into a philosophical reflection that perhaps after all it was better so, that she was not domestic, not the type help, if I can." Gay offered generously. "I was in the hospital for five months during the war, in training, and I'm not a bit 'highly-tighty.'" "Well, now, that's real neighborly, miss. First-rate. I'll tell my woman you said so. She'll be countin' on ye."

"Oh, I am quite expert with babies. They seemed to think the army wasn't going to do much but increase the population."

Lumley Lane burst into a loud haw-haw, and set off down the hill. Gay ran to her desk and added a postscript to her letter to Nancy Moore.

"I am not going to have an affair with the lobster-man, after all, dear. He is not as stern and silent as I expected."

NORTH BEDEQUE NOTES

Mrs. Tosie Bradshaw of Middleton returned home yesterday after a very pleasant visit. She was the guest of Mrs. J. A. Wright.

Mr. Ivan Birch has started a fox ranch.

Mrs. James Stavert is visiting her sister, Mrs. George Callbeck, North Tryon.

Seals are very plentiful in Dunk River four being seen on a cake of ice off Staverts shore.

Mr. Clement Carruthers is building a fox ranch.

Mr. Wilbur Stavert was in Summerside on Friday.

Miss MacDonald of Mount Vernon spent the week end at the home of Mrs. John MacCaull.

Mr. C. D. Wright of Tryon was a visitor at North Bedeque on Tuesday evening.

Mr. Guy MacCaull arrived home with his bride nee (Mary Morrison) from Mount Vernon. The following evening they were well serenaded and on Friday evening was tendered a miscellaneous shower and received a large number of useful and costly presents. We wish them a long and happy voyage through life.

We are pleased to know that Mrs. Eliza Wtugh is steadily gaining strength after her recent illness.

Miss Lillian Stavert of Holman's Ltd. spent Sunday at her home.

We are all pleased to have our old friends Mr. and Mrs. John L. Tucker back again.

The recent thaw has opened up the river and driven the smelt fishers completely of the ice.

WANT MINISTER OF FISHERIES

MONTREAL, Dec. 12.—To seek the creation of a Dominion Minister of Fisheries, and to present certain suggestions concerning Canada's fishing industry, a delegation of members of the Canadian Fisheries Association will meet Right Hon. Mackenzie King, the Prime Minister and his Cabinet at Ottawa early in January, according to tentative arrangements agreed upon by Hon. P. Fisheries, and R. W. Gould, Secretary of the Association.

Say it with a "Rogers"

If you're planning to say "Merry Christmas" to your family with a Radio—say it with a Rogers and be sure.

Years before any other electric radio was successfully marketed anywhere on this Continent there were thousands of Rogers-Batteryless Radios in every day use right across Canada. The Rogers has been tried, tested, perfected and more Rogers-Batteryless Radios are sold than all other electric sets combined. Just ask the owner of a four-year-old Rogers-Batteryless how he likes it and what service he has had!

There is nothing, in all the world of gifts, that will bring the spirit of Christmas into your home like a Radio. And the programs that will flood the air during the holiday season will more than compensate you for the small cost of a Rogers.

The gift that keeps on Giving

Library Model is the most strikingly colorful and beautiful new Orthophonic Victrola Model ever created! There is no finer Christmas gift.

No newspaper illustration could ever do justice to this inspired piece of the designer's artistry. You must indeed see it to imbibe to the full its rich scheme of color; you must indeed hear it to be wholly conquered by its charm.

The woods of the cabinet, softly grained and warmly glowing, can not be pictured. Nor can we picture the dancing colors in the leather-backed record albums—made like rare volumes in a book-lover's paradise. And the music, brilliant, soothing, stimulating, as you wish, can not be shown here at all! Tone is a thing you must hear.

That is why you simply must ask at the store of His Master's Voice Dealer, to see and hear the New Library Model of the New Orthophonic Victrola. There are other models too, some combined with radio, from beautiful super-de-luxe models at $2335 to as low as $115. Ask about the convenient payment plan.
