VETERANS' TRIBUTE TO LEE.

Most Impressive Scene of the Civil War Was That After Surrender of Appomattox.

Men who saw the defeated general when he came forth from the chamber where he had signed the articles of capitulation say that he paused a moment as his eyes rested once more on the Virginia hills, smote his hands together as though in some excess of inward agony, then mounted his gray horse, Traveler, and rode calmly away.

If that was the very Gethsemane of his trials, yet he must have had then one moment of supreme, if chastened, joy. As he rode quietly down the lane leading from the scene of capitulation, he passed into view of his men—of such as remained of them. The news of the surrender had got abroad and they were waiting, grief-stricken and dejected, upon the hillsides, when they caught sight of their commander on the gray horse. Then ensued one of the most notable scenes of the history of the war. In an instant they were about him, bareheaded, with tear-wet eyes; thronging him, kissing his hand his boots, his saddle; weeping; cheering him amid their tears; shouting his name to the very skies. He said: "Men, I have fought through the war together; I have done my best for you; my heart is too full to say more." From "Robert E. Lee, the Southerner," by Thomas Nelson Page, published by Scribner's.

Great Things in Little.

The Italians are wonderfully clever in working with the most minute things. A skillful Italian has made a beautiful little boat out of a pearl. The sail is of beaten gold studded with diamonds. A tiny ruby serves as a headlight. The rudder is an emerald, and its stand is a little slab of ivory. The boat weighs less than half an ounce, and is valued at $5,000.

Not to be outdone by a man, an ambitious Italian woman has painted on a canvas, so small that half a grain of corn hides it from view, a windmill with the miller, and a horse and cart with people in the cart.

Some of the Italian mosaic workers in Florence will take bits of stone and glass no larger than grains of mustard seed and fashion them into the most graceful flowers and other designs on shirt studs.—The Sunday Magazine.

When the Deaf Heard.

"I'm stone deaf, your honor," declared a prisoner in the dock at the police court. "I didn't hear a word the officer said about me, and I can't hear what you are saying."

Although the judge raised his voice there was nothing doing from the prisoner. He only shook his head wearily. At last the judge turned to the officer and said, almost in a whisper: "He was drunk when arrested, wasn't he?" "I only had one glass of beer," said the prisoner, quickly, in an injured tone; and every one laughed.

—ALL OLD PEOPLE SUFFER from attacks of sudden exhaustion, weak heart and prostration. The best aid in such cases is FERROVIN, the invigorating tonic which is prepared from fresh lean beef, Citrate of Iron and a pure stimulant. It stimulates the digestion and strengthens the whole body. $1.00 a bottle.

ELECTRIC LOCOMOTIVE OF 4,000 HORSE POWER.

The first of the electric locomotives to be used in the New York tunnel extension of the Pennsylvania railroad is shown in illustrations appearing in the January number of Popular Mechanics. This great engine, 24 of which are now being built, weighs 330,000 lb., and will develop 4,000 h.p., which is about three times as much as a giant steam locomotive. It is claimed that it could pull a heavy freight train at a speed of from 60 to 70 miles an hour. The mission of itself and companions will be to haul some 1,000 trains in and out of New York every day.
