

QUEEN'S CANADIAN FUND DONATIONS FOR AIR RAID VICTIMS

Repeated bombing raids on British port areas and the industrial midlands has attracted fresh attention to the frightful suffering of the many thousands of civilians in Great Britain who are harried, driven to shelter and finally driven into the open country by successive raids. Eventually places are found for them all, places of relative security, but their belongings are destroyed. The task of emergency feeding alone is difficult. The task of settling them up once more with some quantity of clothing and bedding is much more difficult.

Says Ferry struck Uncharted shoal

In a press interview Captain John L. Read states it was erroneously reported in the newspapers that the ferry carrying the ship with uncharted shoal after running aground and had sunk after being refloated. "I wish to state," said Capt. Read, "that at no time was the ship ashore. It struck an uncharted shoal and continued on her course until the fires were out as the result of the salt water mixing with the fuel oil in the settling tanks. The ship remained afloat 32 hours after hitting."

Blood on Overcoat

The gray overcoat, when produced, was said by witness, to be found to contain red stains—particularly on the lower right sleeve and front. The stains were covered with a handkerchief. The blue overcoat also showed human blood stains on the right lapel, the right front, the right sleeve at the top, on the left sleeve near the bottom and on the left front. The amount of human blood on this coat was relatively small.

Witness told of receiving at a later date, a knife with a bone handle which was not attached. The blade was covered with human blood as well as a string attached to it. He had used the same microscopic, spectroscopic, and biological tests. The shirt was "soaked" in human blood, he said. He told of examining hairs and finding those taken from the overcoat of Frederick Phillips contained more pigment than any of the samples of the hair taken from the late Peter J. Trainor. There was one light brown hair and this appeared to have fallen out rather than having been pulled out. There was only one other similar in this exhibit which was present in that which came from Peter J. Trainor.

MEDICAL EXPERT

(Continued from page 1) only the man's hat could be seen. Witness was questioned regarding the handwriting on the income tax papers. He was asked if he could tell whether or not it was Mr. Trainor's handwriting on the papers.

Dr. R. G. Smith

Dr. Ralph G. Smith, Halifax, testified that he was the Provincial Pathologist for Nova Scotia. He was also a doctor of medicine and had specialized training in the examination of exhibits. Witness told of being handed exhibits on February 13 last by the previous witness. He told of examining the exhibits—particularly for human blood stains and also hair for comparison with the hair from the man who was killed.

Witness said that these tests had been used on the various exhibits given to him by Peter J. Trainor. The meat cleaver was produced, he said that towards the cutting end of it there was human blood. The same was true of the meat saw—particularly towards the end of the blade. On the latter there were numerous blood stains. The gray cap, when examined by witness, was found to have contained human blood. There was one rather heavy stain on the left side of the cap which proved to be human blood, he testified. When the handkerchief was produced, he said there was a spot still remaining on it and it had given a positive test. There were also white hairs, skin and tissue found on this exhibit. The hat, he examined, was also found to contain human blood, splashes, particularly on the front and top. Shown the kid gloves, witness said he had found a small spot of human blood in the lining on the back of the right one. He could find none on the leather.

Agnew - McTavish

Nuptials

The marriage of Mary Ruth, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander R. McTavish, to Mr. John Douglas Agnew, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Agnew of Cardigan, Prince Edward Island, took place on Saturday evening Knox United Church, Rev. A. R. Huband officiating. Gladoli and lilacs, mauve and white, formed the floral decorations.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a dress of ivory lace, with velvet trimmings. Her chapel veil was held in place by a coronet of Sweetheart roses, and she carried a bouquet of deep pink roses, sweet peas and Marguerite daisies. The bridesmaid, Miss Edith Agnew, sister of the bridegroom, was gowned in turquoise blue net, with a lace bodice. She wore a small rose hat and carried a bouquet of pink carnations and sweet peas.

Little Beverley Cousins, cousin of the bride, acted as flower girl. She was dressed in dotted pink Swiss and carried a nosegay of pink carnations, sweet peas, and blue cornflower.

Mr. Arthur White was best man for the bridegroom, and Mr. Donald McTavish, brother of the bride, and Mr. Ross Stewart ushered the guests to their seats.

A reception at the home of the bride's parents followed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Agnew left for Banff, the bride travelling in a Tahiti rose redingote ensemble, under a beige camel's hair coat. Her accessories were of blue.

The out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Taylor, of Vancouver, grandparents of the bride, and Mrs. Muriel Morson, of Gore Bay, Ontario, aunt of the groom.

Harold Hennessey

Harold Hennessey, Funeral Director, testified that he was called to the residence of Peter Trainor at 12 minutes after one, Jan. 31. He told of removing the body, which was in the storeroom, to the Undertaking Parlor. He told of seeing a knife lying on the floor under the body when he removed it. There was a pool of blood on the floor.

Witness was present when the autopsy was performed. When the clothing was being removed some shot fell out as the shoes and rubbers were being removed. They were identified by witness when produced. He also identified the shirt produced in Court as the one taken from Peter Trainor's body and also other articles of clothing.

Mrs. Helen Dunn

Mrs. Helen Dunn testified that she knew Frederick Phillips and Earl Lund. Phillips had been living at her place for a month and a half or two months. She said that both of the accused had been at her house about 11.15. They had been out and came in at that time. Both were wearing overcoats. They left the house before twelve o'clock. Phillips had a hat and Lund a cap when they left. She could not identify the cap but when shown a hat said "it was one something like that."

Miss Annie Barrett

Miss Annie Barrett testified that she had cleaned house for Mr. Trainor for about eight years. He lived alone and was tidy around the house. A few days after his death, witness had cleaned house for Mr. Trainor when he was away. She identified the knife produced in Court as his butter knife. The handle was on it when she had last used it. Mr. Trainor's bedroom was at the front of the house, upstairs.

Witness told of having seen a revolver in a bureau drawer. This was identified by her when produced. She had seen Mr. Trainor about two days before his death and he was in good health. Cross-examined, witness said the policemen were back and forth the day the house was being cleaned. The taped bag was given to Dr. Smith.

To the Court she said the walls and ceiling were spattered with blood, cartons upset, bottles broken, cartons of eggs and cookies scattered over the floor. Witness found some shot on the floor of the storeroom. This room was "terribly upset." About a case of bottles had been broken and scattered on the floor.

Mrs. Elizabeth Doyle

Mrs. Elizabeth Doyle testified that she had known the late Peter J. Trainor for many years and had cleaned up his place on Tuesday and Saturday, the week of his death. Things were in a bad condition. There was a lot of blood on the hatch in the storeroom, on the cartons, wall and ceiling, also on the table. There were broken milk bottles on the ice chest—also broken ginger ale bottles in the floor.

Witness told of finding a large meat knife which she left there on the table. It was a larger knife than the one shown, witness added. There was a brown wooden handle on it like an ordinary butter knife. It would fit as well but as long as the cleaver, as she found it, on the table, witness said. She left Miss Barrett at the shop.

Cross-examined, witness told she had found the articles. She said the Chief of Police had been there while she was cleaning the place.
