Your Childrens Eyes Need Attention

Many parents are culpably negligent of their children's eyes, early attention to which would very often obviate lifelong annoyance and possibly injury to physical health. If a child of yours complains that he cannot see clear, that he has dull pains in the region of the eye, or that he is subject to headache; if he leers, looks at objects askance of what partly closed eyes, he is suffering from some defect of vision, and it is your parental duty to at once consult a competent optician, lest your negligence of indifference may result in permanent injury. Always have your children's eyes examined before first sending them to school.

The examination of children's eyes calls for special tact as well as professional skill. If they do not need glasses we will tell you so.

The Marking of The Graves of Our Dead In France

OTTAWA, October 27.—The government has received from the war office a memorandum relating to the registeration and care of soldiers graves. As so many Canadians are deeply concerned in this information it is desirable that it should be given the widest publicity. The memorandum says in part:

"During the present war a branch of the adjutant-general's department has been created to care for, and preserve the indentity of the graves of British officers and men. Units were established for this purpose in France and Belgium shortly after the battle of the Marne, in Egypt and Saloniki recently, and an officer has now been dispatched to Mesopotamia.

"The director of graves registeration and enquiries is the officer directly responsible for this work. The duty of the graves registeration units is to register the position of graves and to see that they are marked with durable wooden crosses bearing a metal inscription giving the name, number, rank, regiment and date of death.

"While these units have been successful in registering and marking a large number of graves at the front and many in advanced positions, where they might otherwise heve been lost, it is not possible, and never will be possible, to obtain a record of all graves. If, as it is to be feared, the enemy have in many instances not marked the graves of British officers and men buried within their lines, a number of graves will be irretrievably lost. In some cases, even within our own lines, the graves heve been marked, the position is too exposed for a correct plan and survey to be made; in others every trace of a burial ground having been obliterated by the enemy's shell fire there is no hope of reconstruction the cemetery so that individual graves may be recognized. Again, during heavy fighting, burials are often carried out under circumstances which make it impossible to take, or at any rate to transmit an accurate record of the positions of graves.

"Early in 1915 it became necessary to make definite arrangements with regard to the provision of land in France for the burial of British officers and men. Up till then, and particularly during the retreat and the subsequent advance to the Aisne, burials had often taken place in isolated graves, which were wherever practicable, cared for with reverence and respect by the French peasants and owners of land, and in a few cases, permanent concessions of land were offered. By this time, however French civil cemeteries were more regularly used, and it was also possible to arrange for special burial grounds. The director of graves registeration and enquiries approached the French government, thru the French military authorities, on the matter. The French government immediately expressed the desire to provide land for permanent resting places for British officers and men at the cost of the French nation, and a law was passed which gave effect to this generous impulse ,on December 29th ,1915. Since then, in co-operation with the French army, the directorate has established authorized burial grounds immediately behind the British front and near the field ambulances, the casualty clearing stations and the hospitals further back. Soldiers are employed, under the officers of the graves registeration units, to look after these burial grounds. In the case, however, of a battle or severe fighting, isolated burials necessarily still take place.

"The French government further offered to maintain these cemeteries. The British government, has, however, in agreement with the French government, undertaken to provide for their maintenance in perpetuity, and has appointed a national committee to care for the graves of our officers and men after th war. With the king's consent the prince of wales has accepted the presidency of this commission.

"Communication on the subject should be addressed to the Director of Graves Registeration, War Office, St James Square, London. Relatives are asked to bear in mind that some time may elapse before graves are properly recorded."

"That it is not possible to arrange for the distribution of flowers ,for individuals; that circumstances not infrequently arise which make it undesirable in the interests of the military situation to disclose the position of a grave and that exhumation of bodies during the war is prohibited. Photographs of graves that are accessible to the photographers will be furnished to relatives on application, free of cost ,as soon as possible."

EXPENDITURE AND EFFICIENCY.

Have you examined the ordinary course of your everyday life

Have you looked at all the items of your consumption and expenditure, and have you made up your mind on just the sound principles how much of that consumption is necessary for the maintenance of efficiency and how much is merely idle expenditure consequent upon habit?

I address these observations to myself and through myself to all of you.

We have got to take stock of our daily habits, and to see by close examination how much we can really go without, how much we can give up of our expenditure with out real detriment to our powers of work, and without sacrificing the obligations to others which we have undertaken.—Rt. Hon. R. McKenna.

MAKE THE BEST OF PRESENT RECRUITING PLAN ,DECISION REACHED

The military and civilian recruiting heads of the provinces of New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island met last week in Halifax in order to discuss fully the present situation on the "recruiting market."

It was a heart to heart talk on the most important question which is presenting itself to the nation today, particularly with reference to Canada, where the implements at present being used seem to be losing their effectiveness.

Major-General Thomas Benson, O. C. of military district No. 6, was present at the conference and discussed the question with the delegates according to the views taken by military officialdom in the district .Not a single phase of the grat question was left over and all was gone into with great thoroughness It was pointed out, and the opinion was unanimous that there was great need at the present time of concentrated action on the part of the military authorities and the civilian recruiting committees. It was acknowledged on all sides that at times recruiting under the present system was discouraging, but on the other hand it was pointed out that it was the only system which Canada has at present to work with and that being so the very best results possible must be extracted from its application.

General Benson secured a general idea of how recruiting conditions were at the present time in every province in military district No. 6 and each and every delegate expressed his opinion. The out look was also analyized, although something not very tangible at the present time.The head of the military district promised to consider the various matters placed before him and there is little doubt that great good will result from the conference held in Halifax yesterday. Capt. F. F. May, of St. John, represented the province of New Brunswick at the conference.

SEAL HERDS HAVE INCREASED RAPIDLY.

SEATTLE, Wn., Oct. 27.— The seal herds on the Pribilof Islands in the Behring Sea have increased so rapidly since killing of the furbearing animals was prohibited, that the government will begin to kill them regularly next year, according to a statement made by H. J. Christoffer assistant agent for the United States bureau of fisheries, who has returned from an inspection trip to the islands, Mr. Christoffer made a trip on the steamer Eliza Thomson, which left here last September 5th with winter supplies for the island. Mr. Christoffer brought back 7,000 skins which were taken from seals killed to supply food for the natives on the island. The skins will be shipped to St. Louis, where the government will sell them at auction.
