Shirley Temple
At Prince Edward

Check full of fun, songs and dances. "Young People," the 20th Century-Fox film which stars Shirley Temple, Jack Oakie and Charlotte Greenwood, gave the theatre a rollicking good time last night.

"Young People" is Shirley Temple's twenty-second picture and it is the biggest hit in the history of the studio. It is a comedy of the grand times written by Mack Gordon and Harry Warren. The story is a romance of the "Fifth Avenue" "Ira-Isa-Isa," "I Wouldn't Take a Million," "The Mason-Dixon Line" and "Young People."

Jack Oakie is at his best in a thoroughly humorous role while Greenwood is leaner, leaner and funnier than ever.

The story pattern concerns two main-time vaudeville entertainers who come to the stage with them on the stage—but they decide the stage isn't the place to raise children. They retire to a small New England town.

Their attempt to be well-liked in the quiet town which they are to take over, is the denouement of the comedy. The denouement comes when Shirley, in an attempt to put over a sophisticated performance, is booted off the stage by the shocked and indignant parents.

The film has a striking and surprising performance which captures the unusual story. The outstanding performances were directed by Allan Dwan, who worked from a superb script by the team of Mack Gordon and Don Ettlinger.

Arleen Whelan and George Montgomery turn in exceptionally fine performances as the romantic leads, while Kathleen Howard excels as the small-town school teacher.

Last War Saved Democracy For Full Generation

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—(AP)—Standing near the tomb of the unknown soldier in the cemetery today, President Roosevelt told the nation that the first great war was fought in vain and that, to the contrary, it saved democracy for a full generation, and made possible its resistance to force in 1940.

He spoke at the close of a brief Armistice Day service in the courtyard of the White House, at the close of which an aide placed a wreath of white chrysanthemums upon the tomb.

Later in the day, Mr. Roosevelt laid the cornerstone of the projected naval medical centre in nearby Bethesda, Md., with a speech saying that it was fitting to "assemble again in the patriotic cause of preserving the well-being of those who, living, wear the uniform of our defence."

Both addresses stressed the need of "a living democracy—a democracy which intends to keep on living," as he put it in the second of the two speeches. Denying that democracy is a "dead" thing, he said that it is a living thing, and that it is a living thing which is being reborn in the lives of the people of the world.

"The British Isles and the Americas led the world in spreading the word of democracy," he said, "and towards the close of the era preceding the present age, the appearance of tiny movements in tiny places, led by tiny people, forecast the next step forward—the era of 1776—the age in which, thank God, we still live."

He went on to say that the first world war was the first time that the world's cardinal principle was established—the United States of America, he said, and the British Isles led the world in spreading the gospel of democracy among peoples great and small. And the world as a whole felt with much pride that it had entered the era of 1776—the age in which, thank God, we still live.

Turkey Sees Axis Drive As Imminent

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Nov. 11.—(AP)—The Turkish official radio press indicated tonight that they believe a German military move in the Balkans to aid Italy is imminent and that this might be the essential reason for the Berlin visit of the Russian Premier, Vyacheslav Molotov.

The Turkish radio said Yugoslavia's position is "very important, and it is probable that this is one of the questions to be considered between Molotov and the German leaders."

Although Istanbul was filled with rumors of German demands upon Yugoslavia for the free passage of troops through that country, neither the radio nor the newspapers indicated that Turkey would act, if German forces did enter Yugoslavia.

Most foreign observers in Turkey held the belief that Turkey would move only if Bulgaria acted, they also interpreted Molotov's visit to Germany as for the purpose of discussing Balkan and near-eastern questions, and thus as something of a diplomatic setback for Turkey.

Hugh Herbert Plays Seven Hilarious Roles In "La Conga Nights" At Capitol

Described as a cocktail of music, dancing and laughter, Universal's farce comedy "La Conga Nights" is currently on the screen of the Capitol Theatre with Hugh Herbert starring in seven different hilarious comedy characterizations.

Not only does the screen's "wool" man appear as himself and his be-whiskered grandfather, but he also dons wigs and feminine gowns to portray his mother and his four dizzy sisters.

Other entertainment elements included in the picture are three new song compositions, "Carmenita McCoy," "Chance of a Lifetime" and the Conga rhythm number "Havana" sung by Constance Moore.

Miss Moore and Dennis O'Keefe carry the love interest in the gaily paced story, and others in the cast include Eddie Quillan, Ferike Borcs, Barnett Parker and Joe Brown, Jr. who is one of the most zestful comedy films conjured by Hollywood in recent months.

"La Conga Nights" is highlighted by several novelty songs in addition to the music and laugh scenes. Ken Goldsmith was associate producer on the picture, and Elwood Bredell did the photography.

N. S. Margaree Survivors Reach Homes

HALIFAX, Nov. 11.—(CP)—Nova Scotians who survived the sinking of the Canadian destroyer Margaree arrived in Halifax tonight, the sadness at the loss of their ship and more than 140 shipmates tempered by happy reunions with their families and the prospect of 30 days' leave.

Eight of the nine seamen had lived through the sinking of the H.M.C.S. Fraser off France last June. All of them had plenty of experiences to tell the eager families who met them as they came off the train that carried them from the east coast Canadian port when they landed from Bermuda last night.

For most of them, it was their first sight of home in three months. Stewart Gerard McKenny of Halifax summed up their sentiments: "It feels like nothing on earth to be back. We're happy as the devil to be here."

Leading seaman Harry Leggett of St. John's, who was reported missing when he spent last night ashore in a police station cell, and another survivor were celebrating their arrival on Canadian soil with an impromptu football game—using a hat for the football—when his companion fell and gashed his head.

It was near an army first aid post, and a military officer on duty grabbed him inside and into bed, leaving protesting his friend's incarceration too strenuously, was ordered billeted in jail for the night.

"I sort of liked the idea," he laughed, "it was rather a novel experience spending your first night ashore in the lockup."

Leggett was on duty on a searchlight platform when the Margaree was rammed by a freighter on Oct. 22.

"I didn't hear a thing until the crash," he said, "When I looked around, the side of the big freighter looked like a mountain towering over us. I grabbed my order that was thrown over the side of the freighter and started to climb."

"There was no panic, no yelling," he said. Others of the survivors agreed with him.

Empress of Japan Reaches British Port

By Douglas Amaron
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Nov. 11.—(CP Cable) The skill and cooness of the Empress of Japan's captain and his Chinese quartermaster were credited tonight with saving the former Canadian Pacific Steamships' Pacific flagship from more than slight damage when she was attacked by an enemy plane in the Atlantic last Saturday.

And passengers of the 26,000-ton liner, which reached a British port safely yesterday, agreed that Captain Thomas, of Vancouver and his quartermaster were heroes of the dive-bombing attack.

"Our Captain's coolness was marvellous," a crew member said. "The awful way he zigzagged the ship from the danger and avoided a direct hit saved us all. The Chinese quartermaster at the wheel was lying prone on his stomach to dodge machine-gun fire, he carried out perfectly every order from the skipper."

The plane attacked the liner Saturday morning. Passengers were waking the deck after breakfast when explosions warned them to take cover. Women and children went quietly to their shelter in the lower deck. The youngsters sang until the raid was over.

"Our anti-aircraft gun put up a good show and some people with rifles also had a shot at the Nazi as he dived to attack," a crewman said. "One bomb struck the hull, a glancing blow and there was some damage to lifeboats by machine-gun fire."

The plane was seen to be rocketing about after a shell burst above the wing. Gunners were certain the raider did not escape unscathed.

"The effects of the attack and the vessel's safe arrival in port was the first official notice that the Empress of Japan, which in peacetime sailed out of Vancouver to the Orient, now is operating in the Atlantic."

Foreign Newsmen Taken On Tour Of Great Krupp Works

(By Preston Grover, Associated Press Staff Writer)

ESSEN, Germany, Nov. 11.—(AP)—A party of foreign newspaper men brought by plane from Berlin today to see whether British reports of heavy damage to the great Krupp steel and munitions works were true. Krupp's plant apparently little hurt.

Plant authorities who conducted the writers through the main part of the plant said four explosive bombs had fallen during the raid last Friday night. The effects of three could be seen: One had taken over the corner of a two-story wing of a coal plant; another had destroyed a store building; the third had hit a small shed on the outskirts of the city.

Careful observation from a plane flying over the plant and during a slow trip by automobile winding here and there through the enormous works failed to disclose any evidence of serious hits on furnace rooms, coal and coking plants or steel plants.

The Krupp works undoubtedly had been hit from time to time during the many months of British bombing, but the foreign correspondents saw no evidence that its operations have been seriously impaired.

PARTRIDGE SHOOTING SEASON ENDS Nightfall yesterday brought an end to the partridge shooting season in this province, bringing to an end an open season since the first of October. Gunners were out in force but not many birds were bagged, it became very gun shy since the shooting started and were keeping away from roads and buildings. Hunters said they had to tramp far and look hard to locate coveys. The birds were there in their millions, but the trouble was to find them. Earlier the season had been scheduled to close on October 31. Then it was extended, finally to take in the holiday.

Fate of War Graves in Europe Is Unknown

OTTAWA, Nov. 11.—(CP)—Canada paid Monday, 22nd anniversary of the Armistice, to pay tribute to the memory of her 68,000 sons who died in the first Great War but as yet there is no official word as to the damage, if any, to German graves or memorials in France and Belgium, occupied by the enemy.

All the Canadian cemeteries in France and Belgium are in the hands of the enemy, said Col. H. C. Osborne, secretary of the Canadian Battlefields Memorial Commission. "There is no communication and it is not possible to say what damage has been done."

Damage Not Confirmed

Reported damage to the Canadian memorial at Vimy Ridge, first said by British Tommies returning from Flanders last spring, has been confirmed by Nazi bombers, has not been confirmed.

The main structure as seen from the air has apparently not been destroyed but there is no way of knowing whether minor damage has been done by bombs or shellfire, Col. Osborne said.

There was artillery action in the vicinity of the memorial, he added, and the enemy came through fast, going around the ridge rather than against its face.

Before the war began all the lower sculpture and the main memorial itself were heavily sandbagged up to 40 feet.

Col. Osborne said he doubted a direct hit would be made by a bomb on a target which presented from the air such a small vital surface. Its two pylons rising like pencils to the bomber's eye.

The others are at Passchendaele, Arras, Ypres and other battlefields. In more than 1,000 graveyards only about half the dead have been identified. For example, in the Zivy crater of Tielus, France, there rest three men from England and 50 Canadians together in a common grave made by a huge shell. Their names written on the walls of what was turned into a garden. All British cemeteries under the charge of the Imperial War Graves Commission were built to be permanent grave marks by a huge shell. They names written on the walls of what was turned into a garden. ITALIANS

Mountains. Many units were annihilated, the high command said, and although the full extent of the reported Greek victory in that sector still has not been disclosed, a large proportion of the rest were said to have been captured.

In the centre, along the Kalymnos River, the Italians were said to be digging in to hold what ground they have gained. Fighting was reported limited to patrol skirmishes.

Although the radio said the invaders fled before Greek mountain fighters charging with bayonets and hand grenades, other reports indicated that cavalry had played a singularly large role for modern warfare.

Another batch of 600 Italian prisoners was taken to Salonika, Aegean Sea port, one of many such groups of captives which has arrived here in the past two weeks.

Air raid alarms sounded in Salonika five times today, within seven hours, but no bombs were dropped. Reports that Greek fighters had shot down three Italian bombers north of that city were not confirmed.

Greece as a whole counted 316 persons killed, wounded and 280 houses destroyed in the war.
