Miss Marion Reid returned last evening from a visit to Sackville.

The Y's will meet in Willard Hall at 7.30 o'clock this evening. All members are requested to attend.

Mrs. W. S. Bearista returned home yesterday from a visit to friends in Sydney and New Glasgow.

Wanted at once two coat-makers; steady work. Apply at once. M. L. Frank McKenzie, Summerside. 4 d tf.

The late arrival of the Northumberland during the past few days is due to repairs being made to the extension bridge at St. John where passengers, mails and baggage have to be transferred from one train to another.

The following were among the passengers by the western train Wednesday morning going to Coleman as guests at the wedding of Miss Reid and J. F. Stevenson: Capt. John Read, J. E. LeFurgey, Summerside; John Houston, Collector of Customs, Rustico; Arthur and Mrs. Dickeson, New Glasgow; Charles and Mrs. Waugh, Wilnot.

The entertainment given in Market Hall Wednesday evening by the Meister G. Singers was the greatest musical event the music-loving people of Summerside could have wished for. Such a combination of melodious voices it has not been the pleasure of our residents to have listened to here for many years, if ever before. They upheld all the flatterings and compliments in their adoration, and won the highest appreciation of the whole audience. The quartette singing was especially an exceedingly strong feature, while the solo parts in the program were treated. Miss Henry, the charming elocutionist, and Roland Henry in his funny sketches, proved themselves artists in their lines. The program was a genuine entertainment in every detail.

The Monarch Steel Range, the best steel range ever put on the market, was placed on exhibition yesterday in the store of Bruce, McKay & Co., who hold the agency here for this stove, and many have been a miring its excellent and superior qualities. Every practical improvement known in the construction of high grade steel ranges has been adopted in the Monarch. A few of the chief features of this range are the patent improvements which no other range has. These include a Large Front Feed Pouch; a Thermometer Guide by which the brass thermometer on the oven may be regulated to suit the cooking of any kind of food and easily adjusted by even the poorest cook. On the front there is a Patent Lift by which the top may be raised when broiling or toasting, making these duties a mere pleasure. Then there is the Fire Pot which is constructed on a scientific principle, the proper size to get the greatest amount of heat from the least fuel; and a Patent Inlet Damper which gives perfect control of the fire and is a great coal saver. By a Patent Contact and Slide Attachment the water tank can be thrown in and out so that water may boil only when required. The Large Flue at the back of the range is made in part of heavy cast grey iron and is guaranteed not to rust out—unlike those made of sheet steel, in many other ranges, which are sure to rust when the creosote moisture deposited in the pipe by condensation runs down and lodges in the back flue. The Oven Plates are made from 14 gauge heavy steel and braced thoroughly with heavy angle iron. The Body of the Monarch is made from the finest American blue steel, and no black lead or black varnish is used in the finish. Every part of the range, where it is necessary, is heavily lined with asbestos. The patterns of this elegant range were made for the manufacturers, The Enterprise Foundry Co. of Sackville, E. B. by the Joliette Steel Range Works of Joliette, Ill., the best high class steel range makers in the United States, who have also sent them Mr. Zarley a gentleman with several years of practical experience in the steel range business, to take charge of their Monarch plant. The Enterprise Foundry Co. feel confident that the leaders in the Maritime Provinces will appreciate the advantage of being able to buy at their own doors a line of steel ranges second to none on the American continent, and that the people who use the Monarch will have satisfaction such as cannot be equalled with any other range manufactured. In appearance, too, the Monarch excels anything in the Range Line shown anywhere. Proportionately built, well arranged, admirably designed and prettily nickelled, it would be a handsome adornment to any home. Those interested in steel ranges should visit Bruce, McKay & Co's store and see for themselves the superiority of this range, the many good qualities of which can better be observed than described.

It Sometimes Happens. "Of course," says the shoe dealer, "there are times when it is necessary to stretch the truth a trifle." "Yes, sir," answered the head salesman, "and often a fellow has to stretch a lie." "I don't see how." "Well, when a woman with a No. 6 foot declares that a No. 3 shoe is just her size and asks you to put it on the shoe stretcher overnight 'just to make the instep a little higher.' That's one of the times."

A Highland Chieftain.

The chieftainship of a Highland clan is still a great position, even in these levelling days; and where there is a doubt as to who is entitled to it, the adherents of the rival chiefs uphold their respective claims with a quite mediaeval ardor. It would be a bold Southern who would venture to adjudicate on the competing claims of the Mackintosh and Cluny Macpherson to the chieftainship of the Clan Chattan; and even Lord Lovat, who was the recipient last week, at the hands of his fellow-Frasers, of a splendid silver casket, in recognition of his patriotic services, is not universally (though very generally) held to be the chief of his famous clan. Lord Saltoun, head of the Aberdeenshire Frasers, is understood to assert his right to the chieftainship; and when in the great hall of Beaufort Castle, the clansmen mustered, some years ago, round the youthful Lord Lovat, and congratulated him on his majority, Lord Saltoun (though one of the house party at the castle) sternly declined to take any part in a ceremonial which seemed to imply recognition of the claim of his brother-Peer to be the chief of their common clan.—London Chronicle.

The Very Man.

Of an eminent English statesman who was a very dull speaker Lord Ashbourne once told this story: "He was making a very dull speech one evening, when I remarked to a member of the Cabinet on the dreariness of the performance. 'He is an admirable man,' was the reply. 'I wish we had him.' 'What would you do with him?' 'Do with him? Send him to Ireland of course. He would disperse any unlawful assembly in five minutes.'"

Real Estate Value of a Name.

Quilca House, County Cavan, where Dean Swift wrote part of his "Gulliver's Travels," has been sold in the Irish land judge's court, together with the demesne. Owing to the association with Dean Swift the house and land were sold on the basis of a rental of £111, the ordinary rental being estimated at £57.—London Mail.

In England the Lord Chancellor.

by virtue of his office, has a right to inspect all public asylums and hospitals. One day while the late Lord Herschell was paying a visit at the house of a friend near Norwich, he went for an afternoon stroll, and, happening to pass by the great insane asylum at that place, the thought struck him that this was a good time to perform an official duty. Incidentally, it may be said that Herschell bore the reputation of being somewhat pompous at times. He knocked at the door, which, after a long delay, was opened by an attendant. "You can't come in," he was informed. "It's not visiting hours." "That makes no difference. I shall inspect this institution just the same." "Indeed, you will not." "Come, come, my good man; I'm the Lord Chancellor," Herschell expostulated. "Oh, that's all right," answered the functionary, "we are four of you inside already."

Artistic Autumn Millinery

We invite the ladies of Charlottetown and surrounding country, to call and examine our peerless display of novel and alluring high-class Millinery. We do not purpose holding a formal millinery opening this season, but all are welcome to come when it suits their convenience, and see the fascinating head-wear gotten up by our own milliner,

MISS M. MURNAGHAN, who, since her return from the Fall Millinery Openings abroad has been busy putting into effect the newest and best ideas stored up while away.

The ladies are loud in their praise of the work shown, which, when compared with imported models, more than holds its own, and is, we venture to say, the prettiest and most artistic collection of popular priced Millinery yet shown in the City.

All the newest shades and trimmings are in evidence, and one is bewildered by the variety of the season's shapes, as well as by the ingenuity displayed in their adornment. A novelty in the tricorn shape, is made of navy blue PANNE Velvet, with cut steel head band and black ostrich plume, which sweeps gracefully over the flared brims. Price $10.60.

A charming hat of somewhat similar shape is of black PANNE Velvet, with chenille finished brim, a huge bird adorns the front while another of smaller size rests beneath the brim on the left, which, with cut steel ornaments makes a most delightful creation. Price only $7.60.

Another is a Mahogany colored picture hat with shirred facing of the new FRAMBOISE shade trimmed with wings, cut steel ornaments and ribbon to match the brim, a very beautiful and artistic hat. Price $6.17.

A hat of castor furry felt, torpedo shape, trimmed with pale blue and castor velvet with pale blue poupons is decidedly chic and not expensive. Price $5.98.

Another most beautiful and picturesque hat, with crown in the oyster shape is of black PANNE velvet, the entire crown and brim being finely shirred, three Prince of Wales tips nod to the left, which, with cut jet head band and ornaments complete a hat which is the acme of style and good taste, price $9.85.

Still another charming example is of the new Victorian or "bottle green" shade with black coq plumes and jet ornaments, while others show a dash of coq de roche or reddish orange shade which is now so fashionable.

The trimmings this season surpass anything we have ever shown, and comprise plumes in black, white and shaded, whole birds, paradise feathers, tips, breasts and quills, buckles and ornaments in jet, cut steel and jewelled,—altogether we are prepared for the largest Millinery trade in the history of the store.

In addition to our usual staff of Millinery we have secured the services of Miss Minnie Malone well and favorably known to the ladies of Charlottetown, being for some time head milliner with Beer Bros. and other firms in this City, and who has lately carried on millinery business in Tignish. She takes charge of the Ready-to-wear and trimmed Millinery, helping customers to select, taking orders, and making changes if necessary, to suit individual purchasers.

Being thus equipped with a magnificent stock and a staff of expert Milliners in the Province, we are prepared to fill all orders promptly and satisfactorily.

See our show window for samples of work done by Miss Murnaghan and staff.
