NO PROSPECT OF BRIDGE

(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire)

MAY ENTER GOVERNMENT

(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire)

OTTAWA, Nov. 15. — Rumors of impending Cabinet changes cropped up again today with the presence in Ottawa of Grote Sterling, Conservative member for Yale, who has been prominently mentioned as likely to be taken into the government to give British Columbia representation. Minister of Trade and Commerce H. H. Stevens' resignation left British Columbia without a member in the government.

While the trade and commerce portfolio has been generally conceded to R. B. Hanson, member for York-Sunbury, this has not been officially confirmed and Mr. Hanson is at his home in Fredericton, N.B. It is generally believed, however, that while replacing Mr. Stevens in the Cabinet there will be several incidental changes involving the retirement of Hon. Murray MacLaren, Minister of Pensions and National Health, which would make room for both Mr. Sterling and Mr. Hanson, with some re-arrangement of portfolios.

Official announcement with respect at least to the trade and commerce appointment is expected within a few days.

So far as could be learned officially Mr. Sterling came to Ottawa at the request of Minister of Agriculture Robert Weir to confer on matters respecting the Marketing Board. Mr. Sterling spent a long time with the Prime Minister, however, immediately after his arrival.

CREAMERY MAKERS IN SESSION

Urge Continuance Of Educational Scoring After Checkup Of Last Summer's Results.

Twenty-four creamery makers throughout the Province attended a meeting yesterday in the dairy room of the Agricultural Hall, Charlottetown, called by Mr. W. R. Brenton, Dairy Superintendent. The meeting was for the purpose of considering the butter educational scoring conducted throughout the summer months, and of discussing the question of grading of print creamery butter and the marking of wrappers according to grade. The proceedings were conducted by Mr. Brenton assisted by Messrs. F. T. Morrow, Dairy Produce Grader, and W. J. Davies, Inspector of Dairy Products, who did the scoring during the summer.

Samples from the different creameries were checked and the session was a most interesting one. The creamery men were unanimous in requesting the carrying on of the educational scoring as done during the past season, and also in not asking at the present time for the adoption of compulsory grading of print butter.

Last evening the creamery makers were guests of Mr. Brenton at an enjoyable dinner at the Canadian National Hotel. The host was tendered a warm vote of thanks by Mr. Robert Doucette, O'Leary, seconded by Mr. J. W. Boulter, secretary of the Dairymen's Association, to which he fittingly replied.

CUDMORE BROS.

BOTH STORES

LORD BESSBOROUGH AND BOY SCOUTS

I am proud to be Chief Scout for Canada. I am proud of this not merely because of the intimate association it gives me with Canadian Scouts all over the Dominion, but also because the whole idea of Scouting embodies the finest traditions of the British race. It is because they recognize this, that His Majesty The King, and so many members of the Royal Family, have given Scouting such whole-hearted support. For The King, as you know, is Patron of the Association; the Duke of Connaught has for many years been its President; the Prince of Wales is Chief Scout for Wales; the Duke of York is President for London and Yorkshire; the Duke of Gloucester is President for Gloucestershire and Norfolk; and Prince George is Commodore of the Sea Scouts.

Few organizations, indeed, can boast so many close personal links with the Throne; and, as I have said on another occasion, it is difficult to think of any other organization that has attained such world-wide dimensions, and won such world-wide approval. The very words "Boy Scout" are perhaps the two best-known words in the English language throughout the world; I daresay you could find thousands of young people of different race and colour from our own whose knowledge of the English tongue is limited to just those two words and no more.

That thought brings home to one the international importance of Scouting. Mr. H. G. Wells has said, in a vivid phrase, that we are engaged today in "a race between Education and Catastrophe." Scouting can do, and is doing, a very great deal to decide the issue of the race. The future peace of the world, the future standards of civilization, the future maintenance of Right against Wrong.—these things depend chiefly on the younger generation; and, if you remember that the Scouting Movement now numbers two million five hundred thousand adherents, and flourishes in more than forty distinct nations, you will agree with me, I think, that the possibilities of Scouting exerting a very considerable influence on that younger generation are immense.

There is, too, one particular aspect of the international problems of the world which Scouting can materially affect all over the world. One of the commonest dangers to sound human relationship is the formation early in life of intellectual and moral prejudices against our neighbours. Those who have succumbed to this danger find themselves, all through life, instinctively deciding against a cause, an individual, even a nation, without ever having given them a fair trial; and that state of mind is clearly hostile to good neighbourliness. What a splendid thing it would be if our young men could grow up believing that the really natural, human attitude is to seek the best, and to expect to find the best, in all that they encounter throughout life; to assume that other human beings are friendly and that their motives are sincere. Such an attitude is fundamental to good Scouting; if our two and a half million Scouts can maintain it, and can bring others to adopt it, then, I venture to prophecy, the odds against Catastrophe winning Mr. Well's race would lengthen considerably. For, as another British author has written, "The world is moved by ideas, and this idea of Baden-Powell's has in it the eternal spirit of boyhood, and some touch of magic which is helping to exorcise old ghosts and demons, and to draw the human family closer together in comradeship and service."

Mention of the Chief Scout's name leads me to remind you that we are all looking forward to a visit from Lord Baden-Powell next spring. Few living men have rendered greater service to the Empire, and to mankind at large, than Lord Baden-Powell, and none deserves a higher place in the hearts of his fellow-citizens. All of us will welcome him with admiration and affection. But, when he arrives in Canada, what are we going to tell the Chief Scout about Canadian Scouting—you and I who are responsible for the progress of the Movement in this Dominion?

We can tell him that Scouting is firmly rooted in the national life of Canada; we can tell him that, wherever he goes, he will find some of the finest Cubs, Scouts, Rovers, and Scoutmasters in the whole world; and we can tell him that we are fully alive to the immeasurable importance of fostering the Scouting spirit. All this we can tell him truthfully enough; but if he should ask us whether we are completely satisfied that we have made full use of the wonderful resources at our disposal, can we give him an equally satisfactory answer?

Gentlemen, I do not think we can. Canada has a population of over ten million souls, and there are sixty-five thousand members of the Scout Movemet. It is not enough, and, if you ask me what is the best welcome Canada could give the Chief Scout, I would say to you: Turn those five figures into six figures before he comes. It is a big order, I know; but it could be done, and it ought to be done, and that not merely in the interests of the Scouting Movement itself, but, as I have tried to indicate, in the interests of the whole country.

If I may sound a personal note, I would add that, from my own point of view, it would give me the greatest possible pleasure when my term as Chief Scout for Canada comes to an end, to think that, during that term, the ranks of the Scouts of Canada had been materially increased.

It is principally to consider the ways and means of affecting such an increase Gentlemen, that this present Conference of Provincial Presidents and Provincial Commissioners has been called. I am glad indeed to see here so many of those whom, in my not inconsiderable journeyings through this Dominion, I have often seen doing splendid work in their own districts. I bid them a very hearty welcome to Ottawa; and I hope that they will go home not merely full of pleasant recollections of this gathering of fellow-Scouts, but also full of determination to find more, and still more, fellow-Scouts in the future.

Saar to pay for French mines in that territory if it votes Jan. 13 to rejoin Germany, Foreign Minister Pierre Laval told the Foreign Affairs Committee of the Chamber of Deputies today.

Declaring direct negotiations between France and Germany for settlement of the troublesome problem of the mines no longer possible, Laval revealed that French experts at Rome are seeking, through the pre-plebiscite agreement.

The solidly-backed francs in the Saar would be used both to pay for French mining holdings, as stipulated in the Treaty of Versailles, and to wipe out private debts owed to Frenchmen, the Foreign Minister explained.

In this way, it was pointed out, seizure of francs to fill any other of Germany's pressing needs for foreign exchange would be averted and the provisions of the treaty would be fulfilled.

Francs are backed more than 100 percent by gold, while gold coverage of the mark is slight.

Laval, in telling the committee that France would demand strict adherence to the stipulations of the Versailles Treaty, said "France must act within the League of Nations."

Previously he had advocated face-to-face talks with Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler to untangle the many knotty problems connected with the Saar's possible reversion to Germany but today he said "the hour for direct conversations with France is past."

SATURDAY APPLE DAY FOR SCOUTS

Scouts' Will Be On Streets From 8 a.m. To 3 p.m.

Next Saturday is Apple Day.

On that day the Boy Scouts Association will be on the job from eight o'clock in the morning until three o'clock in the afternoon, in an effort to induce the people to buy and eat 8,000 apples, 75 per cent of which are Island grown.

The apples are certainly choice stock and should furnish some delicious munching.

It will be "the thing" on Saturday to strut along the street with one's mouth full of apple and it will also be considered good style to have one's coat pockets, hand bag, etc., bulging out with apples. Apple day is apple day and the people are to be apple minded, apple mouthed, apple pocketed, apple handbagged, appled everything.

Apples! apples! apples! And what a day it is going to be for the doctors! If one apple can keep an M. D. away then 8,000 will probably give even the nurses and hospital staff a day off.

Anyway 8,000 luscious MacIntosh Reds are to go on sale Saturday. And every penny earned is to stay on the Island to help the Boy Scouts carry on their good work.

Boy Scouts never beg, that is publicly. What they do at home under stress is another question. They need money for their work and the way they get that money is by getting out and earning it. They are not asking for charity or a handout in any form on Saturday. What they do want and earnestly hope is that every person will BUY an apple from them and if they like apples that they will buy a lot, paying separately for each, as no change is given.

8,000 apples! It will take a bit of fine co-operation to dispose of that number. But then the Scouts are strong on co-operation. They co-operate with all people and organizations needing them at any time. Boy Scouts aim to help to serve, to be of wide and general assistance. In other words they are ever willing and desirous of cooperating. On Saturday they ask, and they ask with a characteristic smile, that the big folks this time co-operate with them, by BUYING an apple on Saturday.

They say an apple but as a matter of fact they will let you have two, two dozen or two hundred if you want them. In fact if any one wants a barrel of Boy Scout apples they will be available and available in quick time, but at not less than 5c per.

On Saturday buy a Scout MacIntosh Red apple.

"And we are forbidden to investigate the independents," interjected E. J. Young, Lib., Weyburn.

"We are not forbidden to do anything within reason," shot back Mr. Stevens.

The chairman said the commission should make a decision relating to the independents but at the moment should continue with evidence.

"We just want to place ourselves on record as favoring investigation of the independents," said Mr. Factor, evidently referring to his fellow-Liberals on the Commission.

A. & P. Investigated

OTTAWA, Nov. 15. — (C.P.) — The great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co., Ltd., came under the scrutiny of the Royal Commission on Mass Buying today when W. H. Woodrow, accountant of the Fred Page Higgins Co., of Toronto, disclosed its affairs. The A. and P. was incorporated in 1919 but did not begin operations until 1927 when the Montreal division was opened.

The company was financed from loans advanced by its parent company whose headquarters were in Jersey City, N.J., their total amount was $2,904,456.

Out of 15,418 stores operated by this company in North America, 277 were in the Toronto and Montreal divisions.

The total net profits of the Toronto division since commencement were $427,100, but the Montreal section had been operated at a loss which had now accumulated to $928,407. The total deficit of the company since date of incorporation until Feb. 24, 1934, was $519,445. No dividends, have as yet been paid said witness.

Advanced Loans

From 1927 until 1934 the parent company in New Jersey had advanced loans to the Canadian company amounting approximately to $17,000,000. Last year the company's stores sold goods valued at $10,665,601. Of these groceries accounted for 65.98 percent and meats 34.02 percent.

The total net sales for the past six years were $99,316,830 of which the Montreal division accounted for about 33 percent.

Operating expenses for the six years of the company's existence amounted to $13,550,531. Wages totalled 42.49 percent of operating expenses in 1929 and 38.04 percent in 1934. There had been no reduction in rates of wages, said witness, but the annual amount had decreased.

Profits amounting to $427,100 made by the Toronto division had been more than offset during the company's years of operation by $928,407 of a loss in the Montreal division.

The directors and officers of the A. and P. Company are all residents of the United States and receive no salary from the Canadian organization.

No dividends have been paid since the company has incorporated which led Hon. H. H. Stevens to call it "a philanthropic organization."

The A. and P. Company, the auditor said, made it a practice to advertise special prices for selected articles each week. It was estimated this reduced gross profits by 2½ percent but from company records it was impossible to give details of the sales. Officials of the company said they never sold below cost.

Advertising Bill

The A. and P. Company spent $120,755 in advertising last year, the auditor said. A "considerable portion" of this was recouped by contributions from manufacturers or others.

The wages of store managers of the A. and P. ranged from $20 to $56.09 in the Toronto division, said Mr. Woodrow. The average wage during a recent week was $25.83 plus ½ cent or one percent of sales for grocery managers.

A total of 379 regular male clerks were paid from $7 to $22, and averaged $12.76 in the grocery department and $15.03 in the meat department, witness said.

From $1 to $15 a week was paid to 348 temporary part-time male clerks, while 15 female clerks (temporary) were paid from $1 to $9 and averaged $4.20.

Wages of 115 regular delivery boys were from $6 to $10 and averaged $6.39 a week. Other wages were correspondingly small. Hours of employment averaged 61¾ for males and from 50 to 55 hours for females.

Other particulars of wages showed the company paying warehouse employes an average of $26.30 for a 50½ hour week. Factory employes worked a 48-hour week, male delicatessen employes 50½ hours and female delicatessen employes 50 hours. All were paid extra for overtime.

Average Salary

The average salary paid by the A. and P. to store superintendents was $61.20 for a 39 hour week. Male office employes received from $12 to $58.50, or an average of $31 for a 39-hour week. The average of 54 female office employes was $17 for a week of the same hours.

In the Montreal division the average hours of work were 66 hours a week. A total of 19 grocery managers averaged in Montreal $22.38 a week and 96 $29.04. Fifty meat managers were paid $26.87 on an average. In each case one percent of the sales constituted a commission in addition to salary.

The wages of 240 grocery and meat clerks ranged from $9.26 to $12.38 for their 66 hours week, while 154 delivery boys were paid $3.61 for the same length of time.

Evidence showed 17 delivery boys working as much as 77 hours a week and getting $2 remuneration.

"In the Montreal division all the delivery boys received $6 or less—with the majority of them receiving less," said Chairman W. W. Kennedy, "is that right?"

"Yes, Mr. Chairman," replied witness.

Seventy-one delivery boys got less than $6 a week, working from 45 to 77 hours, 45 got $4 for a 66 hour week; 30 delivery boys got between $4.50 and $5.00.

Of 400 full-time store employees of the A. & P. in Montreal division 304 got $10 a week or less with 47 getting $10 and 257 being paid less than that.

Witness had no information as to the hours worked on the wages paid by the company in the United States stores.

The commission adjourned until 11 o'clock tomorrow.
