How They Feed The Athletes At Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES, July 27—The Swiss don't miss their cheese, and the Japanese are becoming ham-and-egg addicts, chefs who serve the world's finest athletes of Olympic Village revealed today.

Canadian Tennis Championships

RIDEAU TENNIS CLUB, Ottawa, July 27—(By The Canadian Press)—Fourth rounds were completed in two divisions and almost cleared up in another when fourth day play in the Canadian tennis championships was cut short by rain early this evening.

Forty two matches of the 64-carded were run off today. Despite the fact that rain has shortened the playing time twice, tournament officials anticipate no difficulty declaring champions in all divisions on Friday and Saturday.

Tennis Schedule For To-Day

Following are the games scheduled to be played today at Victoria Park. Those not present at time stated will be defaulted as this tournament must be finished by Saturday:

11 A. M.—Men's Singles—1st Round
J. A. Bentley vs. Gordon Hutchison.
Jos. Beaton vs. Charles Hyndman.

BIG LEAGUE BALL RESULTS

NATIONAL LEAGUE
St. Louis 4 10 2
Brooklyn 5 15 0
Derringer, Stout, Dean and J. Wilson; Mungo, Philips, Quinn and Lopez.

Can. Athletes In Top Form

(By Elmer Dulmage, Canadian Press Staff Writer)
LOS ANGELES, July 27—Three days before Los Angeles reviews the Olympic spectacle, opening 16 days of international competition in more than a score of sports, Canada's forces are near tip-top form.

not want to live!"
Then as the verdict was read, "Shoot me with a gun like a soldier," he cried. "Do not gullotine me!"

ther it was premeditated.
The court ruled for the prosecution explaining that alienists had settled the point of sanity previously, and it was beyond the sphere of the jury.

LIVESTOCK MARKETS

(Canadian Press)
MONTREAL, July 27—Fresh arrivals of live stock for sale on the two Montreal markets today were only two cattle, 18 sheep and lambs and 78 hogs.

A little investigation of the Olympic athletes' eating habits revealed further that:
The Argentines are hounds for tea.

The Italian runners and jumpers are true to form and thrive on their native spaghetti.
The Germans dislike American food because it is too greasy.

Forty-Six Kitchens
The chefs catering to husky athletes are very busy about their kitchens. They welcome strangers about as cordially as an American housewife welcomes an iceman with muddy shoes—on the day the kitchen linoleum has been freshly scrubbed.

However, it was found that 46 kitchens behind the 1,600 feet of space included in five separate dining halls furnish almost any dish known to any part of the globe. Each kitchen has a chef representing one of the major nations participating in the games.

All food is ordered through the village commissary at a rate of 62 per day for the board and room of each man. The attaches of each nation are delegated to see that their athletes receive the food they want and need.

The Japanese have their osabim, or raw fish, rated as a great delicacy. But the chef admitted through an interpreter, that the athletes, practically to a man, have developed a mania for American style ham and eggs. They demand them almost every morning for breakfast.

The Germans ask that their meat, mostly beef and mutton, be roasted in huge chunks and sliced. They have no patience with the American custom of fixing "everything even chickens" in grease. Their chef sees that they get their meat in big chunks and plenty of potatoes, strained until they are dry and mealy.

Funny Tea
The Argentines are known to the commissary as meat eaters, in addition, they have their mate, which is brewed from the leaves of the mate tree. The leaves are placed in an almost round, dried gourd. Hot water is added and the tea or mate is sipped through a hollow-handled silver spoon.

The Japanese and the Italians are listed among the heaviest users of vegetables and fruits.
The East Indians, according to Harry Schmidt, head of the commissary, are light meat eaters due to the religious customs of their country.
The Hindus are forbidden to eat

Several of the ranking men stars ran into rough opposition today. Walter Arnesberg, Pittsburg, carried Walter Martin to 7-5 in the first set, but the Reginan came back strong to take the second easily 6-2. Roland Longtin came through with a surprising win over "Ossie" Ryall, first ranking British Columbia star, in 7-5, 4-6, 8-6. Boucher eliminated Laird Watt, of Montreal, Ontario champion, 6-3, 7-5, to go into the quarter-finals. Lot took on Commander J. O. I. Edwards, of Ottawa, and won with ease 6-0, 6-2, and Rainville beat "Crum" Thompson, of Portland, Oregon, Harvard star, 6-3, 6-2 in a tough battle. Frankie Parker had little difficulty beating Bobby Murray, Montreal youngster, and Keith Werner won from J. G. McLean, Toronto, 6-1, 6-4.

Young Wife (tearfully)—Before we were married you used to say you would always meet my smallest wish.
Husband—And so I will. It's these big ones that bother me.

"Young man, do you think you can support my daughter on forty dollars a week?"
"I'm willing to try it, sir—if that's the best you can do!"

the flesh of a cow and one lone member of the Sikh race is the only beef eater in the contingent. The Moslems may not eat pork.
The Anglo-Saxon, particularly the college football players of the United States, were described as eating anything and lots of it.

NO PRIZE AS YET
Sir,—Pertaining to the P. E. I. School Sports held at Charlottetown on June 24th, can any reader of the Guardian enlighten some of us concerned as to why prizes have not reached some of the winners. The writer of these lines has written two letters of inquiry to one of the leading officials of the event, inquiring as to why no certificate or prize has been forwarded him. The writer has failed to have even a word of any kind in reply. Maybe some other official will kindly throw light upon my humble inquiry and oblige.

I am Sir, etc.,
SUCCESSFUL COMPETITOR.

price impediments so inter-Empire trade may cover a wide field, predictions that the establishment of an Empire bank will receive serious consideration do not appear, well founded. Such a form of centralization would hardly appeal to all the Dominions. At the outset of the conference, N. C. Havens, head of the South African delegation, was firm in criticism of the idea of an Empire currency based on one common unit of value. If an Empire bank should imply also an imperial currency, it will meet with opposition.

What appears likely is that the committee will seek to arrive at some common ground on which trade within the Empire may proceed unimpeded by differences and fluctuations in currency. At the present the currency of Australia is at a discount, as compared with the British pound. South African currency, based on gold, is at a premium in relation to the are attached to sterling. Canadian currency is above sterling. Other variations exist throughout the Empire.

But whether money values are high or low, there appears to be general dissatisfaction with conditions, as indicated by delegation heads. If the Mother Country and the Dominions are to draw closer together in trade, they must, it is asserted, evolve a monetary policy more or less common to all. Such a policy should have the effect of increasing price levels throughout the Empire. It is suggested that this can be done by agreement.

The view expressed here is that the Imperial Economic Conference cannot hope to do anything final on the currency question. It is a world problem. On the other hand, it is asserted that the conference may reach an agreement whereby the Empire would approach a world gathering as a unit. A world monetary conference is to be held later this year.

OTTAWA, July 27—"I never made any such offer in any manner, shape or form, and the statement of Mr. O'Kelly is absolutely correct."

This was the emphatic denial of Prime Minister R. B. Bennett today to the published report that he had offered his services in the solution of the British-Irish dispute and that this offer had been accepted.

T. Sean O'Kelly declared: "There is no truth whatever in the report."

Our politicians no longer duel as they do in other countries, but how they can fence—"Norfolk Virginian-Pilot."

BLUE SUPER-BLADE

an exceptional value at 1/2 the price of the $2 Kroman

UNUSUAL quality at half the price you might expect to pay has made the Gillette Blue Super-Blade a great success. This extraordinary blade replaces the well-known Kroman De Luxe and is made in addition to the regular blade in the green package.

The Blue Super-Blade is definitely superior—a super-quality product especially intended for men who want to pay little more for unusual shaving comfort. We based its low price on anticipated volume and are happy to announce that present sales more than justify our predictions.

Nation-wide acceptance of the Blue Super-Blade proves that Canadian shavers recognize a bargain. Heavier for increased strength and rigidity—this blade is made of blue steel with rustless finish. It is the product of a modern manufacturing method developed by the new management. Automatic grinding, honing, finishing and stropping—so arranged that critical inspection can follow every operation—is your guarantee of uniformity. Every reel of steel is tested by an exclusive photo-electric process. The outside sections of the blade are harder than the flexing center. This difference in tempering assures shaving edges of surpassing keenness, while the blade bends freely without distortion when you tighten your razor. Patents already granted Gillette protect this important feature.

Your first trial of the Blue Super-Blade will give you a new attitude toward shaving. Please use it tomorrow morning. It is blue in color—enclosed in a blue package wrapped in Cellophane. On sale everywhere, $1 for 10, 50¢ for 5.
