The Guardian agrees with the Journal of the 19th that "it wasn't Mrs. McNeill, it was Miss Adell that Mrs. (Judge) McLeod crossed over to meet on Thursday." As this is exactly what The Guardian reported on that occasion, never mentioning Mrs. McNeill, the necessity of "The Guardian correspondent proving his telephone messages" is not apparent.

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND is justified of its old people and of the air and conditions that make them hale and hearty in their old age. William Silliker, Carleton Lot 8, the other day finished cutting with a scythe, a three-acre field of oats, which having been newly broken, was too rough for the binder. He is in his 90th year and is a strong and straight as a boy.

The death took place at the home of Mrs. H. A. Stewart, Lower Hamilton, Nov. August 20th, of Mrs. Margaret Hill, daughter of the late Alexander Stewart. Deceased had won many friends by her cheerful disposition both in the W. F. M. S. and Sunday-school, where she was a teacher. She leaves to mourn one daughter Florence, and two brothers, John Arthur in Quebec; and Donald M. in British Columbia, beside a large circle of relatives and friends.

HENRY J. RICHARDSON, a former resident of Summerside, who left here 38 years ago, arrived Tuesday evening for a short visit and is the guest of Mrs. H. H. Bear. After so long an absence, Mr. Richardson naturally finds Summerside very much grown, as when he last saw it, it was but a straggling village of some 300 or 300 people. He is delighted with his visit and in a pleasant interview with The Guardian yesterday, he says that he finds everything changed except the old friendships, which are as true as ever, not only in those who he formerly knew, but in their descendants. Mr. Richardson holds a position in the office of the General Electric Works of Schenectady, N. Y., one of the largest plants of its kind in the world, having 15,000 employees on its payroll.
